Why keep your home equity under your roof…

when it can open a new door for you?

Say you bought your home 15 years ago for $24,500 with a 25-year, 7% mortgage.

Today, it's likely to be worth around $55,000. With about $11,500 still owed on it. Leaving a total of $43,500 in equity that's not being used.

Now, at your Full Service Bank, we can help you put a healthy part of this equity to good use. Whether you want to start your own business or send your kids to college. Get a vacation home or take a long awaited trip. Buy art or antiques or give your daughter a royal wedding.

To find out how a Home Equity Loan can open a new door for you, see a Full Service Banker. Your financial expert in Minnesota.

MAKING THE MOST OF YOUR MONEY

By John Templeton, President, The Templeton Mutual Funds, Lyford Cay, Bahamas

Common stocks remain better bargains than other investments and there is a possibility that the market will more than double by 1988.

Why? For several reasons:

1. Pension funds are accumulating huge pools of cash. Within the next 15 years pension fund assets may total between $3 and $5 trillion, up from $600 billion today. The buying power of the pension funds is so large that they could buy up more than the total common stocks now outstanding, unless share prices rise.

Templeton

2. The 30 stocks in the Dow Jones Industrial Average are expected to record $140 in combined earnings this year, up 40% over 1983. Four years later the earnings figure could be $200. Historically, stock prices have averaged 14 times earnings, which would mean 2800 in the DJIA by 1988.

3. It is rare for a bull market to end before stocks are selling above what it would cost to rebuild those corporations — what we call replacement book value. The replacement book value for the 30 stocks in the DJIA is now about 1800 and is likely to be 2800, before the 1988 American elections.

4. Over 100 million Americans are now eligible to open Individual Retirement Accounts. If IRAs are created by half of these persons, and if half of their funds are directed towards stocks, it would mean an infusion of $50 billion annually into the stock market.

The above remarks are excerpted from a recent address by John. M. Templeton, of Lyford Cay, Bahamas. For a full copy of the talk or a Templeton fund prospectus, contact your local broker or Securities Fund Investors, Inc., 405 Central Avenue, P.O. Box 3942, St. Petersburg, FL 33731, 800-237-0738.

Forgotten Choice

One of the most well-written public opinion letters we have seen in some time appeared recently in the Morris Sun. Margaret Payne of Morris wrote the letter in response to a research piece which had been published in a previous issue of the paper. We feel she speaks eloquently for many other women when she states the following:

This letter contains some thoughts I had after reading Catherine Huebner's column entitled, "Children Are Not Harmed by Employed Mothers."

I think one of my best talents is nurturing. I never listed it in my resume because I didn't discover it until I had children. But the discovery of this one talent and my enjoyment of it has done more to change my attitude, rearrange my priorities and give me a greater sense of self then my education, travel and work experience ever did... and my life until my children was considerably eventful, adventuresome and productive.

But nurturing one's young on a full-time basis has become a forgotten choice for women. A choice that is considered menial, parasitic and unworthy of a thinking person. To confess to being an at-home mother seems to indicate you know more about diapers than Dante.

When an article appears that states children are not harmed by their mother's employment and it cites studies to support this claim, I'm sure it helps many women take comfort in their decision (or necessity) to be employed.

However, there are many studies to show that when both parents work the limited time available to the child and the other pressures on the parents can make it very hard to meet the child's needs. So I want to speak for women who have made the same choice as I so that the "job for every woman" advocates do not win by default.

To anyone interested who is considering having children, I would tell you there are many women like myself who are just as creative, intelligent, up-to-date and satisfied as our employed sisters. There work days can be just as repetitive, demanding and tiresome as our own are at times. Since I have the choice, I choose to be at home and raise my own children. I have willingly and consciously decided not to sell my time to an employer. I do not feel guilty or shortchanged either. It was an informed, thoughtful decision and yet one I am periodically called upon to justify.

My achievements as a stay-at-home mother may never be widely acclaimed, but my home is a valid workplace, I offer comfort and companionship on a full-time basis, and every day I am made more aware that the time my children are entrusted in my care is only an interval, after all.

Using The Land To Serve The Future

Following editorial is from "The Land" publication:

Land can be managed to produce agricultural products forever (at least until the next glacier arrives), or it can be forced to produce at an extra-high rate in the short run, to the advantage of people living how but at the expense of future generations.

Society's interest calls for a permanent system of farming, but how can landowners and managers be persuaded to use land to serve the well-being of future generations?

Agronomists tend to think of the problem of maintaining land and water resources in technical terms — engineering, crop management, tillage practices, replenishing organic matter and so on. Economists think about how well the market functions in providing incentives for soil maintenance and disincentives for wasteful use (society's view). They try to devise government programs for encouraging proper land use.

But neither technology nor economics has been able to prevent serious deterioration of soil and water resources in recent years. Now, public concern over the environment is a new factor. Some students of public affairs believe that demand for clean water and clean air may be the strongest force for changing farm practices toward control of soil erosion and protecting water resources.

But, we must consider the ethical principles involved in using nature's resources for the benefit of all. Religious leaders of various denominations have said that farmland is to be nurtured carefully so that it will retain its topsoil, its nutrients and the productive power given it by the Creator. It is to be cared for in this way so that succeeding generations of humanity might be fed and clothed from it.

This does not mean that farmers and landowners simply must do "the proper thing" with their land. It also means the coming of a public policy that fulfills the land-use ethic.

And that does not mean simply government cost-sharing and other financial support for soil and water conservation. Farmers also have advocated cross-compliance restrictions that would deny government price supports and other benefits to farmers who did not meet minimum conservation requirements.

In a time of commodity surpluses it is difficult to get people interested in conservation out of fear of future scar-city. But the surpluses can be a strong argument for taking land out of production and saving it for future use. Conservation by retiring cropland at this time does not require sacrifice from consumers and it moves toward sound supply management.

A Dangerous Friend?

Columnist Richard A. Viguerie terms the prospect of an alliance between the United States and the mainland Chinese as a sellout of the Republic of China (Taiwan).

He is surprised at President Ronald Reagan's moves toward such an alliance, given the President's previous pro-Taiwan and anti-Peking stance. When President Carter recognized the mainland China government, Reagan had said, "I've talked of our betrayal of the 17 million Chinese on Taiwan. Haven't we also betrayed millions and millions of Chinese on the mainland who lived with a dream of one day regaining freedom: We have legitimitized the denial of their human rights."

Viguerie expresses the opinion that "...all the rice wine served at all the state banquets ever held in Peking cannot wash away the blood of the 34 to 64 million people killed by the communist Chinese. All the alliances ever made cannot ease the suffering of the Chinese people as long as they must live under one of the most repressive regimes the world has ever seen.

"In communist China," he writes, "more than 10 million slave workers are held in a thousand forced labor camps. Millions of Chinese women are being forced to abort 'unauthorized' babies and forced to undergo sterilization operations... As many as 100,000 prisoners have been summarily executed in the recent 'anti-crime' crackdown. The authorities use psychological torture to force confessions from criminal suspects and political prisoners."

He also points out that while the communist Chinese live at a bare subsistence level, those in Taiwan prosper under a relatively free economic system. Taiwan's per capita income is 10 times that of the mainland and second only to Japan among Asian nations. Viguerie concludes his comments as follows:

"The Red Chinese ask us to overlook their battles with American forces during the Korean War, in which 54,000 Americans were killed. They ask us to overlook the Chinese supplies that enabled Ho Chi Minh to fight the Vietnam War, in which 58,000 Americans were killed; their support (for many years) of the Soviet empire; and their huge recent sales of weapons to the Ayatollah Khomeini, who threatens to cut off our supply of oil from the Middle East.

"If they want any help from us, we should expect a lot in return — not just for us, but for their own people.

"Otherwise, it will be obvious that Washington's foreign policy establishment is selling out a loyal ally in order to forge an alliance with one of the cruelest gangs of cutthroats in history. And we will again show Taiwan — and the rest of the world — just how dangerous it is to be a friend of the United States."

Borrowed Nonsense:

Political campaigns seem to bring out the Seven Dwarfs response. When you first meet the candidates, you're Bashful. After you hear them outline the problems, you're Grumpy. When you hear what they promise you, you're Happy. But if you believe them, you're Dopey.

---

Two people who hadn't been in church for some time were arguing about the strength of their religious backgrounds. Finally one said, "Well, I'll bet you $10 you can't even recite the Lord's Prayer."

"It's a bet" the second retorted, and began, "Now I lay me down to sleep..."

"O.K.," the first interrupted. "Here's your ten. I didn't think you would remember it."

WE'RE ON THE LEVEL

It's true. Natural gas prices are leveling off. The rapid rate increases of the past are now behind us. You'll be happy to know that at Inter-City Gas Corp. we're doing our level best to keep our rates low. In fact, natural gas prices rose less than 2% from January 1983 to January 1984.

Because we purchase gas from four pipeline suppliers, nowever, our monthly billings to our customers will continue to fluctuate from month to month. Naturally, when their rates change, we have no alternative but to reflect those changes in our monthly billing. This is reflected on our monthly billing as a "Purchase Gas Adjustment."

Likewise, if one of our suppliers is granted a general rate increase, this, too, will be reflected on our monthly billing. Fortunately, over the past year, changes have been very small. Due to conservation and added incentives to discover new wells, supplies of natural gas are very good. And the future looks even more promising. When compared to other forms of energy, natural gas is still The Best Deal In Town. It's the least expensive; it's clean, it's ready to use right out of the pipeline; and it's simply unexcelled for efficiency. In fact, natural gas is ideal for today and tomorrow. Yes, we're going to be together for a long, long time.

If you'd like to learn more about natural gas, just give us a call. We'll be happy to level with you.

Minnesota CPAs Provide Advice On Investments

You don't have to be a financial wizard to assemble a sound investment portfolio. There are some basic guidelines that most investors can use, according to the Minnesota society of CPAs.

Before planning to manage your portfolio, ask yourself: Do I have a reserve large enough to cushion myself against heavy losses or sudden emergencies? Generally, that sum should equal three to six months of your take-home pay, depending on the number of people you support.

Best place for that reserve is a money market account at a bank, or on a money market fund through a brokerage house. Money market funds may yield a bit more interest, but you may still prefer the convenience of having your money readily accessible at your bank. In either case, its liquidity is reasonably assured.

Once you satisfy the need for that nest egg, you can begin to expand your investments. Basic considerations in managing your portfolio are balancing your investments and evaluating risks. Let's focus on risk first.

There's some risk in all investing. Generally, the higher the risk, the greater the potential return. A single person with a steady job could probably afford to speculate more than one with a young family and a huge mortgage. The speculator may put as much as half of his or her portfolio into stocks of little-known companies on the chance they may develop into major players. Not everyone can comfortably accept risk for the chance of a bigger return, so be sure you have the temperament to go with the risk.

Balancing investments means selecting investments with varying degrees of risk according to your total financial picture. Someone positioning his or her portfolio around gold or silver probably ought to put some money into a less volatile income producing instrument, such as Treasury bills.

For instance, a young working married couple with no children may put 15 per cent of their investment dollars into gold or silver mining company stocks. This is a good hedge against inflation, but risky because of possible downward fluctuations in the price of hard assets. The couple might balance out their portfolio by placing 15 per cent of their money in a money market account, five per cent in U.S. Treasury Bonds, 30 per cent in an income mutual fund, and 35 per cent in stocks of emerging companies.

Buying stocks in emerging companies is one of the most common ways to make speculative investments. If selecting the stock requires more time and savvy than you possess, consider buying shares in an aggressive growth mutual fund. These funds, also called capital appreciation funds, employ money managers who purchase stocks for shareholders. For more information on such funds, you may want to contact the Investment Company Institute, — the Washington, D.C. based trade association representing these funds.

A more secure, income oriented investment can be found in growth and income producing mutual funds or in certain stocks that yield dividends. The safest type of dividend stocks are called preferred stocks which differ from common stock in that shareholders of preferred issues are given dividends before common stock shareholders.

One of the investments regarded as most conservative are U.S. treasury bonds. As you get closer to retirement and the need for a secure source of regular income becomes more important, this type of investment becomes more attractive. Be careful, however, of locking yourself into the same interest rate for long periods of time.

Get Cows Off To A Good Start

The first weeks after calving are critical for dairy cow performance. Research at the University of Missouri shows that sodium bicarbonate and magnesium oxide in early lactation diets helps cows get on full feed faster and reach peak milk production earlier.

The research was headed by Dr. Rex Ricketts, extension dairy specialist, and Richard King, who studied 12 cows in the first 13 weeks after calving. King and Ricketts found the most dramatic results from buffers in the first five weeks. During this period, the researchers reported increased milk and fat production and improved feed intake among cows fed a concentrate buffered with 1.6 percent sodium bicarbonate and 0.8 percent magnesium oxide. Cows fed the buffered ration not only produced more total milk, but reached higher peak milk production.

The researchers said that sodium bicarbonate and magnesium oxide help cows make the change from dry to milking rations. "The amount of stress endured by a modern dairy cow is great and is especially significant at calving and shortly thereafter," pointed out King. "The cow not only goes through the trauma of giving birth to her calf but her ration is changed from low concentrate and high roughage to high concentrate and low roughage within a matter of two or three days."

Sodium bicarbonate in the feed helps ease this transition by neutralizing digestive acids, keeping rumen pH in the optimum range. Magnesium oxide apparently acts directly on the mammary gland to aid butterfat production in early lactation, the researchers said.

Restaurant, Hotel, Resort Guides Offered

Three free travel guides to 1,000 of Minnesota's resorts, restaurants and hotels have been published by the Minnesota restaurant, hotel and resort associations in cooperation with the Minnesota office of tourism.

Each guide has a full-color cover and listings describing the features of each restaurant, hotel or resort. Guides are sized to fit into a suit pocket or purse for handy reference and include an expanded state map, temperature chart and details for obtaining other Minnesota tourism information.

"Explore Minnesota Resorts Guide" is an 80-page guide containing information about nearly 400 resorts in the state. Detrails on the features and facilities of each resort give the vacationer an opportunity to select resorts and phone numbers and resort addresses are included so further information can be requested. This year's guide had been expanded to include a comprehensive alphabetical listing of all resorts in the guide and has a complete guide to resort conference and meeting facilities.

"Explore Minnesota Restaurants Guide" is an 80-page guide providing descriptions of nearly 500 dining establishments throughout Minnesota, ranging from supper clubs to family, fast food and fine dining. The guide includes the restaurant's address, phone number, open house, type of menu offered and price range. A description explains the amenities and special features the restaurant offers. Abbreviations indicate handicap usable, alcoholic beverages served, on-premise lodging, live entertainment offered and private meeting room facilities.

"Explore Minnesota Hotels & Motor Hotels Guide" is a 40-page guide which lists 150 lodging properties in the state. The guide includes current rate information for many of the properties listed and descriptions of the properties' features. Hotels and motor hotels which offer special weekend packages are designated as well as those which provide meeting facilities. The guide includes brief descriptions about the cities and towns included in the guide, plus addresses and phone numbers of local chambers of commerce.

For free copies of the guides, call (612) 647-0691 or write to the Minnesota Restaurant, Hotel and Resort Associations, 2001 University Avenue, St. Paul, MN 55104. Please indicate which guide(s) are being requested.

ALAM States Asthma Can Be Controlled

Six million Americans are affected by asthma, including over 21,000 Minnesota children under 14 years of age.

According to the American Lung association of Minnesota (ALAM), asthma is a condition where tubes of the lungs are narrowed by tightened muscles, mucous plugs and swollen tissues, causing difficulty in breathing. The lung tissues react vigorously to various stimuli, including substances that cause allergic reactions; and non-allergenic factors such as cold air, viral infections or vigorous exercise. In some cases it is a combination of factors.

ALAM says many episodes can be prevented by educating youngsters, and teaching them how to cope. In addition, medical science has discovered a number of new drugs in the past few years.

People do not inherit asthma per se, but may inherit the tendency for it to develop under certain conditions. It is not contagious, and seldom fatal. An episode can last from a few minutes to several days, and can be triggered by second hand smoke, paint fumes, aerosols, infections, cold air, windy weather, allergies, strong emotions, over-activity, aspirin, air pollution and many other causes.

Nighttime asthma episodes are common because, while the body is resting, airways tend to narrow, perhaps because of fatigue, making breathing more difficult.

When asthma has an allergic basis, avoiding known allergens, or desensitizing the body is the best method of prevention. However, both allergenic and non-allergenic episodes can be prevented by medication.

Vast majority of people with asthma can have their disease controlled completely by medication. The doctor's first step is to assess the patient's asthma, and then to carefully choose a medication and dosage for that particular patient. One medicine often used is a bronchodilator which widens the narrowed air passages by relaxing the tightened muscles surrounding the tubes.

Getting rid of the mucous plugs that block the airways calls for the person with asthma to take in extra fluids, perhaps by drinking, or breathing in moist air. When there is excess mucous, postural drainage may help. The procedure involves getting the body into a position to encourage the mucus to flow out, helped by skillful clapping on the chest and back.

A person with asthma can and should live a normal life. To help them achieve this, the American Lung association of Minnesota offers Camp Superkids, the fun camp where children with asthma learn how to live with and control their disease. The association makes available "Superstuff," a self-help kit, and publishes a free quarterly newsletter entitled "Asthma Update". For information on any of these, contact Pat Kasell, American Lung Association of Minnesota, 614 Portland Avenue, St. Paul, 55102, or call toll-free: 1-800-642-LUNG.

Nicole Dimich Places 2nd In Essay Contest

Nicole Dimich

by Nicole Dimich

My grandparents are special in every way. I'm very lucky to have five grandparents. Each one plays a special part in my life in their own unique way.

My Great-Grandma Nora is eighty-six years old. She is very active. Every time we visit her she has something to do that night. Whether it's a bridge game or a pot luck at the church she always has time for us. My sisters and I play with dominoes that my father played with when he was growing up. I like them just as much as he did.

Grandma Dimich is fun to cook with. We would have strudel making parties in the fall. We make hardtack everytime we can. But no matter how messy it gets or how many mistakes we make she is always so patient. Summers are spent collecting clams and cooking them. Swimming to the weeds is something she always is game for.

Playing solitaire is my Grandpa Dimich's favorite past time. He taught me to play Oh Heck and Golf. We have card game nights at the lake that are fun. Nights when we sit in front of the television and he makes popcorn are fun. It's always good. Every time we leave his house he whistles and we honk our car horn. You can hear it three blocks away. I'm trying but I still don't know how to whistle like he does.

Bedtime stories are Grandma Stockman's specialty. My favorite one is about Freddy Bear. He gets stuck in the snowbank and good Mr. Woodchuck helps him get out. She almost always has made her famous cinnamon rolls for us when we come. I love them as much as I love candy.

Her mother had a trunk full of antiques. It's fun to open the trunk and look at all the things in it. She has given me a bowl

Labor Ability Surveys Sent In Shopper

Today 8,000 labor ability surveys are being distributed by Thief River Falls Jobs Incorporated through the Northern Minnesota Shopper's Guide.

Jerry Sandstrom, executive director of Jobs Incorporated, said the information collected will be used in attracting new businesses to locate in Thief River Falls. "It will prove to companies that there is an adequate skilled labor force for them in this area," he said.

Those receiving surveys in their Shopper's Guide are asked to return them to the address listed as soon as possible.

City Council Meets Tuesday

Thief River Falls city council will meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, May 22, in council chambers at city auditorium, with a full three pages of business on the agenda.

District Court Sentences Two Men From TRF

Two Thief River Falls men were sentenced by Ninth district Judge Russell A. Anderson in special session of Pennington County District Court on May 9, as a result of conviction on criminal charges.

Alfred Christopher Bellerud, Thief River Falls, pleaded guilty on March 14 to a charge of fourth degree sexual conduct. He was sentenced to serve 21 months in custody of the commissioner of corrections with sentence stayed on condition that he pay $1,000 fine, $100 surcharge and $5 law library fee, serve 10 days in jail under the Huber law, and remain on supervisied probation for five years.

Rodney Melvin Nissen, Thief River Falls, was convicted by a jury on March 14 of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle. He was sentenced to serve 17 months in custody of the commissioner of corrections with credit for time serviced since March 14 in the Pennington county jail.

Nissen entered a plea of guilty on March 19 to a separate charge of burglary in the third degree. On this charge he was sentenced to 41 months in custody of the commissioner of corrections with credit for time served in the Pennington county jail from March 14. Both sentences will run concurrently.

Two Charged For Intent To Sell Marijuana

Two Thief River Falls residents from Inkster, MI, were charged with possession of marijuana with intent to sell Thursday in Pennington county court. They were released on $1,000 bond each and ordered to appear in district court here on Friday, May 25.

Jerome Prewitt, 19 and Rodney Scales, 25, were arrested after a search of their residence at 504 Red Lake boulevard at 6 a.m. Thursday resulted in seizure of 12 ounces of marijuana. Investigator Dennis Kiesow of the Thief River Falls police department said a search warrant had been obtained and the search conducted following reports of drug sales from that residence.

Project Review Committee To Meet On Wed.

Marshall county local project review committee will discuss its future at a meeting to be conducted Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Strandquist community center. The committee has been keeping abreast of developments in the hazardous waste disposal site selection process.

Public attendance is invited.

Lincoln Spring Instrumental Concert Tues.

Spring concert by the Thief River Falls Lincoln high school bands and orchestra will be presented Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the school auditorium. James Solsten is conductor of the orchestra and Douglas Engstrom is director of the bands.

Orchestra numbers will include "Allegro and Menuet", "Skater's Waltz," "Canto Amoroso," "Sonata in F" and "Walking Basses." Orchestra members include the following:

Jill Isaacson (concertmistress), Tammy Kostrzewski, Connie Rutz, Lynelle Kotrba, John Helgenset and Lisa Ray, first violins; Mark Sletten and Kristi Sorteberg, violas; Kraig Anderson, bass; Kris Bugge, Lori Ostgarden, Melissa Grabanski and Roxy Johnson, second violins; Kim Lawrenz, Bonnie Delage, Debbie Torgerson and Laura Dunning, cello; and Jennifer Davidson, piano.

Jazz ensemble will present "A String of Pearls" with Sheila Duke, Shannon Kezar and Mauri Torgerson as soloists; "Truly" with David Ose as soloist and "Pressure Cooker" with Nora Hushagen, Shannon Kezar and Kristy Finney as soloists.

Wind ensemble will present "Procession of Nobles," "Norwegian Folk Rhapsody," "Fantasia in G," "Americans We," "Washington Post," Overture to "The Messiah," "Sinfonia Nobilissima" and "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring." Wind ensemble members are pictured in today's issue of the Times and listed in the photo caption.

Concert band will play "Concert Overture" and "Emperata Overture." Members of the concert band include the following:

Also Jim VanSchaick, Deb Grandbois, Kim Kenville, Connie Grovum, Lynell Armstrong, Jay Jonson, Janelle Smidt, Lisa Henrickson, Kristy Brown, Scott Cooke, Jared Ellingson, Pat Fisher, Angie Vigen, Todd Carlson, Paulie Wegge, Jon Erickson, Lisa Hejlik, Cheri Sinn, Troy Armstrong, Bill Carlson, Jeff Michalicek, Lisa Langan, Jason Kuznia, Carl Vigen, Gordy Shetler, Jodi Fimrite and Cheryl VanHorn;

IN CONCERT Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Lincoln high school auditorium will be the school wind ensemble under the direction of Douglas Engstrom. The group will be joined by the school orchestra, conducted by James Solsten, and the concert band and jazz ensemble in presenting the concert. Members of the wind ensemble above include, left to right: First row, Tina Kruse, Maria Henderson, Heidi Tangquist, Nora Hushagen, Evonne Anderson, Linda Duke, Faye Erickson, Shawn Fugleberg, Marlys Schindler, Kristie Bjornrud, Renae Shetler and Deb Opdahl; second row, Lisa Howe, Lori Stocks, Julie Finstad, Kristy Rupprecht, Susie Thune, Becky Ulrich, Melody Cooke, Cindy Kain, Karla Lokken, Jacki Kramer and Jessica Solne; third row, Kaylyn Espe, Mike Melby, Kelly Kvick, Brian Mathson, Andrea Ault, Penni Johnston, Stacie Kruta, Mauri Torgerson, Rochelle Sandstrom and Mark Lehrer; fourth row, Sue Pfeifer, Jackie Thune, Kelli Olson, Angie Brazier, Steve Carriere, Shannon Kezar, Jeff Langan, Jenny Spencer, Lisa Ault, Mike Purdy and Sheila Duke; back row, Denise Nylen, Michelle Olson, Kristy Finney, Kent Wagner, Mark Blazek, Jeff Rosetta, Kevin Anderson, Ingrid Klopp, Todd Peterson, Paul Wefald, David Ose and Paul Cuppett.

SPRING COMBINING isn't recommended agricultural practice, but it was being done by several farmers in the area last week. Curt Christensen is shown operating the combine above, picking up some of approximately 600 acres of wheat which had to be left because of wet conditions last fall. He said the wheat was averaging about 10 bushels per acre, had high protein content and weighed about 48 pounds per bushel. He expects the land to be worked and planted to another crop this spring.

Lake of the Woods Era May End In 1985 . . .

Commercial Fishermen Ready To Take Buy-Out

by Marvin Landin
Times Editor

If commercial fishing dies on Lake of the Woods, as it is almost certain to do after this year, it will mark the demise of a way of life for a small number of families who have had an intimate relationship with the lake and its finny residents.

Commercial fishing is dying as a result of legislation pushed through the Minnesota legislature by sports fishermen and their supporters. The law gives commercial fishermen a choice between a quick or lingering business death, and it would appear from our survey of the commercial gill net license holders that the end will come suddenly.

Under the terms of the law, commercial gill net license holders may continue to fish until 1991, but under an annually reduced quota system for walleyes. Or they may sell their arbitrarily-set quota to the state of Minnesota at any time during that period for $1.15 per pound of the quota remaining until 1991.

This year the gill net fishermen will operate under a quota of 15,000 pounds of walleyes each. There are 10 holders of gill net licenses, making a total of 150,000 pounds of walleyes the maximum allowable take. That is 20,000 to 30,000 pounds below the annual "normal" harvest.

In 1985 the quota per license would be reduced to 13,720 pounds, then continuing to decline to 12,348 in 1986, 10,980 in 1987, 9,150 in 1988, 7,320 in 1989, 5,490 in 1990 and 2,745 in 1991. The fisherman who sells his quota and thereby agrees to quit commercial fishing in 1985 will receive from the state $71,015.95 — the total of $1.15 times the pound quota for each of the seven years.

Should he elect to continue fishing for another year or two, not only would his allowable quota of walleyes be reduced in accordance with the formula, but he would have his state-buy-out amount reduced accordingly. If he continued to fish in 1985 and 1986, for instance, his remaining quota would be reduced to 35,685 pounds and his buy-out price would be cut to $41,037.75. In addition, no gill nets could be used after 1987.

Several of the fishermen profess to have a wait-and-see attitude, but most expect to sell out their quotas next year. The state department of natural resources fisheries department expects a full scale buy-out, according to director Floyd Hennegar. So does Loren Morey, who operates the Morey Fish company in Warroad. He says that if two or three fishermen sell out to the state, his Warroad operation is finished.

"I feel more left out than the fishermen," Morey said in a telephone interview. "They at least get something out of the deal. We get absolutely nothing. You want to buy a good building? Have I got a deal for you."

He said his father started buying fish in Warroad in the late 1930's and moved there in 1940. Two years ago the company spent $125,000 in updating its fishery facilities in Warroad, largely on the basis of future expectations and assurances. But DNR commissioner Joe Alexander's order for a three-year study of the commercial fishing and sport fishing impact on the lake went out the window with the buy-out law passed at the 1984 session.

The Morey company has headquarters at Motley where two-thirds of its volume has been Lake of the Woods fish. Of that total, about 35 to 40 per cent have come from U.S. commercial fishermen. The apparent push in Canada to make Lake of the Woods a sport fishing lake is expected to further reduce Morey's fresh fish supply. As a result, he is looking to other areas of fish processing, including ocean fish for artificial crab sticks and expansion of the frozen chowder line developed last year. None of those plans involve Warroad.

Despite having their livelihood and their family tradition cut from under them, the 10 holders of gill net licenses seem to be more philosophican than bitter, although there is frustration and anger evident in their conversation. Here is what the 10 gill net license holders have to say.

Ed Vickaryous
Warroad

There is no doubt that Ed will sell out his quota next year. Now 82 years old he still plans to tend his nets this summer as he has since he first began fishing the lake in 1927. Ed has difficulty hearing on the telephone, so his wife discussed their situation instead.

Ed and his wife own Hay island, which they purchased in 1943, and they have always commercial fished in the Hay island and Garden island area. They have a house on the island and once lived there year around, but once their children started high school they moved to Warroad for the winter. They have one cabin on the island which they rent out occasionally.

"We've fished that area for 56 years and it's still considered prime sport fishing waters for walleyes," Mrs.

District Report Is Presented At WCTU Meeting

Report on the district Women's Christian Temperance convention held in Wannaska were given at the May meeting of the Alice May Stuart Thief River Falls union held May 11 at the social room at the Riverside Terrace.

It was noted that the district meeting was based on the theme "Challenging Pathways," with the key verses: "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all they ways acknowledge Him and He shall direct thy paths." Prov. 3:5-6.

District president Pearl Loe presided at the meeting and welcomed the group with the admonition "Let your light so shine before man they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in Heaven." She concluded with the encouragement given by Christ: "I am with you always, even unto the end of the world."

The morning session included the business meeting with election of officers. All officers were re-elected. They are Mrs. Gilbert Loe, president; Mrs. Robert McWaters, vice president; Mrs. Olive Olson, promotion secretary; Mrs. Clifford Skime, treasurer; Mrs. Laura Gunderson, recording secretary; Loyal Temperance League, (LTL) director and Mrs. Robert McWaters, Youth Temperance Camp, (YTC) director.

Other business included the donation of $100 to the National WCTU for air conditioning and the decision to give the old secretary's books containing minutes of past meetings, to the Minnesota Historical society as a record of the work done by the WCTU in this area.

Also discussed was the Bill HR427 concerning the rights of homosexuals to teach school, live where they please and to hold any job. Members were encouraged to express their views by writing to Congressman Arlan Stangland, 1519 Longworth Building, Washington, D.C. 20515.

Special guests at the meeting were Hester Rhodes, Austin, state loyal temperance league director, and Mrs. Gladys Lillie state Christian Outreach director. Mrs. Rhodes provided special music by playing the autoharp as she sang. She showed slides of her trip to Russia and displayed several Russian items including dolls for her collection. Her presentation included a skit with her ventriloquist doll "Brother John," stressing total abstinence by pastors.

The report concluded with the information that the one-day do convention was held at the Riverside Lutheran church with Rev. Ron Becklund, pastor of the church, giving the afternoon devotions, Oliver Olson, Roseau, gave the morning devotions, and Eleanor Sherling, Bemidji, presided at the Memorial service, and Dorothy Billberg, Roseau, led the White Ribbon service which included a solo by Shawna Dunham, Wannaska. Yearly reports of each union were given by the presidents.

In giving the district report, it was noted that in the recommendations submitted by the National WCTU president Martha Edgar, members were encouraged to be positive in their work in the WCTU, to support the work, and to recruit new members.

Devotions at the local meeting were led by Mrs. Olga Larson, reading John 21:15-22. She said that although Peter was sometimes very impulsive, he had the true Christian characteristics of obedience, devotion and service. To coincide with Mother's day, she stated that a mother's chief concern is rearing children in righteousness, and that families need to be upheld daily in prayer.

Correspondence included a letter from Dr. Charles R. Samuelson, instructor at Northland Community college, thanking the group for the materials promoting Youth Temperance Education week. It was noted that the materials had been distributed to the students in the Drugs and Alcohol class, had been placed in the students' mailboxes and displayed on the bulletin board.

Valley Home Events Reported By Ella Overum

Eleven residents at Valley Home observed their birthdays in April, according to the monthly report submitted by Ella Overum, the Home's news reporter. It was noted that several had the same birthdays.

Noting birthdays and the dates were Hazel Anderson, and Alma Hawkyard, both on April 3; Alex Anderson, April 5; Antonia Hruby and Dora Rustad, both April 19; Carl Ryan, April 20; Agnes Vatthauer and Leona Paulsen, both April 25; Leonard Singer and Julius Sletten, both on April 28; and Thea Conklin, April 30.

All were honored jointly at a birthday party April 20, with each receiving a card and cash gift from the Home and a card from the Catholic Daughters. Melvin Swenson and his brother, Roy, provided the special music for the program. Banana pie was served for lunch.

On their respective birthdays, Mrs. Hawkyard's family served cake and ice cream to the residents at staff; Carl Ryan served ice cream; Leonard Singer, strawberry ice cream, and Leona Paulson and Karen Muetzel, crafts director, served sherbet on their birthdays April 25.

Five new residents were welcomed during the month of April. They were Margaret Grover, Alice Habedank, Ferdinand Zarling, Alvin Ellinger and Cora Grendahl.

Easter Sunday was observed at the home with the traditional ham dinner. At each place setting was a decorated nut cup filled with Easter eggs and jelly beans, provided by the Home.

Easter oriented program was given by the CAP students: Kelly Barry, Dawn Engelstad and Jenny Spencer. The program included a short film and several reading. As a special feature, several of the residents participated in pinning the tail on the Easter bunny. Carl Ryan and Ella Overum were winners in that event.

Easter programs were also presented by the Intravarsity Christian Fellowship group at the local AVTI, and a large group of Sunday school children and teachers from Zion Lutheran church. The Sunday school children also distributed crosses, which they had made, as well as flower and vegetable plants in Styrofoam cups.

Of special interest was the dedication of a communion set in memory of Gina Belland, who resided at Valley Home for many years. The communion set, donated by her relatives, was dedicated by Rev. Berton Hushagen, pastor at Trinity Lutheran church.

Other pastors leading devotional services during the month were Rev. Don Knutson of Redeemer Lutheran church who showed Easter slides; Rev. Les Galland of Our Saviour's Lutheran church, Rev. Roger Hanson of Zion Lutheran church; Rev. Charles Johnson of Faith Lutheran Brethren church, and Art Grimstad, assistant pastor at Our Saviour's. Mass was offered weekly by the priests at St. Bernard's.

Others in charge of devotional services were Willie Waterworth and singers of Newfolden, Larry Myhrer, Lester Brekke, the Lowell Trochmanns, Norris Trochmann and Laurie, Don Johnson, Dean Paskewitz, Gary Ellingson, Harvey Dyrud, Jennings Jenson, and Rev. Arthur Ortmann, who showed a film, and also provided the film, "In His Steps," which was shown twice. Bible studies were led weekly by Judith Wold.

The String of Praise, Newfolden, presented a Sunday afternoon concert, and LeRoy Knutson, speaker, Bill Wagner and Rueben Haugen, all of Newfolden, were in charge of the Sunday morning service April 29. That afternoon a program was presented by the Hodne families of Newfolden and Middle River.

Residents and staff joined in a hymn sing Saturday afternoon, April 28.

Each Friday drawings for $5.00 cash gifts are held by the residents who assist in the craft shop. Winners March 9 were: Leona Paulson, Earl Yonke and Emma Swenson; March 16, Florence Dahlen, Elphie Anderson and Edgar Olson; March 20, Ray McGregor, Florence Anderson and Clara Ness; March 23, Ethel Laidley, Albert Berg and Carl Ryan; April 6, Ella Overum, Tillie Berget and Milda Christenson; April 13, Cora Jorgenson, Mary Welch and Selma Fischer; April 20, Joe Pletchett, Jessie Gamme and Alice Palmquist; and April 27, Victoria Marynik, Sivert Sjulson and Selma Peterson.

Several residents accompanied Mrs. Lester Brekke to the circus held in Thief River Falls. They were Clara Ness, Leona Paulson, Julia Alexander and Ella Overum.

Of special interest was a new venture whereby six residents, table partners in the dining room, are given the privilege of choosing anything they would like to eat for the breakfast or dinner. These special meals are held in the kitchenette with Carolyn Jablinski in charge.

Other activities included a visit from the members of the Esther circle, of Trinity Lutheran church, who served sweet breads to the residents; and a group of women from St. Bernard's Catholic church, who served bread with cheese.

The monthly bowling game with the Oakland Park Nursing home was held at Oakland Park with the Valley home team winning.

Weekly games continued with Connie Driscoll and Earl Yonke in charge. Other weekly events were residents council meetings, morning exercises, shuffle board, darts, bowling, choir and band practice, crafts, and movies with popcorn.

Commercial Fishermen Ready To Sell

Vickaryous said. "Ed has always fished alone. It has been our living. We've raised seven kids and never taken a cent of welfare or relief. Ed would just as soon keep right on fishing. Social security really doesn't give you much of a living."

Jim and Jed Brewster
Warroad

"I'm gonna get back to being a first class citizen," quipped Jim Brewster in a bit of wry humor. "If you were a commercial fisherman these past few years you weren't considered a first class citizen. If you go on welfare, at least people will look up to you a little bit."

Jim, 52, and his brother Jed, 54, are third generation fishermen. Their grandfather Millard Brewster started fishing the lake about 80 years ago and their father Roy spent a lifetime in the business, just as Jim and Jed have.

The Brewsters and John Heinen fish together, operating a 40-foot boat which is the last of its kind out of Warroad. Like other commercial gill netters, Jim believes the business is misunderstood by most people. "Our net mesh has to break under four-pound strain," he said. "We have to set our nets in water that is 15 feet or deeper. There are so many regulations you wouldn't believe it."

Brewster worries that angling pressure on walleyes without the commercial removal of rough fish could further upset the balance of the lake. Netters have traditionally taken about eight to 10 pounds of rough fish for every pound of walleye. Anglers take virtually no tulibee or suckers. And the walleyes caught by the netters grace the tables of thousands of people who like to eat fish but are not able or interested in catching them.

"We always thought that everyone was entitled to a share of the fish resources of the lake," he said. "It will only be a select group that get the fish now — those who can afford to spend the time and money going out to catch them for themselves."

John Heinen
Warroad

John Heinen is a relative newcomer among the gill net license holders on the lake, having been at it only 20 years. His father, George, was a pond net operator for many years. Then John operated one of two trawlers which plied the lake for four years, the first two years on an experimental basis and the last two on a licensed basis.

The trawl, according to John, was a very efficient method of taking rough fish. But it lacked favor from other commercial fishermen who feared it would deplete the lake of fish, and from sports fishermen and environmentalists who claimed slaughter of walleyes and disturbance of the lake bottom. He maintains the stories about the trawls were greatly exaggerated, but they died a political death just as commercial fishing is doing now.

For Heinen, commercial fishing is his full-time livelihood. Summer is his peak period, but he fishes for burbot during the winter and suckers during the spring. This year he took about 105,000 pounds of suckers from the Warroad river. The burbot are transported live for stocking in put-and-take impoundments further east.

Heinen is one of the fishermen who leans toward the wait-and-see attitude. "Things have changed two or three times in the last couple of years," he said, "and the legislature will be back in session again next year. Who knows what might happen yet?"

Art and Alan Johnston
Warroad

Sons of Alvin Johnston, Art and Alan fish together as the fourth generation of commercial fishermen on Lake of the Woods, tracing their fishing ancestry back to around the turn of the century. It's a way of life as much as a living and perhaps moreso. Alan's wife gives the fisherman's spouse's viewpoint.

"My husband has a degree in chemistry," she said. "We worked 10 years to pay back the college loans, yet he moved back to Warroad to do what he could have done without going to college at all. You don't do that unless you love what you're doing."

She also provided a short course in economics versus tradition. "Let's suppose that he could catch the full 15,000 pound walleye quota — which isn't assured — and could sell them a dollar a pound — which he couldn't last year. That's a $15,000 gross from getting up at 5 a.m. seven days a week from June 1 through the summer and risking your life in the process. Fishing is in their blood."

The Johnstons have a 13-year-old daughter and 16 and 11-year-old sons, all of whom have fished with their father. "Our oldest son started fishing when he was two years old," Mrs. Johnston said. "I wouldn't think of letting him use a knife around the house, but Alan gave a fillet knife and a fish and told him to go ahead and fillet it. I don't know if any of them would have become commercial fishermen, but it seems likely."

The Johnston brothers have employable skills and educations. Art is thinking about leaving the area, maybe for Alaska, to resume his trade. Alan has a small farm and may concentrate his energies there. Not all of the fishermen have alternatives readily available.

"Buzz" Lemm
Williams

For the past 28 years, since he bought Bennie Bialke's gill net license, LeMonde "Buzz" Lemm has fished the Long Point area of Lake of the Woods. It has been his livelihood all those years and he has held no other job. At age 54 it will be a difficult time to start seeking employment.

"I'd prefer to keep fishing, but I'm pretty well forced to take the state's offer next year due to economic conditions," he said. "My ice machines are 18 years old and I'm trying to make them last another year. I just don't feel there is any alternative but to sell the quota and get out of the business."

Like most of the commercial fishermen, Lemm has developed a market outside the commercial processors. He markets a good percentage of his tulibees by smoking them and selling them direct to customers. He also supplies a large number of anglers from a distance who want to bring fish back for friends and relatives. Many people have come a distance to fish Lake of the Woods, he believes, because they knew they could buy fish to bring back with them.

Lemm has seen no decline in either walleye numbers or size in his 28 years of fishing. "If anything, the last dozen years or so the walleye catch has been up," he said. "The size has also increased to the point where the average is larger than the popular market fish."

Don Huerd Jr.
Williams

Don Huerd took over the gill net license from his dad during the brief period when license transfers were authorized under commissioner's order just over a year ago. He is sure he will not be able to continue in the business.

"Dad was born with a paddle in his hand," Don said about the family fishing tradition. "The family has always fished in the Long Point to Zipple Bay area."

Huerd says fishing has been his mainstay, although he also does some logging during the winter. "Fishing really hasn't been a 12-month job," he said. "There is no question the economy around here is going to be hurt by cutting out the commercial fishing."

Steve and Ed Arnesen
Roosevelt

Also third generation commercial fishermen, Steve and Ed Arnesen of Rocky Point plan to sell out their licenses next year. There is not enough economic incentive to continue in the face of reduced walleye quotas. The Arnesens sell a good percentage of their walleye catch direct to customers. After this year there will be hundreds of people who will be disappointed at not having fish available.

Steve and Ed are the sons of Lawrence Arnesen, who with his brother Clarence took over the fishery from their father Barney, who in turn had started commercial fishing in the area in 1897. Like the other commercial fishermen, they probably felt the ending of their livelihood was only a matter of time.

Anticipating the end has not made it any easier, however. Lawrence and Clarence Arnesen lost two brothers and two uncles to the lake as they fished its waters some year ago. The lake has no little meaning to the family.

Steve and Ed are also involved in farming, however, and are involved in a mobile home park. They can get by without the fishing which has been such an ingrained part of their lives, but they will certainly miss it.

"Tourists used to like seeing the commercial fishery," Lawrence Arnesen said. "And the harbor we have developed was done primarily for the benefit of the commercial fishery. I can remember that we had poor fishing in the 1930's; much poorer than it is now. I think the lake is in good shape.

"I hope the lake stays in good shape, but we don't know what will happen if the rough fish aren't removed. Eighty-five per cent of our catch has been rough fish."

While commercial fishermen are reluctant to give up their traditional livelihood, they are weary of the hassle and the unwarranted criticism they have been subjected to over the years, including the threat of violence. They have been on the defensive for many years and few are those who have been willing to assist or defend them. After awhile, resistance wears thin.

If only a few take the state's offering next year, the rest will have to follow suit. They will have no buyer for their rough fish or their surplus walleyes beyond private markets. Another era will have ended.

GREEN THUMB award was accepted with a smile by Paula Hanson at the annual Northland community college awards banquet on Thursday evening, as Advisor Dr. Charles Samuelson used an ink pen to make the presentation more than just a figure of speech. Douglas Courneya was also a recipient of the award, but was not present for the ceremony.

NOW, CHECKING THAT PAYS MONEY MARKET RATES AND CAB FARE ON BROADWAY AT 2 A.M.

A money market account gets you high returns. A money market checking account gets you high returns and easy access to your money.

Some banks have a different idea of "easy access" than we do. They think it should end at the city limits. At 5 P.M.

But you're not always within the city limits. And sometimes you need money after banking hours.

That's why we created a money market checking account that's accessible, really. You can use your Instant Cash Card from coast to coast throughout the CIRRUS network. At over 5,000 locations. At all hours of the day.

Even on Broadway at 2 A.M. And the convenience doesn't stop there.

You don't pay any fees while you maintain the minimum balance. You enjoy the security of FDIC insurance and your Norwest Bank. And as always, you can count on our friendly, professional service.

Great returns. Easy access. No fees. That's the spirit of Norwest in Money Market Checking.

That's the Norwest Spirit!

Picking raspberries and corn are two of the things I like to help Grandpa Stockman do. Before he retired in January I would go with him to his office and I would pretend to be his secretary. He taught me many little songs on the piano such as chop sticks. Now that he is retired we will have more time to do things like that.

My Grandparents mean alot of me. The most important thing is that I know they love me and they are always there when I need them. I know I'm lucky to have such loving and caring grandparents.

Ole Farstad Of Newfolden Dies Thursday

Ole Farstad, 90, of Newfolden died Thursday at Northwestern hospital.

Funeral services for Ole Farstad were held today (Monday) at 10:30 a.m., at the Evangelical Free church in Newfolden. Rev. Earl Eveland officiated at the services. Mrs. Merle Bjornrud was the soloist and Beverly Lindstrom, the organist. Interment was in the Oak Grove cemetery at Newfolden. The Green Funeral home was in charge of arrangements.

Honorary pallbearers were Edwin Bjorsness, Edward Nelson, Merle Bjornrud, Murphy Walyar, Aaron Waterworth and Richard Larson.

Serving as active pallbearers were Enoch Farstad, Lawrence Bjorsness, Laverne Boman, James Olson, Harvey Offerdahl and Lester Offerdahl.

Ole Farstad, a son of the late Iver and Olianna Farstad, was born in Newfolden on Jan. 18, 1894. He attended school and grew to manhood in the Newfolden community.

On Jan. 16, 1916, he was married in Minneapolis to Annie Offerdahl. The couple farmed near Viking and in the Newfolden area until October of 1973, when they moved into Newfolden. Since then, they have made their home there.

He is survived by his wife, a son, Orville Farstad, Newfolden; four daughters: Mrs. Clifford (Adeline) Dahl, St. Paul; Mrs. Harry (Edith) Hautla, New Brighton; and Mrs. Maynard (Eunice) Nelson and Mrs. Albert (Delores) Berg, both of Richfield; nine grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren.

Also surviving are three sisters: Olga Mansuff, Portland, Ore.; Mrs. Murphy (Hilda) Walyar and Mrs. Margaret Lake, both of Detroit Lakes; and two brothers: Eddie and Albert Farstad, both of Long Beach, Calif.

He was preceded in death by a son, Norman; one daughter, Opal; four brothers, two sisters, and a half-brother.

'Skip' Newland Dies Saturday In Grand Forks

John "Skip" Newland, 45, of this city, died Saturday evening at the United hospital in Grand Forks, N.D.

Funeral services for "Skip" Newland will be held Tuesday at 2:00 p.m., at Redeemer Lutheran church with Rev. Don Knudson officiating. Interment will be in Greenwood cemetery.

The body is reposing at the Belmont Funeral home and will repose at the church for one hour prior to the time of services.

A complete obituary will be published in the Wednesday edition of the Times.

Services Today For Mrs. Agnes Hanson, 102

Mrs. Agnes Hanson, 102, of Thief River Falls, died Friday at the Good Samaritan home in East Grand Forks.

Funeral services for Mrs. Agnes Hanson will be held today (Monday) at 1:00 p.m., at the Green Funeral chapel, Rev. Berton Hushagen, pastor at Trinity Lutheran church, will officiate. Mrs. Ada Smerek will be the organist and soloist. Interment will be in Greenwood cemetery.

Pallbearers will be Malcolm Magnuson, Kenneth Halldin, Orville Feragen, Alfred Sorenson, Leonard Hellquist and Kenneth Muzzy.

Mrs. Hanson, the former Agnes Rolland, was born Nov. 16, 1881 in Minneapolis to Lars and Elizabeth Rolland. As a child, she moved with her parents to the St. Hilaire area where they homesteaded northwest of St. Hilaire. She grew to womanhood in that community.

On Dec. 29, 1909, she was united in marriage to Gust Hanson at St. Hilaire. Following their marriage, the couple lived at Shelly until 1914, when they moved to Thief River Falls. She continued living here until she became a resident of the Good Samaritan home in East Grand Forks, several years ago.

She is survived by one son, Milton Hanson, Minneapolis; a daughter, Mrs. Silvy Horken, Atlanta, Ga.; six grandchildren and 11-great-grandchildren.

She was preceded in death by her husband, who died June 27, 1968; a daughter, six brothers and two sisters.

Rites Held For Dr. Ervin Kiesz, Local Dentist

Dr. Ervin Kiesz, 49, local dentist, died Thursday at Northwestern hospital.

Funeral services for Dr. Kiesz were held Sunday at 3:00 p.m., at the Seventh-Day Adventist church with Rev. Phil Young officiating. Mrs. Louise Young was the organist and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Binder, the vocalists. Interment was in the seventh-Day Adventist cemetery at Leola, S.D. The Green Funeral home was in charge of arrangements.

Honorary pallbearers were Dr. Leo Herber, Dr. Jerry Bray, Bruce Cross, Millard Dailey, Dr. S. Peter Roehl, and Gemmie Baker.

Serving as active pallbearers were Darrell Glass, Duane Madden, William Simpson Jr., Jerry Diede, Marvin Wangsnes and Dr. Bryce Bray.

Ervin L. Kiesz was born Sept. 10, 1934 in Eureka, S.D., to Fred and Rose Dollinger Kiesz. He graduated from Plainview Academy, Redfield, S.D., in 1953. Following graduation, he taught in the rural school and farmed with his father for two years.

On Sept. 19, 1954, he was married to Orlene Erickson. The couple farmed for two years.

In 1957, Kiesz was drafted into the U.S. Army. He was attached to the Fifth Army at Fort Sam Houston, Tex., with the medical unit. Later he was transferred to Fort Carson, Colo. Following his discharge in 1959, he attended Union college, Lincoln, Neb., and later entered dental school, graduating from the University of Nebraska school of dentistry in 1965.

The couple then came to Thief River Falls, where Dr. Kiesz purchased Dr. Myron Johnson's dental practice. He continued practicing here until January of this year, when ill health forced his retirement.

He was an active member of the Seventh-Day Adventist church, serving as treasurer, elder and youth leader. He was also a member of the Delta Sigma Delta Fraternity, the American Dental association and the Northwest District dental association.

Surviving are his wife, two daughters: Kimberly and Kari, Thief River Falls; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kiesz, Long Lake, S.D.; and two brothers: Lloyd Kiesz, Woodland, Calif., and Willis, Leola, S.D.

A prayer service will be held Tuesday at 7:30 p.m., at the Green Funeral home where the body will repose from 1:00 to 9:00 p.m.

A complete obituary will be published in the Wednesday edition of the Times.

Mrs. James McDowell Dies In Bemidji

Mrs. James (Frances) McDowell, 75, of Bemidji, mother of Larry McDowell of this city, died Thursday evening at North Country hospital in Bemidji.

Funeral services for Mrs. McDowell will be held today (Monday) at 3:00 p.m., at the Evangelical Covenant church at Bemidji with Rev. Allan Johnson officiating. Interment will be in Greenwood cemetery, Bemidji. The Olson-Schwartz funeral home is in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. McDowell, the former Frances Carter, was born Aug. 31, 1908 at Tama, Iowa to Elmer and Hulda Carter. She attended school in Iowa, Craig, Sask., Canada, and at Bemidji, where she was graduated from high school with the class of 1926. She furthered her schooling by attending Bemidji State Teachers college, and St. Cloud State Teachers college. She was a graduate of Superior State Teachers college, Superior, Wis., and taught school for four years prior to her marriage.

On March 25, 1932, she was united in marriage to James McDowell at Cresco, Iowa. The couple settled in Bemidji in June of 1932 and since then, she had made her home there.

She was a member of the Evangelical Covenant church, Covenant Women and the Esther circle. She was very active in church work and taught Sunday school and Bible school for many years.

She is survived by her husband, a daughter, Barbara McDowell, International Falls; a son, Larry, Thief Rive Falls; a grandson, Baird McDowell, and a granddaughter, Anna Marie McDowell, both of Thief River Falls; and one brother, George Carter, Hibbing.

She was preceded in death by her parents, two sisters, a brother, and one grandson, Adam McDowell.

Adjustable Rate Mortgages Shift Risk To Borrower

If you are planning to buy a home, there are some facts about adjustable-rate mortgages you should be familiar with to secure a good financing package, according to the Minnesota Society of CPAs.

A surge in the number of people looking for mortgage money is predicted because many believe interest rates will rise, according to Michael Sumichrast, chief economist at the National Association of Home Builders. But a relatively new kind of financing, the adjustable-rate mortgage (ARM), casts a shadow of uncertainty over the housing market.

"It's a potentially dangerous situation," says Sumichrast, of the problem posed by ARMs. Analysts fear that ARMs, which allow mortgage rates to fluctuate with swings in interest rates, may lead to an increase in foreclosures. To understand why, take a look at how ARMs work.

In contrast with fixed-rate mortgages (FRMs), which have interest rates that stay the same during the life of the mortgage, ARM rates shift up and down with changes in prevailing interest rates. Typically, they are adjusted at six-month or one, three or five-year intervals. The rate you pay is based on changes in the interest rate on Treasury bills or some other index that is specified in the mortgage contract. This means that the risk of a rise in interest rates is shifted from the lender to the consumer.

Since a lender knows that he will be able to adjust your payments upward if prevailing interest rates rise, he is willing to give you a lower introductory rate on the mortgage. This makes it easier to qualify for an ARM rather than an FRM. That's because a lender usually asks that about 28 to 30 per cent of your gross monthly income be allocable to housing costs. And with the lower initial payments on ARMs, those who wouldn't otherwise qualify for a mortgage may be able to get an ARM. Herein lies the trouble.

Analysts say that many who might qualify for ARMs now may not be able to make their mortgage payments if interest rates rise. Here's why: Let's say you take a $60,000 ARM with a 10 per cent interest rate. If the ARM is adjusted upward one point, the $527 monthly payment becomes a $571 payment. If the rate is adjusted from 10 per cent to 13 per cent, your mortgage payment increases by 26 per cent to $664. It may be impossible for your budget to absorb that kind of payment shock, CPAs warn.

"Consumers who take ARMs should be sure their incomes keep in step with rises in interest rates," recommends Deborah Whiteside, assistant economist at the Mortgage Bankers association. And here are some other ways to make ARMs work for you:

— Find a mortgage lender who is willing to put a ceiling on how high your rate can go when it is adjusted and a ceiling on how high it can go over the life of the mortgage.

— Ask your lender about the spread he charges above the index. The lender's profit comes from the difference between the Treasury bill index and your rate. Typically, that spread is about two or two and one-half points.

— Shop around. For a slightly higher monthly payment you might be able to find a lender offering an ARM that is convertible to an FRM. You may also find a lender offering an ARM that is assumable.

— Check the index used. Three and five-year ARMs use indexes based on longer-term securities. These are more stable and should result in smaller adjustments.

Although ARMs account for about 57 per cent of all mortgages now being written, you may not feel safe with one. People who plan to sell their homes in the near future will benefit the most from the low introductory rates of an ARM, CPAs say. In the current mortgage market, it's probably wise to avoid six-month and one-year ARMs. Those who plan on keeping that home for a longer time and who fear interest rate rises may feel more comfortable paying a little more each month for a conventional fixed-rate mortgage.

Solving Waste Disposal Takes Public Input

One question that is often asked of the Minnesota waste management board is: "What can I do, as an individual citizen, to help deal with the problems of waste — both solid and hazardous waste?"

While the board and other government agencies are working to improve waste management in Minnesota, individual citizens can do a great deal to reduce the need for land disposal, conserve valuable resources and protect the environment. This task begins in the home, notes Robert Dunn, chairman of the waste management board.

The first and most fundamental step in developing a sound household waste management program entails "source separation," or sorting wastes for proper recycling and disposal. Most households usually just put it in the trash can, and it is later picked up by a hauler who brings it to a nearby landfill.

Instead of mixing all these wastes together, newspapers, metals, glass and cardborad should be kept in spearate containers for later recycling. Minneapolis, St. Paul, St. Cloud, St. Louis Park, and other communities now provide pick-up services for recyclable wastes; facilities that accept recyclable materials are located in other communities throughout the state.

But source separation and recycling shouldn't end with just these wastes. Used motor oil and auto batteries — with their hazardous acids — are also recoverable, and can be brought to service stations for recycling.

Another method of recovering resources from waste is through the composting of kitchen, yard and plant wastes. Although it can take anywhere from four months to a year to successfully decompose such wastes, composting requires very little work and yields a useful organic fertilizer for the home garden.

Household hazardous wastes — waste products containing toxic, corrosive, flammable or explosive ingredients — should also be kept out of the trash bin. Instead of throwing out unused portions of household cleaners, disinfectants, pesticides and cosmetics, these and other chemically-based products should be used completely for their intended purpose so they don't need to be land disposed.

If you have large quantities of products containing hazardous ingredients that you cannot use, contact the Minnesota Pollution Control agency (PCA) and they will attempt to find a business that can use the products.

In addition to improving management of household wastes, citizens can also help solve the state's waste management problems by participating in community activities on waste management. If your community already has recycling or composting programs, it needs volunteers to increase participation. If your community doesn't have such programs, your efforts to get recycling and composting programs up and running could be essential.

An additional community concern is the need for other, new facilities as alternatives to landfills. Currently, only five per cent of Minnesota's municipal waste is recycled. One per cent is composted and another one per cent incinerated. The rest is deposited in landfills. However, 77 per cent of these wastes could be managed through recycling (20 per cent), composting (20 per cent), and waste-to-energy incineration (37 per cent).

The need to recover resources and energy from wastes, as well as reduce the quantities of waste we generate has never been more clear. Awareness of the problem is an important step, but a large part of the solution lies in the way we, as individuals, manage our own household wastes. Through resource recovery programs and proper waste disposal, Minnesotans can conserve valuable natural resources and help protect the environment and public health.

For more information on the management of solid and hazardous wastes, contact the Waste Management Board at 7323 58th Ave. No. Crystal, MN 55428; or call (612) 536-0816, (toll-free) 1-800-652-9747.

Use Of Smoke Detectors Is Recommended

"The single most important fire safety device you can install in your home at a very nominal fee," describes Wes Werner, state fire marshal, "is the smoke detector." Werner stresses that every home should have then as well as any place of human habitation.

"Experience shows smoke detectors effectively give early warning to people to escape from a fire," emphasizes Wener. "The first two kinds of installation. The ionization type smoke detector detects actual particles of combustion in the air before sounding a warning. The other type of smoke detector uses a photo electric cell that sounds a warning when enough smoke blocks the light. Both are effective, according to Werner, and he voiced no preference.

He described installation of smoke detectors as either "hard wired," electrically wired using house current or battery operated. Werner said both have advantages and disadvantages. He pointed out, however, that the state building code requires electrically wired smoke detectors for all newly constructed homes while state statute permits battery operated detectors in existing homes. Stae law requires all rental units to have smoke detectors where people sleep — motels, hotels, apartments, boarding homes, etc.

"If homeowners purchase smoke detectors they should quickly install them before they forget and leave them around gathering dust on a shelf," adds Werner. He said there have been cases where there were dwelling fires and detectors were found inside but not installed.

Werner cautions that once a homeowner installs smokes detectors, particularly battery operated, which are initially the most economical; they must be maintained. He encourages weekly testing of the alarm by pressing a test button if the unit is so equipped and a monthly smoke test such as with a lighted cigarette held near the unit till the buzzer sounds.

Werner puts the cost of smoke detectors as low as $7 to $8 and up and concludes that whatever the figure, "it's a cheap price to protect a life!"

Students Can Save Money By Knowing Taxes

Too often, students who earn spending money on a part-time job decide their taxes don't matter and fail to file a tax return. Smart?

Dumb. Every year millions of these students never collect refunds to which they are entitled. According to the Minnesota society of certified public accounts (CPAs), students can save themselves and their families tax dollars by understanding a few basic tax rules.

Even if you are one of those who did not file for a refund of money withheld from your paycheck, it's not too late. You can file an amended tax return for as far back as 1980.

If you earned less than $3,300 (or even more than that) in 1983, your tax refund may be sizeable. Here's why: If you work for only 10 weeks out of the year — as a summer camp counselor, for instance — you are taxed routinely as if you were working 52 weeks. In other words, if you are earning $200 a week at a job, you will be taxed as if you earned $10,400. But since your income for 10 weeks is only $2,000, you have no income tax liability. In fact, if your only source of income is wages of less than $3,300, you don't even have to file a federal return unless you are entitled to a refund. However, you will have to file a Minnesota return on earnings of $2,800 or more.

If you had no tax liability last year and expect none this year, you can ask your employer to not withhold any of your salary. If you know how much you will be earning over a given period of time, you can calculate what the tax will be and ask your employer to withhold the appropriate amount. You don't want to have an excessive amount withheld because that's like giving the government an interest-free loan with your money. And that money could be earning interest for you.

Another point students should consider can save their parents' tax dollars. If you provide more than half of the money needed to support yourself, your parents are not entitled to claim you as their dependent. Consequently, they lose a $1,000 exemption from their income and must pay more tax.

Because you are a student, your parents get certain tax benefits for supporting you. If they pay more than half of the cost of your lodging, clothing, food, medical expenses and education, your parents can claim you as a dependent and receive an exemption. You may also claim a $1,000 exemption for yourself if you file a tax return.

As an example, let's say the total cost of your support is $15,000 a year. If you find that your own earnings are nearing the halfway mark of $7,500, consider stashing away your earnings in a savings or investment account. This is not considered part of your "support." You will save your parents valuable tax dollars because they can claim the $1,000 exemption for providing more than half your support.

Money from grants or scholarships can generally be excluded from income and does not count as part of your support if you are working toward a degree. In addition, income from college work study programs may also be excluded from income, depending on how the college has set up the program. You may want to check with the IRS to see how this may affect you.

If possible, parents may want to consider giving their children tax-free gifts or interest-free loans. Each option has benefits. A mother and father can jointly give up to $20,000 in gifts a year to each of their children. Gift can be invested or spent by a child who is in a lower tax bracket and won't pay as much tax on the investment interest.

Unlike a gift, an interest-free loan will eventually be repaid to the parents. In the meantime, it can be invested or spent by the child. If invested, the child pays less tax on the income generated by the loan money because he is in a lower tax bracket, and the parents can still get an exemption for supporting the child because it is not considered money he is using to support himself.

Dietitian Asks Care In Using Proper Foods

American Dietetics association more than a decade ago, in response to surveys that showed a large percentage of Americans to be malnourished, created National Nutrition Time to generate a greater awareness of the need for proper nutrition.

This month-long campaign sets its main goal at improving and maintaining the nutritional health of all Americans. Every year the emphasis is different with this year's theme being "Everybody Wins with Good Nutrition."

"Since 1984 is an Olympic year and the main focus is being placed on winning, Nutrition Time is following this theme by emphasizing the importance of good nutrition in all areas of life," states Annette Hendrickx, clinical dietitian at Northwestern hospital in Thief River Falls.

What exactly is "good nutrition?" It is eating a variety of foods which will provide the nutrients needed to maintain or even improve health. This can be accomplished by "balancing" or selecting foods each day from each of the four major food groups, which include:

(1) Fruits and vegetables (four servings per day, with one dark green or one deep yellow vegetable every other day).

(2) Whole grain and enriched breads, cereals, pasta, rice, corn and other grains (four servings per day).

(3) Milk, cheeses, regular and low-fat yogurt and ice cream (two servings per day).

(4) Meat, fish, poultry, eggs, beans and nuts (two servings or four ounces daily).

Foods such as butter and margarine, salad dressings and oils, desserts and jellies, provide mostly "empty calories" — calories without many nutrients. When you take in more calories than your body can use, excess weight will result. Therefore, it is important to use empty calorie-type foods in moderation, Hendrickx said.

Along with the promotion of proper nutrition, Nutrition Time is adding a new feature this year. A toll-free National Nutrition Time hotline is being provided. A registered dietitian will staff the hotline and answer nutrition-related questions Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. This service is directed toward consumers who may have questions about nutrition. The number to call is 1-800-722-7758.

Convincing Argument

No prospective employer had better tell me I can't do something because I'm blind!" This is the statement attributed to Hank Dekker, a member of the National Federation of the Blind, in the Minnesota federation newsletter entitled "Blindside."

Dekker's statement of conviction is based on personal experience. Last August 19 the 48-year-old former auto sales manager became the first blind person to sail alone from California to Hawaii.

The coast guard was reportedly amazed when Hank pulled into shore in Hawaii. He had only three years of sailing experience. But he wasn't at all surprised by his ability to get the job done, just as he and other blind persons insist they are fully capable of doing the job they set out to do.

Dekker said his journey started with the realization that ". . . too many handicapped people just sit around — as I did when I lost my sight to glaucoma in 1973 — collecting welfare checks and feeling sorry for themselves." He now operates a sailboat charter in San Francisco, conducting one-hour tours.

The account of the trip in "Blindside" is a fascinating summary of a courageous and self-satisfying trip. The article is as follows:

A terrifying two-day windstorm, head and back injuries, and virtual isolation from the world didn't stop Hank from reaching his destination — on schedule — 23 days and 2,500 miles after leaving San Francisco. He and his sloop, Dark Star, received a hero's welcome in Honolulu. "You have carried the torch and showed society that blind people are not handicapped, but only slightly inconvenienced," said Bill Smith, president of NFB's Hawaii affiliate.

The voyage was anything but smooth. Hank's radio failed almost immediately. Other mishaps occurred throughout the trip, but they were minor compared to the 20-foot waves and 50 mile-per-hour winds that buffeted the 25-foot sailboat for two solid days midway through the journey.

It was a storm Hank will never forget. "I left the big sail up one night and went to sleep," he recalled. "I woke up to a horrible crashing noise, landed in the overhead ceiling of the cabin with the cushions on top of me, and thought 'Is this how it's going to end?' "

The fiberglass rig righted itself in less than a minute, but not before the ocean had claimed a radar detector, a radio directional finder, and other electronic navigational equipment. The boat was badly damaged, the electric generator was upside down, Hank's head was gashed and an old back injury was aggravated. "About this time I was wishing I'd bought a farm in Nebraska," Hank recalled.

After the storm, Hank still had half the journey to look forward to. Fortunately, the wind vane at the stern, which corrects the tiller to the pre-set course whenever wind moves the boat off course, functioned throughout the trip. Braille charts and a braille compass helped him navigate without the electronic equipment. And a talking clock and tape-recorded nautical charts fixed his longitudinal position.

Still, the last leg of the trip was not easy. Hank's only companions were the distant AM stations picked up at night by his portable radio. They reported news that the Coast Guard was concerned about his safety and possible overdue landing. Hank wasn't concerned, however. "I was right on time and knew exactly where I was," he said.

Nothing Seems Sacred

Since we don't want to be the only newspaper in the nation not commenting editorially about the East European nations' boycott of the 1984 summer Olympics, here are a few thoughts on the subject:

(1) Overall quality of the athletes competing at the games will be diminished because the Russians and East Germans have trained some strong competitors. This may make some difference in the record books. From a practical spectator's standpoint, the difference of a few hundredths of a second in a foot race or a few centimeters in a shot put, long jump or javelin toss is materially insignificant.

(2) People in the United States have no reason to be angry at the Russians for doing to us what we did to them four years ago. If there is any anger to be vented, it must come from the athletes who have devoted large parts of their young lives to attaining athletic supremacy and now will be deprived of the opportunity to prove that the pinnacle has been reached.

(3) Absence of the Russian team may well reduce the threat of terrorism which is always a possibility when international tensions are high. For that matter, we don't think the Russian government would be above sacrificing a few of its own citizens if it could blame the United States for the act.

(4) The lustre of the Olympics has been tarnished for a number of years by the questionable amateur status of the competitors. Recently this has been further smudged by the use of drugs to increase performance in a given event. Determining the world's best at a specific event should not be hampered by the question of professionalism. The best each nation has to offer — paid or unpaid — should be allowed to compete.

(5) While it is difficult to separate nationalism from the Olympic games, it should be mentioned only in passing and the prowess of the individual should be supreme. Keeping score of medals earned by nations serves only to politicize the competition.

(6) We hope that the telecasters covering Olympic events will satisfy themselves with commentary on what is taking place in the events and not belabor the absence of other nations; in other words, do the best they can with what they have.

(7) Given the way in which politics can foul up something with as long a tradition of the Olympic games, it seems like nothing is sacred when it comes to international politics.

State Fishing In Norway

Following editorials is from the Minneapolis Star and Tribune:

Minnesota will open a new trade office in Norway soon, clearing the way for bilateral exchanges of smoked carp for lutefisk. More likely, snow plows and furniture are at stake. The office — Minnesota's second in Scandinavia — was commissioned to lure Norwegian business here and to give Minnesota a trade relationship with an area of the world with which it also has strong human bonds. Minnesota's premier traveling salesman, Governor Rudy Perpich, deserves praise for knowing an opportunity when he sees one.

While 11 states have trade offices in Brussels, Perpich wanted to get Minnesota into fresh areas: He targeted Scandinavia, and Taiwan and Korea. An office opened in Stockholm last October is working with several Swedish firms to expand here or enter joint ventures with Minnesota companies. The second office, to be operated through the Sons of Norway in Oslo, will expand that effort to other parts of Scandinavia. Minnesota's special trade representative, William Dietrich, sees little market for Minnesota products in Scandinavian countries, but a potential to attract some of their companies here. The Norwegian government, eager to develop non-oil industries, is encouraging manufacturers to develop U.S. markets and locate plants here. "If they are interested in the U.S. market, we want to position Minnesota as a gateway," Dietrich says.

Part of the strategy is to make sure that foreign businesses know about the state. If a furniture trade show in Chicago attracts Norwegian or Finnish furniture builders, Minnesotans will be there with tales of rich forest lands in the north. If a Norwegian snow plow builder wants to open a plant in the United States, Minnesotans will have tales of plow-challenging snowfalls and business opportunities. If a Swedish company eyes the United States, Minnesotans will talk of advantageous tax reciprocity.

With the marketplace increasingly international, Minnesota needs aggressive representation to establish itself as a major stopping point on the worldwide trade route. Trade offices abroad will encourage other countries to plant offices, and business commitments here. As Minnesota looks inward for changes to improve its economy, it is wisely reaching outward for a bigger share of the world market.

Borrowed Nonsense:

The indignant soldier was writing to his congressman about mistreatment in the military. "I can only describe the food in the mess hall as slop," he wrote. "I wouldn't feed it to pigs for fear they would get sick and die. It would be rejected by any decent garbage man. And to make matters worse, sir, they serve such small portions."

Living happily ever after depends in part on what you're after.

There is more than a little truth in the slogan on the natural foods store which proclaims, "Our hamburgers are something else."

CAPITOL COMMENTARY

by LeRoy Stumpf

State Senator — District 1

During the 1984 legislative session, I was pleased to see a number of major items passed which should contribute to our desperately-needed national effort to improve our overall farm economy.

In addition to the $73 million in overall property tax relief approved in the tax cut package to assist farmers, small businesses and homeowners in general, over $30 million was exclusively targeted toward aiding our state's farmers.

The major property tax relief provisions included in the tax cut bill approved this session were: raising the $2,000 cap on agricultural mill credits to $4,000 and increasing the tax credit available on the first 640 acres of homestead and the first 320 acres of non-homestead properties.

The key targeting provision in the bill will earmark increased tax relief to property owners who are experiencing 1984 tax increases of 30 per cent or more. Additional benefits included in this reform package provide for some conservation tillage credits, various farm loss modification adjustments and a return to the split-classification system of taxation which worked well before 1983. An improved wetlands credit program for farmers will eligible wetlands on their property was also added to the measure.

Another major bill which should help farmers financially is a bill I sponsored which qualifies farmers for low-interest loans on equipment, and other capital expenditures. This measure authorizes the state's energy and economic development agency to finance up to $30 million in industrial revenue bond (IRB) loans to farmers.

Under this new program, eligible farmers could apply for loans of up to $100,000 each, with interest rates expected to fluctuate between eight and 10 per cent, compared to the most recently-announced 12.5 per cent prime loan lending rates. Although they would have no financial liability stake in the program, local lending institutions such as banks would be used to process and administer these loans.

I pushed for the passage of this bill because a similar program has already been successfully implemented in other states, such as North Dakota, where Minnesota investment firms have sold IRB loans in small quantities to many farmers, with these loans valued at $18 million and handled through 40 different lending institutions.

Based on the greater needs and available capital in Minnesota, I convinced the legislature that such a program could be even more successful here. It should be noted that under the provisions of this bill, land purchases could not be made, but the money could be used for capital projects, equipment and other depreciable property, including livestock.

Other important measures approved this session which should help farmers were a bill to provide $12 million in agri-processing tax exemptions, the implementation of a voluntary statewide land preservation and conservation program, and resolutions passed to encourage greater consumption of milk in our schools and the state at-large by making milk the state drink.

The continuing problem of high property taxes in relation to the value of our farmland must be addressed by the state, and I am hopeful that the Latimer tax study commission now examining the entire tax issue for the legislature will come out with some major recommendations which can benefit our rural agricultural areas.

If you have any questions or concerns regarding this or any other legislative issue, please feel free to contact my office at 306 Capitol Building, St. Paul, 55155, or call (612) 296-5660.

Understand Basic Rules For Investing

Any good coach tells his players, "Get the basics right and you'll be a winner." Investing is no different, according to the Minnesota society of CPAs, which advises following certain investing rules to be successful.

That sounds simple but, nevertheless, most CPAs and investment advisors will tell you that their clients usually manage their investments with total disregard for those rules. Here, simply stated, are the basic rules to help you win in the investment game.

Before thinking about investing, be sure that you have enough on hand to pay your household bills, that you have adequate insurance coverage on property, health and life, and that you have a three to six month cash reserve in a money market type account.

Choose investment opportunities that suit your temperament. If you shudder at the thought of losing any of your investment dollars, speculative investments are not for you. But if you enjoy the risk involved in such investing, you may end up with a larger profit than you would in a more conservative venture.

Before you get caught up in the excitement, put down your investment objectives on paper. You need to state how long you are willing and able to tie up your money in any single venture, what kind of return you hope to receive, and when you would be satisfied with a profit and move your money into another investment.

Balance your investment portfolio with investments that run the gamut of risk levels. Cushion speculative investments in stocks, for example, with a purchase of the less active treasury bonds.

See that the professionals you hire work as a team. Ask your CPA to consult with your securities broker, lawyer, insurance agent, and any other investment advisor you've engaged.

Review your investments twice a year. What may have been a wise investment several months back may have lost its luster today. A slowdown in inflation, for instance, can make the effective rate of return on bonds extremely attractive. When the inflation picture changes, that will change also.

Sometimes it's wise to let yourself go with the flow. If the stock market has given you handsome profits and it appears the market will continue to perform well, don't let the jitters push you out of stocks prematurely. Along those lines, consider the case of mutual funds. If you study the performance of the most successful mutual funds over a six month period, many analysts say you should switch your investment into one of these top performers.

Understand how your tax bracket will affect your capital gains and interest income. Generally, if you are in the 40 per cent or higher tax bracket, you may need certain tax-advantaged investments. But, it's best to regard the return on the investments as your prime goal.

Abiding by these rules will not guarantee success. But they can keep you from taking some false steps.

Finally, don't take tips. Good advice comes from research and professional judgment. Tips usually come from empty speculation. Free advice is worth what you pay for it.

U Of M Writer States IRAs Can Be Costly

by Walter W. Heller
University of Minnesota

Until recently we were being bombarded with ads for IRAs (and Keoghs), urging us to cash in on those juicy tax breaks before April 16, even if we had to borrow to do it. And if we hustled, we could pay back a good chunk of the loan with the tax refund our IRA could produce. Aye, there's the rub.

Main idea of the IRAs (individual retirement accounts) was to increase the pool of national savings and thereby lubricate investments and step up economic growth. Well, the IRAs may be a fine instrument for building up a retirement kitty, but as an incentive for greater savings, they have been a flop. All the evidence indicates that IRAs are generating bigger federal deficits without generating much savings.

Brookings institution study, by Harvey Galper of Brookings and Eugene Steuerle of the U.S. treasury department, estimates that more than three-fourths of the dollars put into IRA pension accounts are simply shifts of assets, that is, taken out of other savings and plugged into IRAs. People would rather switch than save.

And it's happening on a far more vast scale than expected. The treasury department predicted that taxpayers would put $5 to $10 billion a year in IRAs. Not even close. Some $28 billion was pumped into IRA accounts in 1982 and about the same last year. Not surprisingly, top-bracket taxpayers who save $1,000 of tax on a $2,000 deduction signed on in droves. Affluent taxpayers who can readily switch other savings into IRAs cost the treasury a bundle without adding a dime to savings.

And now, even in the face of our mountainous deficits, the treasury has floated the proposal that in families where only one spouse works, the IRA deduction should be boosted to $4,000 a year, again a break tilted toward the upper-income groups. And another tax break for savings, enacted in 1981, would enable couples to deduct up to $900 of savings interest per year.

One hopes that the Congress, in its deficit-cutting efforts, will cancel this new benefit before it goes into effect and will reject the costly expansion of IRAs. Congress ought to go one step further: disallow the deduction of interest paid on loans made to take advantage of tax breaks for savings like IRAs, just as interest on loans to carry tax-exempt securities is disallowed. But Congress, even in its deficit-cutting mood, won't go that far.

HOMEOWNERS

If the home you now own and live in was not being used by you — or by the previous owner — as a home on January 2, 1984, you can reduce the amount of property tax you will pay on your home in 1985 by applying to have the property classified as a homestead.

However, you must have moved into the home you now own and live in before June 2, 1984, to apply to have the property classified as a homestead.

As a result of having the home you own and live in classified as a homestead, your property will be taxed at a lower percentage of its value than if it is not classified as a homestead. Also, you will be eligible to receive the homestead credit — an amount which will be subtracted from the property tax you will pay in 1985.

To find out how to apply to have the home you own and live in classified as a homestead, contact your county assessor Gerard Dolleen in Thief River Falls at 681-3843.

You must apply before June 15, 1984.

The outstanding sophomore title was one of 16 personality awards which were presented during the program.

U.S. Archives Records Are Not In Order

by David M. Maxfield
Smithsonian News Service

It's all too easy to lose yourself at the National Archieves — in several ways.

After days, nay weeks or months, sifting through old records in search of key information, researchers who at last come upon their paper prey have been known to shout out whoops of excitement in the reading rooms.

But for others, the Archives can be one frustrating paper chase. Simply put, the archives is not a library, its records are not systematically arranged by subject and by name. "Don't ever get the impression that you can go right to a particular document," admonishes one Archives spokesman.

Instead of subject classifications, the billions of papers at the Archives in Washington, D.C., and at its 11 regional branches, are arranged in a deceptively simple manner, by their place of origin (that is, the originating government agency; and by the order in which they were created. To do otherwise, both archivists and seasoned researchers insist, would destroy their original character as evidence of the business conducted by a federal office and deminish their value for varying research needs.

For example: Rearrangement of records of an overseas agency by subject to suit the needs of the researcher of immigration patterns might disorganize materials needed by the diplomatic historian. Some years ago, someone tried to put the records of the Continental Congress in subject order, and the result, one Archives staff member says, "is a colossal mess." Transmittal letters are separated from what was transmitted and so on. In this particular case, the papers later were painstakingly indexed to remedy the disorder.

Before turning to the Archives, staff members and other experts advise that research questions be framed as specifically as possible since the system is more demanding than familiar card catalogs. Rather than stating that you are interested in researching, say, the educational backgrounds of cavalry officers in the 19th century, they suggest a more precise approach: "I am working on a biography of General Sheridan, and I am especially interested in his activities as head of the Western department of the Army following the Civil War. He held that post from 1866 to 1867."

One archivist strongly recommends the power of associative thinking. When trying to locate background above an individual — Clara Barton, for example — think in terms of her interests and what offices of the federal government were concerned with relief work during her day.

Archives also provides a number of "finding aids" that help researchers know what is available. In the "Guide to the Archives of the United States" (Government printing office) can be found brief descriptions of records available under each of the federal government's agencies — past and present — including land grants, bounty warrants, climate statistics, patent information, court proceedings and many, many more. The trick is determining which agency may have been involved with the area of research interest.

Not to be overlooked in finding one's way around the Archives is the staff itself. "Many of the archivists have been there a long while, so they know the materials and what papers are available," one official comments. "The success of archival research often depends on the archivist," Herman Viola, author of a new Archives history, agrees.

For the best results in conducting Archives research, the staff advises everyone from novice genealogists to seasoned scholars to keep three points in mind:

— Know as much as you can about the administrative history of the U.S. government.

— Seek out archivists interested in your area of study.

— Be imaginative in your research for relevant documents can be found in many places.

Air Pollution Can Aggravate Human Lungs

Air pollution can corrode metal and erode stone. It can make paper brittle, leather disintegrate and rubber crack. But it hits hardest at the human body, particularly the lungs, according to the American Lung association of Minnesota.

Pollution makes the human air passages constrict, causing breathing difficulties. It attacks the body's defenses and leaves a person more susceptible to infection; and it contributes to the development of chronic lung disease.

Air pollution can be a factor in colds and other acute respiratory infections, but even more importantly, in emphysema, lung cancer, chronic bronchitis and asthma, it can become a killer.

Asthma is the most common chronic disease of childhood. It can begin as early as the first weeks of life, and accounts for about half of all chronic childhood illnesses. One-fourth of school absenteeism can be attributed to asthma, and more than 21,000 children in Minnesota between five and 14 years of age have the disease.

Air pollution pours into the air from millions of vehicles that keep us mobile; from the resources that over 200 million consumers turn to waste every year; from the 11 million businesses and plants that operate daily, and, indoors, from cigarette smoke.

Automobile engines emit carbon monoxide, hydrocarbons, and nitrogen oxides, as well as lead from their exhaust systems. In addition, the action of sunlight on exhaust fumes produces photochemical smog which results in another pollutant, peroxyacetal nitrate (or PAN).

Before the national Clean Air act came into being, heavy air pollution blanketed industrial Donora, PA, for several days. Out of 14,000 residents, 6,000 became ill and 20 died. Most of the victims were the elderly and those with heart and lung disease.

Since that time, scientists have conducted various studies which point to air pollution as being a major factor in lung disease. For instance, an Erie County, NY study showed that children were hospitalized for asthma at a rate of 51 per 100,000 where air pollution was high, but only at 32 per 100,000 where air pollution was low.

A series of breathing performance tests was given to 2,364 New York City school children between the ages of five and 13, and the results indicated that the highly polluted air to which the older ones (nine to 13) had been exposed for five to 10 years, had reduced their lungs' respiratory capacity.

American Lung association of Minnesota is working for the restoration of clean air. They urge residents to participate in public hearings related to regulations or variances, work with others for less polluting solid waste disposals, and obey specific air pollution controls in effect in individual communities.

American Lung association of Minnesota has many programs designed to help children with asthma and their families learn how to better control their disease, including Camp Superkids (the fun camp for kids with asthma) and "Asthma Update", a quarterly newsletter.

For information on asthma programs, air pollution, and other lung diseases, contact the American Lung Association of Minnesota, 614 Portland Avenue, St. Paul, MN 55102 (1-800-642-5864).

VDT Operators Need Correct Light, Chair

Human eyes evolved to meet the needs of generations past, especially the need for efficient distance vision. Now many human eyes are confronted with a new challenge, the Minnesota safety council notes.

Working at the video display terminal (VDT) calls upon eyes to perform a new task involving intense concentration on characters very close at hand. And when eyes change their focus from far to near, several eye muscles are called into play. One muscle changes the shape of the lens to focus clearly at close range. Other muscles move the eye quickly, as from one word to another. Still others turn the eyes inward, pointing them together at the VDT screen.

These physiological details account for common complaints of VDT operators — headaches; blurred or double vision; itchy, burning or tired eyes; flickering sensations.

What can be done to ameliorate these complaints? The most important steps are controlling the physical environment.

Lighting and glare control can make a big difference. Overall illumination should be at about half the customary office lighting level. With fluorescent lighting, a lower level of illumination can be achieved by replacing "cool white" with "cool white deluxe" tubes. Reflected glare on VDT screens may be minimized by locating them so windows and other light sources aren't behind the operator.

Drapes or shades will reduce glare, as will shielded flexible lamps which direct lighting onto work surfaces as required. Operators should not face unshaded windows or other light sources and should avoid wearing light-colored clothing which causes a reflection on the screen.

Proper positioning of materials and operator also improves VDT operation. Adjustable chairs allow the operator to sit at the proper angle, with the screen 10 to 20 degrees below the user's straight-ahead vision and the screen 14 to 20 inches from the eyes. Reference materials should be the same distance from the eyes as the VDT screen and as close to the screen as possible to avoid frequent large head and eyemovements.

American Optometric association has an excellent booklet, "Vision and the VDT Operator"; a free copy is available by sending a long-self-addressed, stamped envelope to Communications Division, American Optometric Association, 243 North Lindbergh Boulevard, St. Louis, Missouri 63141.

Doctors Can Now Control Epilepsy Through Surgery

by Ralph Heussner
University News Service

Annette was only a toddler when her first epileptic seizure occurred. "It was a frightening experience for the whole family," her father recalled.

As the problem worsened during the next few years, doctors experimented with various combinations of anti-convulsant drugs before the severe attacks were effectively brought under control.

But when she was 17, for no apparent reason and despite medication, the seizures returned with even greater frequency and intensity. Annette suffered from intractable epilepsy, experiencing frequent "drop attacks" — she would suddenly lose consciousness and fall to the ground — that caused deep cuts on her forehead, bruises on her skull and a broken jaw. There were days when she fell 20 or 30 times. As many people with this unusual illness must do, Annette eventually resorted to wearing protective headgear resembling a hockey helmet to prevent further injury.

After another round of experimental medicines failed to control seizures, doctors advised Annette and her parents that a surgical procedure — performed at only a few hospitals in the United States — offered the last hope of curing the baffling illness.

In late 1983, 21-year-old Annette underwent the special surgery, called the corpus callostomy, at University of Minnesota Hospitals in Minneapolis. The four-hour operation involved cutting the corpus callosum, a band of connective fibers located deep inside the brain between its two hemispheres. The aim was to confine future seizure activity to one side of the brain, thus lessening its impact.

Surgical control of epilepsy is dramatic, sometimes controversial and always the treatment of last resort. Less than 10 per cent of patients who are evaluated by the Minnesota comprehensive epilepsy program (CEP) are considered for surgery.

There are two types of epilepsy surgery; the temporal lobectomy with persistent temporal lobe seizures, where the electrical misfiring is confined to the brain's temporal lobes, and the corpus callostomy for patients such as Annette with uncontrolled drop attacks.

University of Minnesota was a pioneer of the temporal lobectomies in the 1940s. The surgery involves removing a tiny section of the temporal lobe at the site of the seizure's origin.

"To be successful, we must show that seizures are coming from only one of the temporal lobes," explained university neurosurgeon Robert Maxwell. "If you remove part of one lobe and the other is damaged, the patient can have a problem with memory and speech."

Locating the exact site of the seizure used to be one of the most stressful operations — for both neurosurgeon and patient. The patient had to be kept partially awake during open-brain surgery while the surgeon used electrodes to test for seizures. An anesthetized brain won't reveal seizures, but the seizures detected in the operating room were often caused by stress and weren't typical of the patient's problem.

In the past year, Maxwell modified the electrode monitoring so the patient can be completely anesthetized. Now the origin of the seizures if probed during a period of everyday living following a preliminary operation. The procedure is illustrated by the following patient history.

Jeff, a 24-year-old patient, had seizures in the form of aimless, unconscious walking. The seizures also involved the lip-smacking and fidgety movements more typical of temporal lobe epilepsy.

On the day of his surgery, Jeff was strapped into a surgical chair, his head encased in a steel support. After removing a four-inch square piece of Jeff's skull, the neurosurgeon connected 64 tiny electrodes to sites of the temporal lobe. The electrode-conductor plate, placed between the scalp and the skull, was covered with protective gauze.

Within a few days, Jeff was taking short walks in the nursing station. Dangling from the ceiling, about every 15 feet, were surveillance wires hooked into elaborate electronic equipment located in a nearby room where technicians monitored Jeff's brain activity. The electrodes can detect the slightest seizure and pinpoint its origin in the brain within a few centimeters.

Back in the operating room two weeks later, the neurosurgeon, armed with an electrical roadmap of Jeff's brain, reopened the skull, disconnected the electrodes and removed a tiny piece of the temporal lobe identified as the source of the disorder. Jeff's epilepsy was cured.

By analyzing the occurrence of seizures in a relatively natural living environment for a two or three-week period, physicians can more accurately determine their origin.

"We can map out where the seizure originates. We know the pattern of spread, and how it relates to speech, movement and sensation," Maxwell explained. "When we go back in, we know exactly what's important and what's not."

Corpus callostomy is done in rare cases in very debilitated patients like Annette who suffer frequent drop attacks that can result in multiple injuries. They are so heavily sedated that they may appear to be retarded, and most remain at home.

In the early 1940s some patients with generalized seizures — the kind where misguided electrical activity spreads across the entire brain — underwent experimental surgery to sever the corpus callosum. The corpus callosum is the connective pathway through which the two sides of the brain communicate. But cutting this connection, the excessive electrical activity could be kept on one side of the brain.

Although these early patients showed improvement and few side effects, the technique was not generally accepted until it was refined in the early 1970s. Today, the University of Minnesota is one of a handful of medical centers where it is performed.

Of the 21 patients who have undergone the surgery at the university, 17 found that their seizures had been controlled. Seizures continued in the other four cases.

Side effects of the surgery are minimal, doctors point out. There may be some post-surgery weakness and speech impairment, caused by the swelling of the brain, but they usually clear within a month after surgery.

Who should undergo seizure surgery, and when, are questions of continuing debate and research.

"There are an awful lot of people who could benefit from seizure surgery who aren't getting it," Maxwell said. "The surgery has been shown to be effective in about 75 per cent of cases — 45 per cent completely free of seizures — with only a one per cent mortality dating back to 1929. These patients were felt to be hopeless without surgery, but the operation gives them the chance of reaching their full potential."

Robert J. Gumnit, a neurologist in the medical school and CEP director, foresees that more patients will be referred for surgery in the future. But he believes that advances in other areas will also contribute to the ultimate goal of complete control of all seizures.

"Like anything else in medicine, it's hard for people to understand that it might not be something that's new out of the bottle, but perhaps a better way of organizing the care," he said. "So what I'm preaching is referral to medical centers with modern techniques and special expertise. It may not be as dramatic as a new drug or new vaccine, but I think it is going to make a big difference."

Aerobic Swim Class Offered Through AVTI

Swimming aerobics will be offered by the Thief River Falls area vocational technical institute from 8 to 9 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays, for six consecutive weeks, beginning June 5 and 7, at the Franklin middle school pool.

Ability to swim is not required for enrollment in this exercise class. Participants may register for one or both nights per week, with tuition set at $7.50 for one night and $15 for two. Instructor will be Snooky Bondy.

Pre-registration is required and may be accomplished by calling the adult education department, 681-5424.

Two From TRF Honored by BSU At Convocation

Ken Froschheiser and Jean Marquis, both of Thief River Falls, were among over 100 Bemidji State University (BSU) students and faculty who were recognized for outstanding achievements in their academic fields at the annual spring honors convocation.

Froschheiser, a senior majoring in criminal justice, received an award as the outstanding senior in external studies.

Marquis, a senior majoring in computer science, was selected as the outstanding student in computer science.

Now you have three ways and up to three times as long to get your best return from wild oat control.

This year, more than ever, Carbyne® 2EC herbicide gives you the best return on investment from wild oat control. Because this year there are two new tank-mixes with Carbyne. These combinations cut your cost of wild oat control and open the application window clear up to the four- or five-leaf stage of wild oat.

Take a close look at your wild oat control options this season:

Carbyne 2EC herbicide or Carbyne tank-mixes cut costs and give returns you can take to the bank.

Use Carbyne at the two-leaf stage. This is your best choice for lowest cost wild oat control. This is the treatment that can return you up to twice as much as other post-emergence treatments (chart) for every $1 you invest in wild oat control in wheat. And your initial application cost is up to $6 less than other single post-emerge herbicides, too.

Tank mix Carbyne with Hoelon. Where you have heavy wild oat infestations with multiple flushes — or where weather keeps you out of the field at the two-leaf stage — you can still get excellent wild oat control at a cost-effective price. Tank mix Carbyne with Hoelon (see the label for recommended rates) and you can control wild oat from the 1½-leaf stage clear through the 4-leaf stage.

You'll still save. Cost for this brand new tank-mix treatment is up to $3 less than Hoelon applied alone, and the wild oat control is equally good.

Tank mix Carbyne with Avenge. If you're looking for control of heavy wild oat infestations in barley, winter wheat and many spring wheat varieties, this is the ideal tank-mix. It is up to $3 lower in cost than Avenge alone, yet you don't sacrifice wild oat control.

Carbyne plus Avenge provides the largest window of application against wild oat — from the 1½-leaf stage to the 5-leaf stage.

Pick the Carbyne program that fits your needs. Now you have the choices you need to beat wild oat — at a price that pays off. Pick the cost you want. Pick the application window that meets your needs. See your herbicide supplier for all the details on the Carbyne 2EC program that's right for you.

The Carbyne Advantage... your best return on investment.

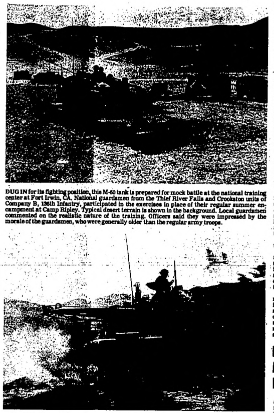
GETTING READY TO MOVE to a new area, troops in training at Fort Irwin, CA, roll up a tent fly attached to a command track armored personnel carrier. The command tracks are taller than the normal APC. Troops from Company B of the Minnesota national guard joined other guard units and the regular army in the training exercise. They operated against trained regular army units called the Opposing Forces (OPFOR) which simulated Russian-army maneuvers, tactics and equipment.



DUG IN for its fighting position, this M-60 tank is prepared for mock battle at the national training center at Fort Irwin, CA. National guardsmen from the Thief River Falls and Crookston units of Company B, 136th Infantry, participated in the exercises in place of their regular summer encampment at Camp Ripley. Typical desert terrain is shown in the background. Local guardsmen commented on the realistic nature of the training. Officers said they were impressed by the morale of the guardsmen, who were generally older than the regular army troops.

COMMANDER of this armored personnel carrier (APC) checks the area with binoculars during training at Fort Irwin, CA. The local units of the national guard training there brought along four Jeeps, four trucks and eight APCs. Overall the exercise involved 26 Jeeps with 20 trailers, 42 trucks with 35 trailers and 40 APCs from the battalion, requiring 29 railroad cars for shipment to the training center ahead of troop arrival.

M-60 TANK with towing and lifting arm attached makes its way through the desert at Fort Irwin, CA, during training conducted by the Second Battalion, 136th Infantry, Minnesota national guard. National guardsmen from Thief River Falls and Crookston units participated in the exercises.

Local Guardsmen Train In California Desert

After three weeks of desert training exercises at Fort Irwin, CA, local national guardsman were ready to carry salt shakers filled with sand for their food to prevent withdrawal symptoms. But along with sand in their boots and sunburn memories, they brought back the experience of having taken part in a most realistic war-time exercise.

The 136th Infantry was the first mechanized infantry battalion to go through the national training center program, and it fared far better than most of the regular army officers had anticipated.

The exercise involved 3,600 people in training from the division, including 800 national guardsmen from Thief River Falls, Crookston, Bemidji, Park Rapids, Wadena, Fergus Falls, Detroit Lakes and Moorhead armories. About 135 were from the Crookston and Thief River Falls units..

General Cole of the training center said his attitude toward the guard's preparedness had changed as he said the guard units performed as well or better than regular army units. The units were on alert 24 hours a day once the exercise began.

About 20 per cent of the guardsmen from this area participating had previous regular military experience. SSG Carl Magers of Plummer, a veteran of Vietnam, said it was difficult to compare actual combat with the simulated situations at Fort Irwin. Emotional stresses may have been greater in California, he said, because the part-time soldier was not acclimated solely to the military effort and had a greater tendency to worry about things which may have been left undone at home.

Officers said it was true that there was a temptation to take greater risks at the training center than in actual combat, but that the realism was still there. Three days of the training involved live fire exercise against OPFOR targets. The tank platoon fired live ammunition and even live mortar fire was used. The only injuries, however, were generally confined to someone slamming a hand or finger in a hatch cover.

Temperatures on the desert ranged from 36 degrees at night to 105 degrees during the day. All living was done in the field with tents because no barracks were used, although it didn't rain a drop in the three weeks of training.

The exercises were carefully observed by two-star and three-star generals and Pentagon representatives. Radio transmissions were tape recorded and observer controllers provided critiques of actions taken.

Participating from the Thief River Falls unit were the following:

1LT Richard D. Thornton, SSG Arthur J. Braun, SSG Samual J. Foust, SP5 Peter L. Wold, PFC Charles Simenson, SGT Mark Hedlund, SP4 Lloyd Dyrdal, SFC James A. Bonds, SP5 Jerel Melhouse, PFC Russell Landrus, SSG Jerry Skaaren, SP4 Robert Forberg, SSG Michael Hruby, SGT Randy Olson, SP4 Craig Danielson, SSG Bruce Johnson, SGT Michael Trudeau, SGT Royal Oyster, SP4 Mark Stenberg, PV2 Hans Gregory, SP4 Jeffrey Olson and SP4 David Solberg, all of Thief River Falls;

Also 1LT Dennis Cameron, Warroad; 1SG Clarence Gagner, Brooks; SP4 John Krueger, SSG Carl Magers and SGT Donald Mack, Plummer; SGT Steven Anderson, Grand Forks, ND; PSG Stephen Evans and SP4 Greggory Iverson, Greenbush; PFC Edward Gulden, Warren; SSG Randy Eckstein, Bird Island; SP4 Randall Mostrom and SGT Anthony Lundeen, Trail; PFC Gregory Rowley and SSG Carl Peterson, St. Hilaire;

Also PFC Dwight Bedard and PFC John Baker, Hallock; PFC Allen Theroux and SGT Maury Byron, Red Lake Falls; PV2 Lyndon Erickson, Middle River; SGT Mikel Pietruszewski, Stephen; PV2 Jerome Rominski, Strandquist; CPL Morice Hendricks, Viking; PV2 Bobbie White, Fosston; SGT Patrick Mayernik and SP4 Timothy Paquin, Oklee; SGT David Runner, Roseau; SGT Steven Davis and SSG James Urness, Bagley; PFC Kevin Braget, Lake Bronson; and PVI Darryl Rasmussen, Newfolden.

A report on the exercise provided by the national guard headquarters in St. Paul and written by SSG Charles R. Reimler Jr. includes the following information:

The last elements of the victorious 2nd Battalion, 136 Infantry (Mechanized), Minnesota army national guard, headquartered in Moorhead, have returned home from the national traning center (NTC), Fort Irwin, Ca.

The 2-136 defeated the Opposing Forces (OPFOR) in two of four force-on-force training battles during its first training at the NTC in the Mojave desert. The Minnesota guards were the first national guard unit and the third unit overall in the three-year history of the NTC to defeat the OPFOR in the night defensive battle.

Army units are not tested or scored for record at the NTC. They are there to learn and experience a little of what the first day of combat is like to help them survive if the time ever comes when they may need those skills.

"We beat the OPFOR the day before in our offensive flex mission," said Battalion Commander Lieutenant Colonel Ross. S. Fortier, "and when I talked to their commander after the battle he told me 'You beat my little guys today, but my big boys are gonna beat up on you tomorrow!' Then we beat up on his big boys also and we really stuck it to 'em." The little guys and big boys the OPFOR commander referred to were the mechanized infantry and the armor (tanks).

The 2-136 is a "roundout" battalion for the 1st Infantry Division, stationed at Ft. Riley, KS. "Roundout" means the 2-136 would become an organic part of the "The Big Red One" in the event of a call up for a national emergency. LTC Fortier said the cooperation between the guards and the regular army was very good and the combined elements worked well together.

The training at the NTC is as close as one can get to real combat short of war. It is designed to train the team of infantry, armor and artillery found in the battalion task force (BTF), the army's primary combined arms maneuver element.

With over 1,000 square miles (the size of Rhode Island), Ft. Irwin is large enough to fire all the BTF weapons and allows units to maneuver over realistic distances. Located in the high desert country halfway between Los Angeles and Las Vegas, the NTC is remote enough to allow the use of Radio Electronic Combat (jamming). Its airspace is restricted to allow the free use of close air support of ground support of ground troops without endangering civil aviation.

Soldiers and vehicles are equipped with Multiple Integrated Laser Engagement System (MILES) equipment. The MILES gear is a family of eye-safe lasers that are coded to size, range and probability of a "kill" with the weapons used on the computer monitored battlefield. In other words a soldier can shoot and "kill" another soldier with his MILES equipped rifle, but to put a tank out of action he must use an anti-tank weapon.

The entire battlefield is monitored by personnel in the NTC computer control center. Vehicles on both sides are fitted with an electronic "white-box" that sends data from the MILES gear onboard plus the vehicle's location and identity to the control center. High on the surrounding mountain peaks there are remote controlled video camers with high-power zoom lenses that visually monitor the battlefield action. Its no wonder that the NTC is nicknamed "Fort Atari."

The OPFOR is a professional force of U.S. soldiers trained and equipped to replicate a Soviet motorized rifle regiment. They use American vehicles visually modified to look like Soviet equipment. Actual Soviet armored personnel carriers are used to carry OPFOR infantry. The OPFOR soldiers dress in Warsaw Pact style uniforms. Through their co stant practice and home-court advantage they have become an awesome force to reck on with.

Along with the force-on-force training against the OPFOR, units on rotation through the NTC have the unique experience of very special live-fire scenarios. In the defensive scenario the BTF is "attacked" by computer controlled pop-up targets that "shoot back" with pyrotechnic firing devices that simulate enemy firing.

They also have black smoke bombs that simulate a "hit" by the BTF troops. The targets pop up in successively closer bands to simulate movement.

In the offensive scenario different targets represent 30 kilometers of the Soviet security zone defense. Some of the targets are even able to fire back with "smokey sam" styrofoam missiles to simulate Soviet Sagger anti-tank guided missiles. Combined with the computer's ability to speed up or slow down the "enemy" advance these factors help make live fire at the NTC as realistic as possible. The 2-136 did very well on their live fire training.

Many members of the 2-136 and its volunteer filler troops from other units in Minnesota, North Dakota, Wisconsin and Iowa, made personal sacrifices to attend training at the NTC. They missed school in the middle of the spring session and took off work longer than the normal two weeks for annual training. Some even gave up their summer vacations by dropping spring session at school and signing up for summer school. The main body of the battalion was at the NTC for three weeks but the advance and rear parties were away from home for up to a month.

A year ago Major General James G. Sieben, Adjutant General, Mn. said it was "a real honor" for the 2-136 to be chosen to attend training at the NTC and now he is very proud of the outstanding job they did there. "The men's performance at Ft. Irwin shows they are truly one of the finest mechanized infantry battalions in the world!" LTC Fortier said with pride.

DOT Continues Experiments On De-icers

Efforts to find a de-icing chemical, that will provide safe roads for the traveling public while protecting highways, vehicles, and the environment, will continue this summer when the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) experiments with a flexible-type pavement.

Research efforts by Mn-DOT and the University of Minnesota will focus on a flexible pavement ("Plus Ride") that breaks and sheds ice as it bends and on calcium magnesium acetate (CMA), a chemical that shows promise as an effective, non-corrosive alternative to salt, said Lawrence F. McNamara, Mn-DOT assistant commissioner, Operations.

Testing will also continue next year on urea, an agricultural chemical tried by Mn-DOT this winter.

Urea tests will be limited to preventing frost on bridge decks in the Duluth area, McNamara said, because of urea's unsatisfactory performance this winter on two sections of state highway.

McNamara said the tests show urea works much more slowly than salt and lacks salt's ability to remove ice and compacted snow at very low temperatures.

"Urea does work as a de-icer," McNamara said, "but our tests indicate it doesn't provide an acceptable level of safety for the state's motorists."

Mn-DOT tested urea on the southbound lanes of I-35 near North Branch and on TH 95 between St. Cloud and Princeton from February 1 to mid-March.

On I-35 it was observed that urea mixed with sand took about four hours longer than salt mixed with sand applied to the adjacent northbound lanes to clear ice and compacted snow.

The TH 95 test was intended to use straight urea. However, because of the particles' small, rounded shape and their light weight, the urea had to be mixed with sand to keep it from running out of the truck and over the top of the applicator.

McNamara said the experiment with urea on TH 95 showed that it worked much more slowly than salt and was frequently blown off the road before it could begin to act.

Urea also was shown to be much more expensive than salt. Because its melting action is not as strong as salt's, 1.6 times as much urea had to be used. Cost for urea is about $300 a ton, about 10 times the cost for salt.

About 72 tons of urea were used by Mn-DOT this winter.

McNamara said despite unsatisfactory results with urea, Mn-DOT will continue its efforts to find de-icing methods that are economical, effective and less corrosive than salt.

"We will experiment with mechanical methods such as flexible pavement that can shed ice by bending and with chemicals such as CMA that may be able to supplant or replace salt in the future," he said.

Find The Right Mutual Fund For Finances

If you've been thinking about investing in the stock market but are afraid you lack the time or expertise to master the tricky game of stocks, then investing in a mutual fund may be right for you.

Understanding how mutual funds work, and determining whether a mutual fund suits your overall financial situation, will ease this important investment decision, according to the Minnesota society of CPAs.

By matching your financial needs— for secure, income producing investments or, for tax advantaged ventures, for example — you can zero in on the most suitable mutual fund.

A mutual fund is a pool of investors, whose money or "shares" is used to purchase stocks, bonds, or other securities. The returns on these investments is then allocated among shareholders. For the 325 common stock mutual funds, investors got a 14.5 per cent average rate of return between 1973 and 1983, according to the Investment Company Institute (ICI), the Washington D.C. based trade organization of mutual funds.

More people than ever are investing in mutual funds, the ICI says. And there are now 653 stock or bond funds to choose from. In the last quarter of 1983, more than $9.3 billion was invested in mutual funds, bringing the total amount invested to $113.4 billion and making mutual funds the fourth largest investment service in the nation.

Mutual funds offer small investors two major benefits: experienced investment experts who manage the fund full-time and the opportunity to diversity a small investment portfolio throughout a broad range of securities and specialized industries. In other words, if you believe that the widget industry is about to boom but you don't know which widget company will profit most from the new business, you may be able to find a mutual fund that invests predominantly in that one narrow field.

Greater the risk you take with your investment, the greater the potential rewards a mutual fund can bring you. The riskiest funds are "capital appreciation" or "aggressive growth" funds. These generally hold common stock in emerging, high, growth, speculative companies.

Just below those funds on the risk scale are "growth" funds. These invest in dividend yielding stocks to provide steadier income, but mostly invest in stocks that are expected to appreciate. Growth funds are the most common kind of funds available.

Next type of fund on the risk spectrum is the "growth and income" fund. This looks to dividend income for much of its return in addition to appreciation and usually invests in higher quality, well known companies.

Still more conservative are "income" funds. These funds are primarily interested in dividend income and may include some bonds and preferred stocks in their portfolios.

In choosing the right kind of fund, your CPA can help you determine — after looking at your total financial and tax situation — just how much risk you can accept. A registered stock broker can help decide what industries to invest in, or you can make that decision yourself. But consider the variety.

If you want a hedge against inflation, you can consider investing in a fund that buys gold and silver mining stocks. Or, if you think environmental concerns will spur companies that manufacture anti-pollution and cleanup devices, you can buy shares in an environmental fund.

You can also find funds that invest in corporate bonds, municipal bonds or others that specialize in investing IRA and Keogh contributions.

A quick, easy reference on all mutual funds, the Wiesenberger Investment company service, charts the funds' performance and shows you how a fund has weathered bull and bear markets.

A look through the record books revealed that in the recent 22-11 Thief River Falls victory over Ada, the 33 runs scored in that wind-swept second half of a doubleheader on the fairgrounds diamond matched the record for the most runs ever scored by two teams in the history of the high school baseball program here — which dates back to the 1953 season.

There were also 33 runs scored in a 1981 game when Thief River Falls outlasted Minot, N.D. 17-16 in the first round of the annual four-team Moorhead Invitational. The Prowlers then added a championship game victory over Fergus Falls that year by a more conventional 5-3 margin.

Most runs ever scored by the Prowlers themselves was 27 in a 27-5 victory over Alvarado in 1956.

Largest margin of victory for the Prowlers, though, was 24 runs in a pair of 24-0 decisions over Goodridge — in the 1955 season opener and in the 1972 District 31 tournament.

Those 22 runs scored against Ada here May 10 were the most runs the Prowlers have pushed across the plate since their 1975 season opener when they also had 22 in a 22-1 decision over Marshall County Central.

Interestingly, Alvarado and Goodridge do not offer high school baseball any more and Marshall County Central plays under a Minnesota State High School League-approved cooperative venture with Middle River.

At the other end of the spectrum uncovered while thumbing through the files, the most runs ever scored on the Prowlers was 18 in an 18-8 loss to Moorhead in 1970.

Largest margin of defeat for the Prowlers was 17 runs in two 17-0 losses — to Moorhead in 1980 and to Bemidji in 1981. That loss to Bemidji also featured a no-hitter by a young lefthander named Bryan Hickerson, who this spring as a sophomore on the University of Minnesota baseball staff led the Gophers during the regular season with a 4-1 record and a sparkling 1.42 earned run average in Big Ten Conference play, helping direct Minnesota to the conference's West Division title. He was 6-4 overall with a 2.09 ERA, striking out 49 batters in 56 innings of work while giving up 25 walks and 42 hits.

Miscellaneous

+Pat Westby, the Pelican Rapids high school basketball standout who will attend Fergus Falls Community College next year, may require knee surgery before the 1984-85 basketball season. Westby's right knee started bothering him midway through the 1983-84 season and he wore a brace on the knee through the tournaments when he led Pelican Rapids to the District 23, Region 6A and Class A state championships. Westby is one of three Minnesota high school standouts who have indicated they will attend Fergus Falls. Joining the 6-4 Westby will be 6-6 Kim Martinson of Breckenridge and 6-0 Dave Jordahl of Montevideo. Fergus Falls won Minnesota Community College Conference Northwest Division and state titles last winter, and made an appearance in the NJCAA national playoffs with a Region 13 tournament championship. Spartans coach Dave Retzlaff was trying to recruit Tim Swenson, too, but the 6-4 forward who led Fergus Falls to the 1984 Region 8AA championship will instead attend Concordia College in Moorhead. "We felt Tim was one of the top three players in this half of the state," said Concordia coach John Eidness. "He's a tremendous shooter and a fine athlete." Meanwhile, Moorhead high school standout Steve Quenette said he will play college basketball at Moorhead State.

Bemidji Shades TRF 6-5 In Seventh Inning

Scott Knudson's two-out, bases-loaded single into left field in the bottom of the seventh inning lifted Bemidji past Thief River Falls 6-5 Thursday in a key North Sub-Region 8AA high school baseball game played on the Bemidji State University diamond.

Bemidji, having bounced back from a 5-2 deficit on Dave Naastad's three-run home run in the sixth inning, emerged with its second one-run decision of the 1984 season over Thief River Falls. The Lumberjacks edged the Prowlers 5-4 in an eight-inning affair here back on May 4.

It was another frustrating loss in a string of regular season failures against the Lumberjacks for the Prowlers, who collected 10 hits and drew eight walks off Bemidji pitcher Jeff Nevitt. But they left ten runners on base. They failed to score in the second and third when they advanced runners as far as third, and came up empty-handed again in the fifth after loading the bases.

"We should have had so many more runs," offered disappointed Thief River Falls coach Charlie Cornell. "Another couple of hits and we could have blown them away early."

Thief River Falls started with a 1-0 lead in the top of the first inning when Todd Ortloff drew a two-out walk, followed by back-to-back singles by Brian Johnston and Ryan Bakke.

Bemidji gained a 1-1 tie in the bottom of the inning, but after two walks and two outs, the Prowlers scored twice in the second as Bob Huot came up with an RBI infield single that was followed by an error for another run.

Both teams added single runs in the fourth, with the Prowlers scoring when Tim Bottem, who was 3-for-5 in the lead-off spot, opened with a double and Ortloff came up with an RBI single.

But that home run by Naastad was the game's big blow, taking the momentum away from the visitors, who appeared to be headed for their first regular season victory over Bemidji after 14 consecutive losses, now 15.

That 5-5 tie was broken in the seventh when Scott Johnson led off with a triple. The Prowlers elected to issue intentional walks to the next two batters to load the bases and look for a force out at the plate. But Knudson spoiled that strategy with a solid base hit to end the game.

Both teams came into the game with 7-3 records. By winning, Bemidji put itself in position to gain one of the top two seeded positions and a first round bye in the 1984 North Sub-Region 8AA baseball tournament, scheduled to be played Tuesday and Thursday, May 29 and 31, at Moorhead. The Prowlers finished with a 1-3 record in their limited schedule against North Sub-Region 8AA teams — two games each with Bemidji and Moorhead. Thief River Falls beat Moorhead 4-2 in an early season meeting, then lost a 4-0 game in a recent first round meeting in the four-team Moorhead Invitational.

FERGUS FALLS base runner Rick Geislinger was safe at the plate as he collided with Northland catcher Tony Holcomb in the first inning of the first game in Saturday's community college baseball doubleheader played in Thief River Falls. Geislinger scored from third base on a pick-off play to first by the Northmen. Umpire Paul Williams made the call on the play.

Prowlers End Golf Season at Brainerd

After a fifth place finish in a 12-team high school invitational golf meet at Moorhead Friday, the Thief River Falls boys will close out their 1984 regular season schedule Tuesday with a trip to Brainerd for a 9:30 a.m. invitational.

Brainerd will be the site of the 1984 Region 8AA golf meet the following Tuesday, May 29.

Fargo South won the Moorhead meet with a six-man 473 total, followed by Fergus Falls 479, Bemidji 482, Moorhead 496, Thief River Falls and Fosston 507, Crookston 510, Hawley 553, Moorhead junior varsity 556, Barnesville 568 and Bagley 581.

Meet medalist was Chuck Lundeen of Fergus Falls and runner-up was Roger Giberson of Fargo South.

Thief River Falls' scores included Jim Geatz with a 78, Bob Geatz 81, Eric Charlson 82, Dan Upham 85, Bob Breiland 87 and Todd Anderson 94.

With a 65, Thief River Falls was recognized with the best team score.

Rams, Bears Top Prowlers

After getting off to a 7-1 start this spring, Thief River Falls' record has slipped to 7-6 with five straight losses in high school baseball action, including a double setback Saturday when the punchless Prowlers lost to Roseau 3-0 and fell to Lake of the Woods 5-3.

Both portions of that split doubleheader were played at Roseau. Thief River Falls closes out its 1984 regular season record with a pair of home games this week. Bagley is scheduled to be in Thief River Falls today (Monday) for a 4:30 p.m. game, with Roseau visiting Thursday for another 4:30 start.

"It was a disaster," is the way Thief River Falls coach Charlie Cornell described the Saturday results. "We haven't been playing well."

Roseau's Rod Eastman pitched a one-hit shutout as the Rams blanked Thief River Falls 3-0.

Only base hit the Prowlers could muster was a lead-off single in the seventh inning by Todd Ortloff to spoil Eastman's no-hit bid. Ortloff was promptly erased on a force-out, however, as the Prowlers put just three runners on base the entire game.

Eastman struck out 11 and did not walk a batter.

Roseau scored once in the first inning and collected three of the five hits off Thief River Falls pitcher Brian Johnston in the third inning as the Rams padded their lead to 3-0.

Lake of the Woods scored three times in the top of the seventh inning to pull out a come-from-behind 5-3 victory over Thief River Falls in the second half of the Prowlers' split doubleheader Saturday.

Thief River Falls, after spotting Lake of the Woods a 2-0 lead in the fourth, scored three times in the fifth on three singles, a suicide squeeze and a wild pitch. Tim Nyland had an RBI single, Gary Cornell put down a successful squeeze bunt for an RBI and the third run scored on a wild pitch.

But the Prowlers' lead didn't last. The Bears scored all three of their seventh inning runs after two were out. Two errors and an RBI single by Joe Krouss produced the Bears' victory margin.

Northland Wins First Game 14-13 . . .

Northmen Rally From 10-Run Deficit To Beat Fergus Falls

Northland rallied from a 10-run deficit to beat Fergus Falls 14-13 in the first half of a Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) Northwest Division baseball doubleheader Saturday in Thief River Falls, but the Northmen lost their 1984 season finale when the Spartans were able to hold on to an 8-2 second game win for a twinbill split.

Results ended the Northland season at 2-14, but that unlikely first game rally Saturday helped take some of the string off an otherwise painfully unsuccessful campaign.

Fergus Falls, a second place finisher behind Brainerd in the four-team Northwest Division standings, appeared headed for an easy win in the opener with a seemingly insurmountable 12-2 lead through 3½ innings. A five-inning 10-run rule ending seemed imminent.

However, Northland struck for three runs in the bottom of the fourth, four more in the fifth after surrendering a single run in the top of the inning, then tied it with another four-run burst in the sixth. A single run in the bottom of the seventh then won it, capping probably the most remarkable comeback effort in the history of the sport at the school, acknowledged Northland coach Chet Engelman.

"We were at a point where it was giving to be a five-inning game," admitted Engelman. "But the kids didn't give up. I don't ever remember coming back from 10 runs down and winning a game."

Northland's rally started in the fourth when Kevin Sanders stroked a two-run double and Tony Holcomb drove him in with another two-bagger.

There were two out in the fifth before Northland struck again on two-run singles by Sanders and Darris Dahl.

They tied it 13-13 in the sixth as Bruce Nephew and Holcomb drew bases-loaded walks and Dahl hit a two-out, two-run single.

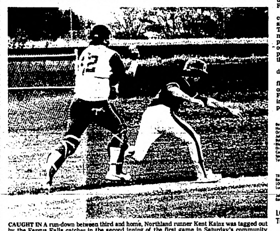
In the seventh, Wade Hruby reached base on Fergus Falls' only error of the game and Jerry Bjerke was hit by a pitch before Alan Melvie doubled into the right-center field gap for the game-winning RBI.

Dahl was 4-for-4, plus a walk, with two doubles and four RBI's. Sanders was 3-for-3 with two walks and four RBI's. The two teams split 20 hits, with Northland collecting five of the game's six errors.

Sanders was the winning pitcher in less-than-outstanding performance. The Thief River Falls sophomore lefthander ironically has lost numerous games this spring in which he has pitched outstanding baseball, but received little in the way of offensive or defensive support. Saturday, Fergus Falls — the best-hitting team in the league, according to Engelman — got ten hits off him in four innings. But apparently inspired by the offensive comeback, Sanders held the Spartans without a hit over the final three innings.

There was nothing as dramatic as that comeback in the nightcap as Fergus Falls out-hit Northland 11-3 in the 8-2 win. The Spartans scored in each of the first four innings, then padded a 5-1 lead on a three-run home run by Jason DuBois — the winners' third homer of the game. Craig Johnson and Scott Kahler hit solo shots earlier.

Randy Johnson, the third pitcher used and the loser in the first game, pitched the three-hitter for the second game victory. Three times he got out of bases-loaded jams as the Northmen left the sacks full in the first, fifth andsixth.



CAUGHT IN A run-down between third and home, Northland runner Kent Kainz was tagged out by the Fergus Falls catcher in the second inning of the first game in Saturday's community college baseball doubleheader played in Thief River Falls. The Northmen rallied to beat the Spartans 14-13. Fergus Falls bounced back to win the second game 8-2.

Red Raiders Shut Out Northmen By 5-0, 19-0

Brainerd pitching limited Northland to just four base hits in two games Wednesday, recording a pair of Minnesota Community College Conference shutouts, as the Red Raiders swept the Northmen in a windy Northwest Division doubleheader played in Thief River Falls 5-0 and 19-0.

Northland's lefthander Kevin Sanders, a sophomore from Thief River Falls, was just as effective on the mound, but without the offensive or defensive support, he was the tough-luck loser in the fast-paced 5-0 first game outcome.

Sanders limited Brainerd to just three base hits through six innings of a scoreless ball game, but the visitors pushed five unearned runs across the plate when they doubled their base hit total in the seventh.

"It's a real shame to pitch as well as he did and not have anything to show for it," noted Northland coach Chet Engelman. But it wasn't the first time it happened this spring as the Northmen watched their record fall to 1-11.

Sanders finished with nine strike-outs and just one walk. Winning pitcher Bernie Omann had a three-hit shutout on seven strike-outs and two walks.

After playing the division-leading Red Raiders on even terms in the first game, the Northmen fell an early victim in the 19-0 second game rout that didn't take long to complete either since Brainerd did all the scoring and ended it early on the 10-run rule in the fifth.

Brainerd scored nine times in the top of the first inning off Northland pitchers Darris Dahl, a righthander from Bagley, and Bruce Nephew, a lefthander from Fertile. They also had five stolen bases that inning.

It was 14-0 after two innings. Brainerd finished with 14 hits in the five innings to back the one-hit shutout pitching of Tim Martin.

Only base hit off Martin, who struck out nine, was a second inning ground ball single into left field by Sanders. An error that same inning gave Northland its only other base runner of the game against Martin's quick deliveries.

Semifinals — 12:30 p.m.

Finals — 2:30.

NORTHLAND COMMUNITY COLLEGE pitcher Kevin Sanders delivered a pitch to a Fergus Falls batter during Saturday's Northwest Division baseball doubleheader played in Thief River Falls. Sanders, a tough-luck loser in a number of games this spring, was touched for 10 base hits by the hard-hitting Fergus Falls team, but he closed the doors on the Spartans over the final three innings as the Northmen rallied from a 12-2 deficit to overtake the visitors 14-13 in the twinbill opener. Fergus Falls won the second game 8-2.

TRF Girls Are Third At EGF Track Invitational

A solid showing Friday at the East Grand Forks Lions Invitational high school track meet enabled the Thief River Falls girls to finish third in the nine-team field, just a single point behind the host Green Wave in second place.

"It was a good night for us," reported Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer, who was missing three proven point-scorers in Georgia Howard, Lynell Armstrong and Jackie Smith for all or portions of the meet. Their presence would easily have given the Prowlers second place, he said.

Most of Thief River Falls' points came from the Prowlers' depth since they had just one first place finish — a 4:25 by the 1600-meter relay team of Stacie Kruta, Bobbi Thompson, Cindy Kruta and Michelle Puetz.

But they had five seconds and numerous other point-scoring finishes to be among the leaders in the final point totals, led by Crookston with 138½, followed by East Grand Forks with 105, Thief River Falls 104, Hallock 96½, East Grand Forks Sacred Heart 18, Mahnomen 15, Stephen 9, Fisher 6 and Marshall County Central 1.

Final regular season outing of the season for the Prowlers is the Roseau Twi-Light Invitational tonight (Monday) at 5 p.m. The North Sub-Region 8AA meet will be held Thursday at Bemidji beginning at 4 p.m.

Basketball Camp Will Be Held In TRF July 11-12

A two-day session of the Jim Dutcher Perfect Form basketball camp will be offered to boys ages 9-18 in Thief River Falls Wednesday and Thursday, July 11 and 12, it was reported by Lincoln High School head basketball coach Tom Hunt.

Cost of the camp, which features two eight-hour days of instructions in shooting and ball handling is $50. Sessions will be conducted in the Franklin Middle School gymnasium from 9 a.m. to 12-noon, 1 to 4 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. both days.

Camp fee covers awards, certificates and a camp T-shirt. There is a minimum of 30 participants who can be accomodated. Applications will be approved on a first-come, first-service basis, with May 31 as a registration deadline. For registration blanks contact Hunt at 681-2700, extension 235.

Camp instructors will include former University of Minnesota players Jim Petersen and Darryl Mitchell, plus current Minnesota assistant coach Steve Brown.

Petersen was the Gophers' captain during the 1983-84 season when the 6-11 front line performer led Minnesota's inside game. He won the coveted Mr. Minnesota Basketball Award as a high school senior at St. Louis Park where he also earned McDonald's All-American honors and helped lead his team into three Minnesota state tournaments.

Mitchell was an all-conference player for the Gophers in 1982 when the 6-4 guard helped lead Minnesota to the Big Ten title. He was an all-tournament selection in the NIT tournament as a sophomore in 1980.

Brown will be serving his second year as University of Minnesota assistant coach in 1984-85. During his playing career he averaged 30.5 points per game at the high school level, including a South Dakota state tournament record 50 points in a single game while playing on a Hamline state Class B state championship team in 1974. He finished as the second-leading all-timer scorer at South Dakota State University where he was the first SDSU player to appear in 100 games. He was the North Central Conference scoring champion in 1977 and was named South Dakota college athlete of the year in 1978.

As a high school coach at Elkton, S.D. Brown led the boys to a 33-13 record and two district championships and led the girls to a 33-10 record and a district title.

Brown became an assistant coach at SDSU in 1981-82, moved to Dickenson State as an assistant in 1982-83 and then to the University of Minnesota in 1983-84.

University of Minnesota head basketball coach Jim Dutcher, whose name headlines the camp, describes the program on the registration form by saying: "It is my hope to bring to you a camp that will give you the chance to learn and develop proper shooting fundamentals. The camp will teach you how to shoot more accurately, get your shot off quicker, practice and other fundamental technique that are necessary to be an offensive threat."

TRFAHA Will Have Meeting Tuesday Night

Thief River Falls Amateur Hockey Association (TRF-AHA) will have a general membership meeting Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the basement of the Rex Cafe.

Youth hockey program for the 1984-85 season will be discussed. All parents with players involved in the program are invited to attend the meeting.

TRF Babe Ruth Baseball Team Parents Meet

Another extremely important meeting for parents of players involved in the Thief River Falls Babe Ruth baseball program for 13-to-15-year-olds will be held Wednesday at 7 p.m. in Room 507 at Franklin Middle School.

Results of the group's meeting with the Park and Recreation Department board will be given and plans for the program in the future years will be discussed.

Track Invitational . . .

TRF Boys Third At EGF Friday

Seniors Randy Swenson and Jeff Langan were the Thief River Falls leaders Friday as the Prowlers placed third in the 10-team boys' portion of the annual East Grand Forks Lions Invitational track meet.

Crookston edged host East Grand Forks 131 to 130½ for the team title, followed by Thief River Falls with 76 points, Fisher 61, Mahnomen 48, Stephen 22½, Hallock 22, Roseau 18, East Grand Forks Sacred Heart 14 and Climax 1.

For the Prowlers, Swenson and Langan swapped 1-2 finishes in the two hurdle events, then teammed with Scott Fowler and Kevin Kezar to form a winning mile relay unit.

In the 110-meter high hurdles, Swenson was first in 16.67 seconds and Langan was second in 17.06. In the 300-meter intermediate hurdles, Langan was first in 42.50 and Swenson was second in 42.91. The mile relay team had a 3:41.69 winning time.

Thief River Falls closes out its 1984 regular season schedule today (Monday) with a 5 p.m. appearance at the Roseau Twi-Light Invitational. The North Sub-Region 8AA meet will be held Thursday at Bemidji starting at 4 p.m.

TRF Youth Baseball Registration June 1

Registration will be held Friday, June 1, for the 1984 Thief River Falls youth baseball program. Registration will be held from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the lobby of the sports arena.

Anyone unable to register that day may pre-register at any time at the Park and Recreation Department. Registration fee is $5.

New Thief River Falls youth baseball program director is Myron Peterson, who has been involved in the program for a number of years.

Thief River Falls' youth baseball program will feature five levels of competition: 7-8-year-olds; 9-year-olds; 10-year-olds; 11-12-year-olds; and 13-15-year-olds.

To be eligible to participate in the 7-8-year-old program, a child must be 7 years of age before August 1. The 7-8-year-olds will meet every Monday and Wednesday from 1 to 2:30 p.m. Their first practice will be Monday, June 4, at 1 p.m.

All 9-year-olds, plus any 8-year-olds who will be 9 before August 1, will meet Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 3 p.m. However, their first practice on Monday, June 4, will start at 2:15 p.m. instead of 3.

Ten-year-old group includes any 9-year-old who will be 10 before August 1. This group will meet for their first practice on Monday, June 4, at 4 p.m.

Those 11-12-year-olds who did not play baseball in Thief River Falls last summer will meet with the 10-year-old group for their first practice on Monday, June 4, at 4 p.m. Any 12-year-old in this group who will be 13 before August 1 must play with the 13-year-olds.

For the 11-12-year-olds who played baseball in Thief River Falls last year, which includes any 10-year-old who will be 11 before August 1, their first practice is on Tuesday, June 5, at 1 p.m.

Players in the 13-15-year-old category, which includes 12-year-olds who will be 13 before August 1, will have registration June 1, and their first practice session will be announced at that time.

Coaches currently assigned to work in the 1984 Thief River Falls youth baseball program are Rick Engelstad, Chuck Walrath and Robbie Blankenfeld.

Questions about the program can be directed to Myron Peterson at 681-2798.

TRF Team Is Class B Champ At Grand Forks

American Legion-Miller Beer team from Thief River Falls won Class B championship honors Sunday at the Earlybird Invitational men's slow pitch softball tournament at Grand Forks.

Thief River Falls' entry in the 16-team Class B field won all four starts for the title, beating East Grand Forks Eagles 11-1, John Barleycorn of Grand Forks 10-9, Nokoma, N.D. 15-5 and the Red Lake Falls Rabbits 10-9 in the finals.

Tim Engelstad went 12-for-17 at the plate for the day for American Legion-Miller Beer, a .706 batting average. He also led the team with nine RBI's.

Key to the championship game victory, explained team manager Dennis Bendickson, was in the first inning when Tom Ronchetti hit a two-out triple and Rockey Ammerman followed an intentional walk to Don Grabowska with a three-run home run.

FORMER MAJOR LEAGUE pitcher with the Minnesota Twins and Los Angeles Dodgers, Dave Goltz was in Thief River Falls Saturday in his new capacity as baseball coach at Fergus Falls Community College. Goltz, Northland coach Chet Engelman and plate umpire Paul Williams went over the ground rules before the first game of the Northwest Division doubleheader. Goltz watched his team blow a 12-2 first game lead and lose a high-scoring 14-13 decision before the Spartans came up with an 8-2 second game victory.

TRF Girls Top EGF In Golf Dual Thursday

Thief River Falls girls defeated East Grand Forks 218-245 Thursday in a high school dual golf meet at the Thief River Country Club.

Coach Ruth Onkka's Prowlers, complementing a schedule of five invitational meet outings with three local duals, won its second dual meet in three tries, having split a pair with Crookston earlier.

Michelle Olson led the Prowlers with a 45, while Kathy Reuter shot a 50, Karin Wennberg 60, Kari Jorde and Kirstin Pollick 63 and Paula Bergan 69.

Thief River Falls was scheduled to close out its regular season schedule recently with a 10 a.m. invitational meet at Mahnomen. The 1984 Region 8AA golf meet for girls will be held Friday at Little Falls, beginning at 11 a.m.

— DNR Hotline —

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources, Division of Parks and Recreation would like to inform you on how the Outdoor Recreation System works.

Minnesota Legislature in 1975 enacted the Outdoor Recreation Act. In passing the Outdoor Recreation Act, the Legislature recognized a growing problem in Minnesota. More people are using state lands each year for more diverse forms of recreation. While some areas can withstand higher levels of use, other areas have experienced overcrowding and conflicts between different recreational users. Long-term physical damage to the natural resources is also occurring on many state lands. Because of these problems, it is no longer possible to provide for all forms of outdoor recreation at each individual park or other area owned by the state.

Outdoor Recreation Act incorporates all state managed recreation lands into a State Outdoor Recreation System. The system consists of 11 different kinds of areas, each with its own title. The 11 areas provide for different kinds of outdoor recreational use. Management guidelines for each area are contained in the Legislation.

Titles of some areas will be familiar since they have existed for some time. They include: historical sites; state forest campgrounds and day-use areas; state trails; wild scenic and recreational rivers; scientific and natural areas; water access sites; wildlife management areas; and highway rest areas.

Titles of new areas in the state system include: natural state parks and recreation state parks which replace today's single designation — "state parks"; and state wilderness areas. There are currently no state-designated wilderness areas in Minnesota.

Outdoor Recreation Act requires state agencies to plan for the resources under their control. Planning in some existing state parks, historic sistes and wildlife mnagement areas began in 1975. This process is expected to take several years to complete.

In the course of the planning process, state agencies will meet with local citizens and public officials to get their suggestions about the future use and management of each area. When a draft of the management plan has been prepared, the agency will review it with the public and discuss the plan's recommendations. Units of local government, regional development commissions and other state agencies are also asked to review and respond to the plan. The final draft of the plan will be submitted to the Outdoor Recreational Advisory Council which the Act created. The Council, composed of a representative from each of the state's 13 regional development commissions, will provide a statewide perspective on recreational issues and can recommend changes or modifications to the plan. Based on public comments, the draft play may be revised.

MR-MCC Drops 5-1 Ball Game To LOW Bears

Middle River-Marshall County Central cooperative high school baseball team threatened to pull off a major upset Thursday before a defensive lapse handed Lake of the Woods a 5-1 victory at Newfolden.

Highly-regarded Lake of the Woods, one of the challengers in a very balanced tournament field this spring, trailed 1-0 until the Bears capitalized on three consecutive fifth inning Middle River-Marshall County Central errors — the last one a two-out, bases-loaded dropped fly ball that scored two runs.

Lake of the Woods tacked on three more runs in the top of the seventh, highlighted by a Joe Krouss home run.

Dean Hjelle was tagged with the loss, despite limiting the Bears to three base hits — just one hit through six innings. The losers had four hits, and their only errors came in that fifth inning letdown.

Middle River-Marshall County Central, 4-8, will close out its 1984 regular season schedule this week, playing on the road today (Monday) against Humboldt-St. Vincent-Lancaster-Pembina and hosting Kennedy-Hallock Tuesday in 4:30 p.m. games.

Post-season playoffs start Friday.

County Board Proceedings

May 21, 1984
Official Proceedings
Board of County Commissioners
Pennington County, Minnesota
May 8, 1984

Pursuant to adjournment the Pennington County Board of Commissioners met in the commissioners' room of the Court house in Thief River Falls at 10:00 a.m., on Tuesday, May 8, 1984. Members present: Hoffman, Koop, Stenberg, Tasa and Grabanski.

Head Custodian, Greg Sandahl, appeared before the Board to discuss the retubing of the No. 2 boiler. He received only one quote from Swenson & Sons, Inc. for the retubing in the amount of $2,040.20. Board okayed this retubing. Greg then asked if the County Board wanted to purchase folding benches for use in hallways upstairs next to the courtrooms and downstairs by the Social services offices. Board denied this request.

Discussion was held on the Woodland Construction buildings. Commissioner Grabanski felt the price quoted for the purchase of this building would be a good investment for the County for use as a County Highway Department building. Appointment was made by the Board to view this building at 3:00 with Jim Rogalla.

Dave Paulson and a representative from Bemidji selling CLM (Copper Lead Microns) which is an oil additive, gave a presentation of their product.

Discussion was held on the application for a permit to dig in public waters by Richard Sjoberg. The Board requested the County Engineer check into this and make recommendations.

Russ Christianson, Les & Rick Nordhagen appeared before the Board to give a progress report on Future Fuels, Inc. Discussion was held on the feasibility of this project; land and site acquisition, financing, equipment, cost plus the fact that an actual demonstration would be held May 23 in Cherokee, Iowa, if any one would care to attend. Board felt the County Engineer and one Commissioner should be in attendance. Mr. Christianson called attention to the fact that the County's Solid Waste Plan must be brought up to date prior to May 31 which is the deadline for the application for the grant they are working on. This plan is currently being updated.

Sheriff's Deputy Bob Wold appeared before the Board and advised them that approximately 16 windows at the Oakland Dormitory had been broken. It was the decision of the Board that all windows will be boarded up.

Commissioner Koop discussed the Senior Citizens building.

At 3:00 p.m. the Board met with Jim Rogalla to inspect the buildings at Woodland Construction. After considerable discussion any decision on this was tabled until the next board meeting.

Commissioner Grabanski left the meeting at 3:30 p.m.

Motion by Commissioner Stenberg, seconded by Commissioner Hoffman to advertise for bids for a pickup to be used by the County Highway Department. Motion unanimously carried.

Discussion was held on the Henry Lund gravel pit. Mr. Lund will give the County a 10 year exclusive lease with a 5 year renewal rate. Attorney Olin will draw up this lease.

Engineer Olson discussed the possibility of placing the patching and spraying crews on four 10 hour days. Board approved this request.

Discussed Arnold Haugen's request for a culvert for his crossing. County Highway Department will sell Mr. Haugen a culvert, used or new, but could not provide him with one.

Moved by Commissioner Stenberg, seconded by Commissioner Koop to approve the contract with Computer Concepts Service, Inc. for the Highway Department's computer program and maintenance in the amount of $3,300 for one year's service. Motion unanimously carried.

Moved by Commissioner Hoffman, seconded by Commissioner Koop to set a meeting for 8:00 p.m. on May 21, 1984, for Joint Ditch No. 11 to be held with Red Lake County. Motion unanimously carried.

Moved by Commissioner Koop, seconded by Commissioner Stenberg to have the Road, Ditch and Culvert Committee hold road, ditch and culvert inspection at 9:00 a.m. May 14, 1984. Motion unanimously carried.

The following bills were presented, read and approved for payment:

STRAIGHT TALK

— by —

Albert D. Hattis, Associate Professor of Business and Holder of the Schwan Endowed Chair for Free Enterprise
Southwest State University, Marshall

You've probably noticed that politicians are afflicted, when elections are upcoming, with a tendency to twist facts.

From what you have heard lately, you may believe that the federal government has been economizing at the expense of social welfare programs for windows, orphans, the old and the disabled. You have assumed that these programs have less available money, and that Uncle Sam has become Uncle Scrooge. You may also believe that taxes have been cut back, which some politicians say is the reason for bigger federal deficits, getting bigger and bigger, like a hot air balloon, which, in time, will burst with terrifying results.

Let's look at the truth!

In 1974, federal spending was $268 billion. In 1980, the last year of the Carter-Mondale administration, spending was $577 billion, 215 per cent of the 1974 figure. In 1983, after almost three years of Ronald Reagan, spending was $796 billion of 138 per cent of the 1980 Carter-Mondale last year. The facts show that government spending is up, even though the rate of increase is lower.

Eliminating the inflation factor, social welfare transfer payments, the main component of the upward surge in spending, went up six per cent in the Carter-Mondale years. These payments have risen almost 20 per cent during the first three years of the Reagan administration.

The facts prove that Reagan has not cut federal spending, in general, nor has he cut nondefense spending.

In 1974, the federal government collected $263 billion in taxes. In 1980, the last year of the Carter-Mondale administration, taxes were up to $517 billion, 197 per cent of the 1974 figure. In 1983, after almost three years of Ronald Reagan, tax collections were up to $602 billion, or 116 per cent of the 1980 Carter-Mondale last year. So government tax collections are up, not down, though the rate of increase is lower.

In 1974, the federal government spent $5 billion more than it took in. During the Carter-Mondale years, the feds spent $182 billion more than they taxed. During the Reagan years, the feds have spent $363 billion more than they taxed. This deficit spending, like that hot air balloon, too long attached to a gas cylinder, will cause an explosion, bringing on a very serious financial and economic calamity.

I am not happy with the deficit record of the Reagan administration. It takes real guts to stand up and say, "No, we can not afford our present standard of living, so everyone is going to sacrifice by having less until our nation's economy is healthy again." The special interest groups who pushed our costs out of line in steel, autos and so many other industries, at the expense of everyone in our nation, want to return to the good old days. They do not yet understand that the days of acceptance of the dollar as legal tender all over the world are numbered. Unless we trim down, there is no way that we can solve our problems by responding to interest group pressures for more spending and bigger deficits.

Each day that we spend more than we take in, and continue to let our costs stay out of line with the competition, brings us closer to that time when others, from whom our government buys, will say, "We don't want your money because the dollar is going to collapse! We don't want to get stuck with worthless dollars!"

I am even unhappier with Mr. Mondale, new nose and all. He travels around our nation promising every unhappy special interest group that he will fund their needs. Calculating the cost of Mondale's promises would increase the annual deficit by about $50 billion to $100 billion, bringing doomsday that much closer. His listeners sometimes forget that the last time we tried his solution, we had double digit inflation, more than 20 per cent interest rates, and the onset of the worst recession our nation has experienced. Mondale is so anxious to win that he makes promises without even knowing their costs. One promise on a social security change, made without thinking, involves an increased cost of $10 billion each year. After discovering the cost of eliminating this social security "notch" problem, he started weasling.

Neither Mr. Mondale nor Mr. Reagan have easy answers because the solution to our problem is learning to live within our means and accepting the fact that industry must cut costs to compete and survive. Spending will not solve our problem. This real solution is going to hurt. But the longer we take to get down to solving our problems, the greater the pain we will endure.

That's Straight Talk!

STEINER . . .

Chester and Marla Yonke, Steven, Scott and Steven were Sunday afternoon callers at the Leonard Yonke home. Later in the afternoon Leonard and Shirley Yonke and David visited at the home of her mother, Mrs. Naomi Althoff at the Riverside Terrace. Mrs. Yonke received Mother's day greetings by telephone from Marvin and Carol Yonke at Oronoco near Rochester and also from Lennae and Jim Kosmatka at Grafton Sunday morning.

Mrs. Peter Solem, Robert, Andrew and Rebekah Ann accompanied by Mrs. Alfred Solem spent Monday in Grand Forks. Andrew and his grandmother were guests for the day at the Stanley and Dagny Wick home.

Tuesday evening supper guests at the Leonard Yonke home were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence O. Swanson of St. Hilaire. They were on their way home from Roseau where they made the acquaintance of their new grandchild.

Truman Letters Are Of Great Historical Value

by Ink Mendelsohn
Smithsonian News Service

"Dear Bess: This is a lonesome place. . ." The letter, written in a bold hand on pale green White House Stationery and dated June 3, 1945, is likely the first Harry S. Truman wrote as president of the United States to his wife. President for less than two months, he was feeling blue because Bess and their only Child, 21-year-old Margaret, had left 1600 Pennsylvania ave. for the summer and gone home to 219 North Delaware St., Independence, Mo.

Letter if part of a treasure trove left behind by the president whose 100th birthday (May 8) is being celebrated this year. For years after his death in 1972, it was believed that Bess had burned most of his letters. But staff members of the Truman library, taking an inventory of the Truman home in 1981, were astronished to fine more than 1,200 letters spanning a half-century of American life in boxes stowed in closets, storage areas and the attic of the 19th-century Victorian house.

Truman was, his daughter Margaret Truman Daniel once said, a "demon letter writer." Over the years, when Harry and Bess were separated by the demands of farm life, war and politics, he wrote to her once a day — sometimes twice. Truman wrote constantly to the other women in his life as well — his daughter, mother, sister Mary Jane and favorite cousins, Ethel and Nellie Noland.

After her mother's death in October 1982, Daniel gave the newly found letters — the stuff of history — to the American people. Some family members objected to making public property of Harry Truman's most intimate feelings, his sometimes intemperate and intolerant remarks and his candid view of the world. Indeed, before her death in 1978, his sister burned hundreds of his letters. Daniel, however, agrees with her father, who always insisted that good history requires all the facts.

Historians are excited by this epistolary gold mine. "There's no better historical source than letters," historian David McCullough says. McCullough, who is working on a comprehensive biography of Harry Truman, is delighted with the find. "We can be grateful to Bess for stalling Harry for almost a decade before marrying him. More letters!"

Researchers who travel to the Harry S. Truman library in Independence can now make the acquaintance of a certain 27-year-old Missouri farmer, who in January 1911 wrote to the young lady he was courting: "My dear Bessie: . . . I don't think I'll ever make much of a mark as a farmer or anywhere else but sometimes I have to come across."

To come across — to do what is expected, to do one's duty — was the principle by which Truman lived. On April 12, 1945, he had to come across. Franklin Roosevelt died on that day, and Truman, vice president for only three months and not a member of the president's inner circle, was forced to don the oversized cloak of Roosevelt's responsibilities in a world at war.

Some would say Truman's whole life led him to the White House. Although he sometimes said he never held a political office he really wanted, a 1913 letter to Bess says otherwise:

"How does it feel being engaged to a clodhopper who has ambitions to be Governor of Montana and Chief Executive of U.S. He'll do well if he gets to be a retired farmer. That was sure a good dream though, and I have them in the daytime, even night along the same line."

From his father, John, an ardent Democrat, Harry got his love of politics, his skill at arming and the eternal optimism of the born speculator. His love of reading, music and arts he inherited from his mother, Martha Ellen. The 33rd president was a fine pianist, a faithful student of history and a passionate fan of fine architecture. "Harry Truman was the only president in the 20th century who did not attend college," McCullough observes, "but he was a learned man."

Born in Lamar, Mo., Harry spent his childhood in Independence. At the age of six, he had to wear glasses to correct his farsightedness. He began reading every book that came within his new-found sight. Through those familiar, roundish lenses, he spied five-year-old, blue-eyed, golden-haired Bess in Sunday school and fell in love.

Truman carried a picture of Bess and six pairs of glasses to war in France in April 1918. There he led men into battle, learned about the world and, like thousands of American young men who saw Paris, left the farm forever. From "Somewhere in France," Truman wrote to Bess, "Paris is some town." When Harry returned home, he and Bess were finally married, on June 28, 1919.

High hopes of two army buddies opened the Truman-Jacobson Haberdashery in 1919. Post-war recession closed it in 1922. But dark days were brightened when Truman acquired a new correspondent — daughter Mary Margaret. In 1928, when she was four, he wrote:

"My dear little daughter, I am so very pleased that you are writing your daddy every day. I hope you keep up the habit when you are a big girl."

Elected presiding judge — an administrative position — of Jackson county, Mo., in 1926, Truman embraced public life and for a decade floated above the undertow of Boss Pendergast's Kansas City corruption. Sometimes he suffered headaches from the strain. He suffered, too, for his constituents during the Depression. He wrote to Bess in 1933:

"We are discharging some two hundred people and every one of them and all his friends will try to see me. I was sick last night after the session and lost my supper. . ."

A year later, he was elected to the U.S. Senate. On their wedding anniversary in 1935, he wrote to Bess:

"I am hoping to make a reputation as a Senator. . . But you'll have to put up with a lot if I do it because I won't sell influence and I'm perfectly willing to be cussed if I'm right".

He made a national reputation as a dogged investigator of waste and wrongdoing in the national defense program. And in 1944, Roosevelt, planning to campaign for a fourth term, let it be known in a roundabout way that he wanted Truman as his running mate. Truman resisted, writing to Margaret a few weeks before the Democratic convention: "Hope I can dodge it. 1600 Pennsylvania ave. is a nice address but I'd rather not move in through the back door. . .

To Roosevelt's emissaries, the Missouri senator responded: "Tell him to go to hell." Roosevelt replied, "Well tell him if he wants to break up the Democratic Party in the middle of a war, that's his responsibility." Truman accepted, but he complained in a letter to Bess in August, ". . . the nomination was forced on me."

For the American people and for Harry Truman, Aprilwas indeed the cruelest month in 1945. Promise of allied victory over Germany hung in the air, but the struggle against Japan dragged on across blood-soaked Pacific battlegrounds. The American people and much of the rest of the world had come to rely upon Roosevelt's charismatic leadership, and his death stunned and frightened them.

Hours after Roosevelt died, on April 12, the new president wrote to cousin Olive Truman: "I've really had a blow. . . But I'll have to meet it. Hope it won't cause the family too much trouble."

He had a lot to meet. "Our present world begins with Harry Truman," McCullough points out. "He had to make the most difficult decisions of any president of our century and held in his hands a vast global responsibility."

Germany surrendered on May 7, and May 8, Truman's birthday, became V-E day. Two months later, the Big Three — Truman, Churchill and Stalin — met in Potsdam in conquered Germany to plan the shape of the post-war world. Small agreements were made, but the Cold War was fast approaching. "I went to Potsdam with the kindliest feelings toward Russia," Truman wrote to his daughter in March 1948. "In a year and a half they cured me of it."

President couldn't write to his family about what had to have been the loneliest decision of his life — the decision to unleash the atomic bomb on Japan on August 1945. But he never doubted the validity of the decision to drop the bomb, and, thus, in his view, to forestall the massive casualties on both sides resulting from an invasion of Japan.

V-J day brought not peace but challenge. Truman led America toward recognition of a new international responsibility. The Truman Doctrine of aid to Greece and Turkey was put into effect to halt a Soviety threat, the Marshall Plan was launched to rebuilt Europe, and NATO was created to shield the West from potential Soviet aggression. Political critics of his foreign policies would not stop him, Truman wrote his sister in 1947. "It is more important to save the world from totalitarianism that to be President for another four years."

Still, he fought with every breath against heavy odds in the 1948 campaign. In spite of press pollsters, politicans and pundits, Truman was confident that he would beat the Republican candidate, Thomas E. Dewey. In June 1948 he wrote his sister Mary, "We are going to lick 'em and lick 'em good!" He took his case to the people on a 31,738-mile, 355-speech whistle-stop tour, and his long-time advisor, Clark Clifford, can still remember the excitement of that journey. "As the campaign went on, people were drawn to this indomitable figure — his spirit and courage. Week by week, we sensed the crowds growing ever larger." On election day, the man from Independence scored the most dramatic upset victory in American political history.

Although Truman gave one hell of a whistle-stop speech and was the first president to make a nationwide television address, he always needed to write. He kept diaries, wrote memos, set down autobiography on hotel stationery and scribbled notes on restaurant menus. Through personal correspondence, he could let off steam about "high hats" (snobs), "Striped-pants boys" (diplomats), "military brass" and the "sabotage press."

He could express private opinions about such public figures as "Uncle Joe" Stalin, who was "trying to fool the world," or "old, fat Winston," who was "windy" but "keen" nonetheless, or France's General DeGaulle, whom he described as a "pinhead." He could also keep his family, often far away, close. He exhorted them to write.

Having so faithfully sown the seeds of communication-by-mail, the once-upon-a-time farmer was due a harvest. As the days of Truman's presidency dwindled and, having decided not to seek re-election in 1952, he prepared to go home to Independence, the fruits of his labors began to arrive at the White House. In his last letter from 1600 Pennsylvania Ave., he wrote cousin Nellie:

"I have had a lot of fine letters from people I've never heard of and none of the mean sort. The public isn't sure what it has gained. The fear is that something has been lost. I wonder. We'll just have to wait and see.

Sincerely, Harry"

Mesaba Notes $425,460 Net Fiscal Profit

Mesaba Aviation, Inc. (Mesaba Airlines) has announced record net earnings for the fiscal year ended March 31 of $425,460 or $0.19 per share of common stock on revenues of $6,043,071.

This compares to net earnings of $187,721, (to include an extra-ordinary credit of $68,000), or $0.14 per share of common stock on revenues of $4,048,146 for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1983. Income from operations before income taxes and extraordinary items for fiscal 1984 was up 317 per cent of $783,460 as compared to $187,721 for fiscal 1983.

Quarterly record net earnings of $128,166 on revenues of $1,950,915 were also set for the three months ended March 31, 1984. This compares to net earnings of $81,698 on revenues of $1,241,822 for the comparable quarter of 1983.

The Grand Rapids based company provides scheduled regional airline passenger and freight services to 17 cities in Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska' North Dakota and South Dakota, as well as general aviation and travel services at its corporate headquarters.

In addition to its present fleet of seven 15-passenger, Beech 99 prop jets, Mesaba has purchased two pressurized 44-passenger jet prop Fokker F27, Series 200 aircraft which will be put into scheduled airline service early this summer.

Minnesota Job Service Tops 1982 Figure

Minnesota job service filled 114,410 job openings in 1983, up from 104,556 in 1982, Commissioner Barbara Beerhalter of the Minnesota department of economic security reports.

Federally funded employment service helped find jobs for 75,596 people in 1983. This figure is lower than the number of job openings filled because one person may have been placed in several temporary jobs, Beerhalter said.

Job service provides no-fee placement services which match qualified job seekers with job openings listed by employers. Job service personnel register, screen and refer applicants to potential employers. Job service operates 57 offices statewide which are linked by a computerized job bank.

Total of 202,128 Minnesota job seekers received assistance from Job service in 1983. Employers listed 148,766 new job openings.

Services to employers include listing and filling job openings with qualified employees, on-site recruitment, technical assistance, labor market information and hiring subsidies through the targeted jobs tax credit program.

Services to job applicants include employment counseling, referral for training, interviewing, referral to jobs and access to a national job bank.

Minnesota job service is operated by the state economic security department. Nationwide, job service programs made 4,939,680 job placements during the 12-month period ending Sept. 30, 1983.

A LITTLE TOO YOUNG to go through the bicycle safety clinic in Thief River Falls Saturday, three and one-half year old Theresa Gaffaney kept herself entertained by riding her own miniature bicycle. During a break in the steady stream of participants, Theresa's bike was given a safety check. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Gaffaney, she was at the clinic with her parents and older sisters Becki, 7 and Jeni, 6. More than 100 youngsters attended the clinic which was sponsored by the Thief River Falls police department, state patrol, Northland community college student law enforcement association, Pepsi-Cola bottling company and the Kiwanis club.

County Fair To Build New Pole Building

Pennington county fair association voted Monday evening to spend up to $20,000 for construction of a new pole barn in the fairgrounds in Thief River Falls. The 72x100 building would have four-foot walls on the sides and ends and be 12 feet high in the center.

Plans are to have specifications ready for bidding by June 1 and the building ready for the fair this summer. A committee consisting of LaVerne Hamre, Dale Svendsgaard, Ron Broten, Si Hanson and Terry Courneya will determine how the building will be used in overall livestock exhibit.

The building will be located to the west of the present sheep, hog and poultry building with the south ends of the two buildings parallel. There will be a show ring space between the two buildings.

Also decided Monday evening was that a senior citizen luncheon would be conducted at noon Friday, July 20, followed by an awards program where the outstanding senior citizens of the year would be introduced. Following that program at the American Legion club rooms, buses would transport seniors to the fairgrounds for a senior citizen talent show in the arena. Winners will perform at another county fair program.

MACHINERY designed to separate garbage into various components for recycling and conversion to a marketable fuel source was viewed by a delegation of government officials, investors and consultants who traveled to Cherokee, IA, on Tuesday to consider whether it might be applied to solid waste problems faced by Pennington county. Among those observing a demonstration put on by the Lundell Manufacturing Company were: (from left) State Representative Wally Sparby; Les and Steve Nordhagen, county sanitation contractors; Ted Pauling, an independent sales consultant for the equipment; Alderman Ken Murphy, chairman of the city sanitation committee; Kathy Hahne, special consultant for the Minnesota department of energy; and Russ Christianson, certified public accountant for the Nordhagens. Further information about the trip will be carried in Monday's edition of the Times.

Knox School Back In Class Picture

Knox elementary school, closed for regular public school classes a year ago because of budget cuts, will be put back into use on a partial basis for the coming school year.

That was the decision made this morning at a special meeting of the School District 564 board of education in the school district service center. Following lengthy discussion of potential alternatives and related costs, the board voted to transfer grade sections as necessary to Knox for a period of at least three years.

Involved for the 1984-85 school year would be two sections of kindergarten, one section each of first through fourth grades, and possibly one section of fifth grade.

Supt. Robert Block said he regretted the necessity to move children from one school to another as will be done when classes move back to Knox. But he said the transfers were recommended because of the need for space for an added fifth grade section, a general learning disabilities program, the vision program; improved location of the trainable mentally handicapped program; added music space in the elementary schools, alleviation of excessive class sizes and other factors.

At the present time, he said, it is hoped that it will be necessary to utilize only the main floor of the Knox building. Additional facility cost under the proposal has been placed at $45,000, including librarian, aide, custodial, special education and administrative time. Work will be done to ready the kitchen and classrooms during this summer.

Approval was also given by the board to post for a community education director to coordinate that program and promote public education in the community. The posting was recommended by the community education advisory committee. Terry Lemer, who had served in that position in addition to his post as adult education coordinator at the area vocational-technical institute, is leaving the district this spring.

The position will be funded through community education money and it is expected the position will be filled by July 1. Serving on a selection committee will be school board members Myrle Carlson, Greg Pribula and Harry Sjulson. Named from the community education advisory committee to assist in the selection process were Madayln Novellino, Marvin Lundin and Terry Lemer.

Approval was also given to post for a two-hour English instructor position at Lincoln to aid in the implementation of the K-12 writing program. Next regular meeting of the board will be June 4.

Local Teacher Appreciation Dinner Tonight

Teacher appreciation dinner sponsored by the Thief River Falls Education association will be conducted tonight (Wednesday) at 6:30 p.m. at the American Legion club rooms. Mike Lehrer will serve as master of ceremonies.

Lincoln high school music students under the direction of David Morken will sing and invocation will be given by Rev. Paul Bortnem, member of the board of education. Gifts will be presented to Suzanne Steidl, teacher of the year, and retiring teachers Dolores Bakke, Marian Gigstad and Donald Hermanson.

Achievement awards will be presented by Ron Martin of the chamber of commerce and comments given by Supt. Robert Block, school board chairman Harry Sjulson and Mayor Bob Carlson.

Graduation At Goodridge HS This Friday

Commencement exercises will be held at the Goodridge public school on Friday at 8 p.m. Graduation addresses will be given by Diana Troska and Alain Hug (Alain is an exchange student from Switzerland). Alan Foley, former principal of the Goodridge school, will be the commencement speaker.

Dr. Donald Langan, superintendent of schools, will present the class of 1984 and the diplomas, assisted by Gordon Henrickson, administrative assistant.

Memorial Day Services At TRF, Plummer

Memorial Day services at Thief River Falls and Plummer have been announced by the veterans' organizations sponsoring both events. The Thief River Falls service will be at 10:30 a.m. Monday at Friendship Gardens and the Plummer service at 9:30 a.m. at the Pershing high school auditorium.

Al Sollom, retired after lengthy service in the marine corps, will be speaker at the Thief River Falls service. Color guards from the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars posts will participate and a wreath ceremony will be held. Flags will be placed on graves of veterans Friday evening. In the event of rain Monday the services will be moved to the city auditorium.

Plummer American Legion Post 623 and auxiliary will sponsor the program in the school auditorium. It will be followed by visitation of seven cemeteries in the area and a potluck dinner at the American Legion club rooms for all guests and American Legion and auxiliary families.

The Thief River Falls services will be broadcast live on KTRF radio.

Opening Exists On ICC Council

Any private interest group which may be interested in having representation on the Inter-county Community council board of directors, is requested to write or call the Inter-County Community council in Oklee before May 31.

Council Puts Ammonia Tank Permit On Hold

Thief River Falls city council voted last night to rescind a permit issued May 8 to Farmers Co-op Grain and Seed, which would have allowed them to install a 40,000 gallon anhydrous ammonia tank within 200 feet of a residential area.

That action was taken following presentation of a petition signed by 18 residents of the area, requesting a special meeting of the city council to discuss the location of the tanks on North Dewey Avenue. In presenting the petition, which he said he had only received that evening, Alderman Milan Borsheim added that he had also received numerous phone calls reporting that accidental leaks at the site had been more numerous than the one incident reported by the company when the permit was applied for. (Farmers Co-op presently has an 18,000 gallon ammonia tank in use at the site which was installed 11 years ago.)

Claiming that Soo Line employees had reportedly had to shut down operations because of Ammonia spills there, he questioned whether unsafe operating procedures were being used at the site. Mayor Bob Carlson questioned why the police or fire departments had not been called during these incidents if the safety hazard was that serious, noting that the incidents would have to be documented.

City Attorney Bob Wurst was questioned regarding potential legal actions that might result from their rescinding of the permit. He noted that since the permit had already been issued, it placed them "right back in the soup." Alderman Ken Murphy noted that they had to make safety a primary consideration in any action that they took.

Noting that they had not been aware of the claims of accidents at the time the permit was granted, council moved to rescind the permit until Police Chief Ken Froeschheiser could conduct an investigation into the alleged incidents.

Council also spent quite a bit of time on a recommendation from the finance committee that the curling club be sold to the club members. Don Liden, representing the club, noted that the roof of the building was in bad shape, and requested assistance in repairing leaks.

Alderman Jim Womack noted that the club presently leased the building from the city at a cost of $10 per year, under an agreement that they would be responsible for maintenance. Liden noted that the club had made $35,000 in improvements to the building, stating that he felt the outside of the building should be the responsibility of the city.

Attorney Wurst gave an option that "the lease wasn't written that way," adding that if the city did sell the building they would have to ask a fair market price for it.

Alderman Borsheim noted that the building and land had been given to the city by the fair board, with a stipulation that they would be permitted to use it for 10 ydas out of the year, suggesting that if the property was sold, those conditions would have to remain as part of the sale agreement unless the fair board voted otherwise.

Mayor Carlson suggested that if the city had to pay for the repairs to the roof (estimated at $15,000), they would have to raise the money somehow, suggesting that they might have to raise the rent on the building.

The matter was finally turned over the finance committee to meet with the directors of the curling club and work out a solution.

In other business the council:

— Set a hearing date of June 11, at 7:30 p.m. to discuss assessments for an approximately $18,000 downtown

Times To Print Saturday Due To Holiday

Due to the Memorial Day holiday on Monday, the Times will be published on Saturday of this week. Early advertising and news copy will be necessary to be included in that edition.

Times management and staff appreciates the cooperation of the public in observing the advanced deadlines. The Monday edition should be on local newsstands shortly after 1 p.m. on Saturday and will be mailed on the regular schedule Monday.

Invite Girls To Miss TRF Pageant Party

Girls interested in receiving information on the 1984 Miss Thief River Falls pageant are urged to attend a pageant party to be conducted Wednesday, June 6, beginning at 7:30 p.m. in the commons area of the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute.

According to entries chairman Lana Christianson, the party is intended to answer questions and provide information on entering and taking part in the Miss Thief River Falls scholarship pageant Saturday, July 28, under the theme "What a Feeling". Girls ages 16 to 25 are eligible for the competition this year.

A videotape of the 1983 pageant will be shown and the reigning Miss Thief River Falls, Beverly Rustad, will be present to discuss her pageant experiences and events of her reign.

Division winners, runners-up and Miss Thief River Falls will again receive substantial prizes and awards.

Further information is available from co-chairman Debbra Swanson at 681-4962 or Lynn Pederson at 681-6148.

Chat And Chew Season Ends With Luncheon

Salad luncheon at the Best Western highlighted the Chat and Chew Homemakers final meeting of the season.

Ten members attended the luncheon. Following the luncheon, the members assembled at the Kenneth Murphy home for the final business session. President Vi Sullivan presided and led the group in reading the new homemakers' creed. Geneva Overum gave the secretary's report, Marion Williams, the financial account, and Pauline Aubol and Wanda Murphy reported on the homemakers council meeting. It was noted that no decision had been made regarding the homemakers tour; and that two homemakers workshops had been held at Zion church. Leaders training topics were given by Wanda Murphy.

A change was also made in officers for the next year. Eileen Rhodegard will replace Marion Williams as treasurer, Wanda Murphy will serve as junior counselor and Pauline Aubol will be senior counselor.

The afternoon concluded with a lunch served by Pauline Aubol, Wanda Murphy, Vi Sullivan and Marion Williams. As a special token, Marion Williams distributed colored woolen yard butterflies which she had made.

Meetings of the Chat and Chew homemakers club will resume in September. At that time, the new officers will assume their duties and the secret pals will be revealed.

Margaret Saetre Names President Elect Of MFWC

Mrs. Warren (Margaret) Saetre of this city was named president-elect of the Minnesota Federation of Women's Club (MFWC) at the 90th annual convention held May 4-6 at the Ramada Inn on Old Hudson Road in St. Paul. Mrs. Saetre is past president of the local Zehlian club.

Mrs. Saetre attended the convention together with Ina Thorsgard, president of the Zehlians. Others from the area attending were Marge Busch, of the Newfolden study club, past president of the Ninth district MFWC; and Joyce Reynolds of the Mathein club of Crookston, MFWC community education division chairman.

Elected second vice president was Maybelle Johnson of Blooming Prairie and formerly of Crookston. Newly installed MFWC president Laurel Bessesen of Edina, appointed Joyce Reynolds, Crookston, as ESO chairman in the education department; Linda Turn of the Mawami club, Warren, chairman of the Family economics division; Marge Busch, Newfolden, chairman of the Family Living Division of Home Life department, and Elva Bustrack, Warren, chairman of the Community Improvement program.

In the awards program, The Zehlian art club, Thief River Falls, received a $50 prize for best program in the Art Department with their art in schools project.

Special guests at the convention were GFWC recording secretary Phyllis Dudendorffer, Senator Marilyn Lantry, Senator Rudy Boschwitz, and Speaker of the House Harry Sieben and his wife.

Guest speakers were Rep. Carolyn Rodriguez, who spoke on mandatory seat belt legislation; and Ron Reiman of Alliance for Clean Energy, who gave information on acid rain. Banquet speaker was Janie Jason, whose topic was "This Land is Your Land — This Life is Your Life." The prayer breakfast meditation, "All This and Rye Bread, Too," was given by Evelyn Young. Special music was provided by the 3M Men's Chorus.

Highlighting the convention was a tour of the Governor's Mansion for members of club which had made contributions to the MS society, a special project of the GFWC and MFWC presidents. The tour was led by the Women's Organization of the Minnesota Historical society.

The 1985 Minnesota Federated Women's club convention will be held in Duluth May 4-5.

Lillian Taylor Is Honored On 75th Birthday

Mrs. Lillian Taylor of this city was honored on her 75th birthday at an open house on May 5 at the Skylite center.

Hosting the open house were Mrs. Taylor's daughter, Jeanine Kane of Prior Lake, and her sons and their wives: Doyle and Delores Kainz, Dennis and Cathy Kainz of Goodridge, and Frank and Mary Kainz of Brooklyn Center, who were unable to attend.

A program was presented with Diane Hardy, a granddaughter, in charge. She also read a brief history of Mrs. Taylor's life. Rev. John Beck, pastor at St. John Lutheran church, gave the devotional meditation, and at the conclusion of the program, led the table prayer. Mrs. Taylor's daughter and sons gave appropriate readings, Jared Kainz, a grandson, played a saxophone solo, and Kay Kainz and Tracy Bradach, a granddaughter and great-granddaughter, respectively, presented a flute duet. The program concluded with Mrs. Taylor expressing her appreciation to everyone for attending, and the "Happy Birthday song by the grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

A reception followed. Centering the serving table was an open book birthday cake, baked and decorated by Margaret Rupprecht. The cake was decorated with roses, in various shades of pink, and lilies of the valley. The pink and green motif was carried out in decorations, in the corsage worn by Mrs. Taylor and in the floral arrangement of pink daisies and carnations accented by white daisies, a gift from her 14 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

All the great-grandchildren, Tracy and Jami Bradach and Matthew Hardy of Prior Lake, were in attendance. Also present were grandchildren: Diane Hardy of Prior Lake, Cherrie Lutz, Minneapolis; Kent, Kraig, Kurt, Kay, Jared and Jason Kainz, all of Goodridge.

Among the relatives and friends attending the open house were Ed and Ida Klappendach of Staples, and Jim Sinclair and Carl Odland of McIntosh.

Three Life Memberships Given By Aux.

Three Life Memberships in the American Legion auxiliary were presented at the meeting of the unit which followed the Gold Star Mothers banquet held recently at the Legion club rooms.

Life Memberships are given for outstanding work in the auxiliary. Receiving the honors were Constance Driscoll, Avis Odegaard and LaVonne Haraldson. Department President Blanche Coppa of Bayport, who was guest speaker at the banquet, made the presentation. She also presented membership pins to Mrs. Driscoll, Mrs. Odegaard and Betty Graff for their work in recruiting new members.

Honor guests at the banquet were Gold Star Mothers: Lila Martinson, Anna Nelson, Margaret Kjelgren and Bernice Trochmann. Each was presented with a long-stemmed rose. The program included opening and closing prayers by Chaplain Constance Driscoll. Poems were read by Betty Graff.

The annual memorial service honoring members who died during the year, was led by Mrs. Driscoll. A moment of silence was observed as each name was read, a candle was lit and a white rose was placed in a vase. Names read were those of: Mrs. Hattie Holmstrom, Mrs. Amy Meyers, Clara Bloomquist and Mrs. Helen Brown. The service also included a poem by Karen Fredrickson and a duet by Ann Odegaard and Paul Cuppett with Mindy Green as accompanist.

Report on the poppy program was given by chairman Lyla Quam. She gave information on the card sales, poppy days and the poppy poster contest. She stated that Constance Driscoll and Clarice Galliher will assist her in judging the posters.

Members voted to host the Department Junior auxiliary conference in Thief River Falls in 1985. Members were encouraged to attend the Ninth District convention to be held June 1-2 at Detroit Lakes. Reminder was also given that prayers are needed for the Auxiliary prayer book. Prayers to be entered are to be submitted to Mrs. Driscoll.

The slate of officers for 1984-85, was submitted by LaVonne Haraldson a member of the nominating committee. Officers will be installed at the June meeting.

Mental Health Bellringers Are Announced

Michele Beito of St. Hilaire and Mrs. Lawrence Bjorness of Newfolden have been named community mental health bellringer chairmen for the 1984 May-June campaign, according to David Krogseng, president of the Mental Health Association of Minnesota.

The Mental Health association is the largest citizens' voluntary advocacy organization in the United States fighting mental illness and promoting mental health.

Its entire support comes from volunteer contributions such as those collected during the Bellringer Drive.

Goals of the association are to ensure adequate services for mentally ill individuals across the state, promote mental health and prevent mental illness. These goals are approached in a number of ways, including individual advocacy, systems advocacy, family support services and preventive education.

This year the National Mental Health association is celebrating its 75th anniversary during May.

Bolin Essay On Grandparents

(Editor's Note: Lisa Bolin of St. Bernard's parochial school wrote the third place essay in the contest sponsored by the Northern Minnesota retired educators association. Her essay on "My Grandparents" was as follows:)

by Lisa Bolin

Who was always willing to watch us when my parents went to Las Vegas or Australia? My grandparents, that's who!

Who makes the best Thanksgiving dinner ever, and taught me the states and capitols like a pro? My grandma!

I love going to visit them. Their house is like my second home. They have a teeter-totter in their yard, one that my grandpa had made a long time ago, back when my dad was a boy. When the grandchildren are there we all use it, even my older cousins.

They even had a swingset built out of logs that my grandpa made also. It faces the river that runs past their house. When I was little, I used to think I was going to go flying into the river when I was swinging.

They don't get mad at me when I crash my mini-bike into a tree and they are never mad when my cousins and I break their hammock because we swing too high in it. They are always ready to listen, and they make me feel special because I'm their granddaughter.

My grandma used to be a teacher, and my grandpa used to work at a mill. He is a very smart person, and so is my grandma. My grandpa even succeeded in making me like sardines.

Lisa Bolin

My grandma likes to show me where she lived when she was a girl. It's fun to hear about her childhood.

One of my favorite times is when my grandma and grandpa get together with friends, and they starting talking about when they were little. They talk mostly about the bad things they did. It's really funny when they talk about what my dad, uncles and aunts did when they were young (I think my dad was the worst!)

I don't think my grandma will ever be the type to sit around in a rocking chair and knit. (I don't think my grandpa will either!) I love them very much.

Wind Erosion Recognized As Soil Threat

With the spring's work comes the spring windy season, and farmers getting back into the fields are noticing more of the problem areas and are starting to plan ways of correcting them, according to Cheryl Sistad, clerk at the Marshall-Beltrami soil and water conservation district.

Fortunately, the Marshall-Beltrami soil and water conservation district still has about $3,500 in State cost-share assistance money available," she said. "These monies are to be used to help get conservation practices on the land. The program is designed for non-production practices that will last a minimum of 10 years. These funds are available to individuals, groups or units of government. Up to 75 per cent cost-share assistance is available on eligible practices."

Deadline to sign up for funds from the 1983-84 fiscal year allocation is June 26. At that time unencumbered funds are returned to the state treasurer and added to general revenue.

Practices eligible for state cost-share assistance include: Critical area stabilization, animal waste control systems, field windbreaks, stormwater control systems, diversions, stripcropping and erosion control structures.

To sign up for a practice or get more information, stop in or call the conservation district office in Grygla (294-6144). Allocations are made on a first-come, first-served basis.

Say Knowledge Bowl Assists Rural Schools

A novel program, known as the Rural Knowledge Bowl, has been developed and funded by the Communicating for Agriculture (CA) scholarship foundation. CA is a rural advocacy association with more than 30,000 members and headquartered at Fergus Falls.

"It is a test on current events taken by students of small rural high schools", says Keigh Hubel, bowl orginator and professor of education at Southwest state university, Marshall.

"The bowl has been billed the spelling bee of the 80's — motivating both students and teachers from small rural high schools," Hubel said.

The first rural knowledge bowl was completed April 9 when six winners were selected from 97 finalists. Initial rounds of the bowl were held in January when more than 4,500 students from 30 high schools in southwestern Minnesota took the test.

Like the spelling bee, the bowl offers a special incentive to students. If they score well enough, they may compete at higher levels for scholarship awards offered by CA.

Hubel believes that awards are not so important when compared to the test's intellectual stimulation.

"The next time he hears a news item about a question he did not know, it will mean more than it did before the test," said Hubel. "And that's what education is striving for — better learning through better teaching."

Rural knowledge bowls promote better teaching by providing teachers information packets to use in classes, which results in a special emphasis on current events. They have become a popular conversation topic among educators from the 30 schools which hosted the first Bowl.

According to Hubel, the bowl was developed as a response to demands by rural teachers for convenient professional growth.

"Rural teachers need professional stimulation," Hubel said. "They may be a one-person department with numerous classes and coaching responsibilities and don't have time to introduce new material or to enrich themselves professionally."

Widespread interest has prompted other teachers to begin bowls in their schools. According to Bill Adams of CA, the bowl has been an "educational catalyst providing an infusion of new material and energy into rural schools."

He predicts an expansion of the bowl to states like Illinois and Iowa later this year. The test itself will also be expanded to include information other than current events.

For more information call (218) 739-3341. Or write: CA Inc., Law Office Building, P.O. Box 877, Fergus Falls, MN 56537-9990.

WRITTEN TESTS were given to youngsters attending the bicycle safety clinic Saturday at the law enforcement center in Thief River Falls. Cliff Mattson of the Minnesota state patrol asked the questions at this session of the clinic. More than 100 young people completed the program, a slight increase from the number of participants a year ago.

SPECIAL RECOGNITION was given to these two candystripers who have provided lengthy volunteer service to the Northwestern hospital auxiliary. Recognized with $100 scholarships toward their study in health fields at the auxiliary's spring membership luncheon were Vicki Hunt, left and Denise Anderson.

Commissioner Says To Hedge On Sunflowers

Farmers looking at recent record prices for sunflower seeds as a possible crop option this year should seriously consider futures contracting to hedge their risks against fall cash market problems, suggests agriculture commissioner Jim Nichols.

This past week cash sunflower market prices hit 20.25 cents a pound at Duluth as traders continued to bid up for the dimishing, if not already exhausted, supplies of the 1983 crop that was the shortest in seven years.

Futures contracts for fall delivery of the 1984 crop sunflowers were being offered by country elevators this past week in western and northwestern Minnesota, ranging from $12.60 to $13 per 100 pounds.

Despite the record markets, and one elevator manager's speculation that the futures contracts may still peak this spring at 14 cents to 15 cents a pound, farmers in northwestern Minnesota are not stampeding to their seed dealers. It should be noted that it is too early in the season for many farmers to make final decisions on all of their 1984 crop land, and sunflowers will still remain an option if adverse weather conditions continue to delay seeding and planting of usual grain and oilseed crops.

Commissioner Nichols said the futures contract opportunity looks good right now for farmers in areas that have not previously been heavily planted to sunflowers and thus have not established the disease and insect hazards that have sharply reduced yields for several years in much of the Red river valley.

He also emphasized that the current futures markets look much safer than fall cash markets, for any farmer who does plan to plant sunflowers this year. Nichols said he has already taken his own advice.

Letters to the Editor

I am writing about a serious problem that each summer robs scores of innocent Minnesota men, women and children of a well-deserved opportunity to fully enjoy the Great Outdoors. I'm talking about mosquitoes — those mindless micro-sharks of the air that can turn a gentle walk in the woods into a scene from an Alfred Hitchcock movie.

While unintentionally feeding the mosquitoes one day last summer, I realized that the problem we have with mosquitoes, like so many other problems we have, boils down to a basic "failure to communicate."

The situation is really quite simple. They want something that we've got, namely blood, and they can't get to it without making us itch. They want the stuff so badly that they routinely risk life and limb to get it.

Setting aside for a moment the distasteful way they go about securing their meals, what mosquitoes want from us isn't really all that unreasonable. Even when you figure that you've been brutally attacked and left for dead by a ruthless swarm of mosquitoes, if you stop for a moment and separate the insult from the injury, you'll discover that for all the danger they faced and all the casualties they probably suffered, all they got out of the deal were a few measly drops of blood. I'm sure from their perspective, that's a pretty tough way to make a living.

My point is, mosquitoes are really not very big eaters. And is it really fair to blame them for causing us so much trouble when we're the ones who actually make it so difficult for them to achieve their modest goals?

Now, here's my suggestion. I think that if people could be assured that mosquitoes would no longer bite them, most folks would gladly give at least twice the amount of blood these desperate creatures are normally accustomed to forcibly extracting from us. (Perhaps the blood could just be left in a little saucer on the front doorstep — like some people leave milk in a saucer for the family cat.) We wouldn't be giving up anything that we can't comfortably spare, and, most importantly, we wouldn't have to spray ourselves any longer with foul-smelling repellents or, worst yet, stay indoors to avoid the Big Itch. As for the mosquitoes, they'd have more to eat than ever (mealtimes would certainly be a lot more relaxing for them than they are now) and the little buzzers wouldn't have to fly around with guilty little consciences anymore.

Although there might be some on both sides who might ignore a truce — a few humans who might insist on continuing to swat and kill just for the sport of it, a few mosquitoes who may have become understandably addicted to the thrill of outsmarting creatures so much larger than themselves — an inter-species commission made up of leaders from both sides could see to it that the few, inevitable ugly incidents would not jeapordize the negotiated peace. The commission could even develop co-species correctional facilities and rehabilitation programs for both mosquito and human offenders.

One small problem. We have to find a way to tell the mosquitoes about our plan. "Bzzz, Bzzz. Take me to your leader."

Sincerely,
Steve Levinson

Gospel Sing At Fosston

Third in a series of old fashioned Gospel sing-alongs will be held at the Embassy community center in Fosston Friday at 8 p.m. All who enjoy Gospel music are encouraged to attend. Anyone playing a musical instrument is invited to join the orchestra accompanying the singing. There is no charge for the evening's program. Refreshments will be served.

State Highway Work Projects Are Underway

With the "official" start of the summer travel season — the Memorial Day weekend — just around the corner, the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) reminds motorists that his year's highway improvement work also is in full swing.

"Our concern," says state transportation commissioner Richard Braun, "is for the traveling public. We want everyone to know where major construction, reconstruction and maintenance projects on state highways and bridges will be taking place."

This summer's statewide work program includes 246 jobs with an estimated cost of $290 million. The schedule includes several large projects which began last year, but will not be completed until 1985 or later.

"The traveling public will experience some delays at highway improvement and maintenance sites, delays which are unavoidable with such an extensive program. The work is part of our continuing efforts to maintain our highway system, which transportation analysts value at $18 billion," Braun said.

"Mn-DOT working in cooperation with the federal, state and private sectors is helping to provide the safest roads possible. We all can be proud of this effort in highway safety. The nation recorded its lowest traffic toll in 20 years during 1983. In Minnesota, there were 558 fatalities for the lowest number recorded since 1949," Braun said.

Another important benefit of the summer construction and improvement work is jobs. Mn-DOT's program is expected to generate either directly or indirectly 42 private sector jobs for each $1 million spent. This means more than 12,000 jobs.

Gas Prices In State Increase By One Cent

Since mid-April, gas prices in Minnesota increased by an average of one cent per gallon, according to the latest fuel survey taken by Minnesota AAA.

The greatest increase took place with full-service regular and unleaded — both up 2.1 cents during the past month. Self-serve regular was up by 1.4 cents per gallon while self-serve unleaded only increased by two-tenths of a cents.

"Overall, full-service prices increased at a slightly faster rate than self-serve," said spokesman Mark A. Larson. "However, the gap between full and self-serve prices has remained steady over the past year."

The AAA's survey of 84 stations showed average full-service prices in the state to be: regular, $1.363; unleaded, $1.416; unleaded premium, $1.603; and diesel, $1.303.

Self-service prices are: regular, $1.201; unleaded, $1.246; unleaded premium, $1.348; and diesel, $1.207.

Of the 84 stations surveyed, 47 or 55 per cent — planned to be open Memorial Day, May 28.

The survey also revealed that in the Twin Cities Metropolitan area, motorists will pay over 20 cents per gallon more for full-service while in other areas of the state the price difference was only seven cents per gallon. In northwestern Minnesota, difference between full service and self-service gas price is only three and one-half cents.

Motorists who use self-service should be sure to have their vehicle checked for minor maintenance problems when they have an oil change or lubrication job. (To be safe, a good rule of thumb for this is every 3,500 miles.)

Sale Of Human Body Parts Is Illegal In MN

Governor Rudy Perpich has signed into law a bill prohibiting the purchase or sale of body parts. In speaking for the National Kidney Foundation of the Upper Midwest, Inc., president Henry T. Smith, M.D., stated, "I feel the passage of this bill is an achievement toward the goal of providing more organs for transplantation and protection of individuals needing such transplants. It is immoral and unethical to place a living person at risk of surgical complication and even death for a cash payment."

Minnesota is one of the foremost transplant centers in the world with four major centers — Mayo clinic, Hennepin county medical center, University of Minnesota hospitals and the Veterans Administration medical center — located in the state. Therefore, the passage of this legislation is considered of great significance. The national Kidney foundation is firmly opposed to the sale of donor organs for both medical and ethical reasons because:

+ The temptation of a cash reward for donation would violate the basic concept and sanctity of informed patient consent to invasion of his or her body.

+ The recipient's interest in and right to the best organ available might be compromised by the donor's interest in a cash reward for donation.

+ We recognize, perhaps more than most, that the need for donor organs is presently incompletely met. We fear, however, that placing a price on a donor organ will undermine the current system of a voluntary gift of life, and will actually decrease the number of organs now available for transplantation.

Over 35 million people have signed organ donor cards through the kidney foundation's "Gift of Life" organ donor program. This program encourages the gift of cadaver organs on a voluntary basis with organ transplantation based on medical need and creteria without discrimination of economic status, race or sex.

The National Kidney foundation, dependent upon voluntary support, directly serves the needs of kidney patients through programs in research, patient and community services, public and professional education, and the "Gift of Life" organ donor enlistment. Persons interested in signing a donor card may do so by indicating donor on their drivers license or contacting the National Kidney Foundation of the Upper Midwest, 1821 University Avenue, St. Paul, Minnesota 55104, 612-645-8605.

Senator Says Dairy Board Must Succeed

Senator Rudy Boschwitz says the newly created national dairy promotion board needs to show tangible results in a short period of time if it is to have a long-term effect on the dairy surplus problem.

The board was created when the Boschwitz dairy compromise became law last spring. The board will administer a $140 million national promotion program to rekindle interest in dairy consumption. The program is financed by a mandatory 15-cent per hundredweight assessment on all milk produced and marketed commercially by dairy farmers.

Three Minnesotans were among the 36 appointed to the board by Agriculture Secretary John Block. Robert L. Gee of Moorhead and George Rydeen of Stillwater were appointed to one-year terms. Leslie Winters of Bingham Lake will serve a three-year term.

Boschwitz said the council faces two immediate challenges:

"First, it has to succeed," Boschwitz said. "It could be that the future successes of the family dairy farmer will hinge on our ability to successfully market milk."

The second challenge is that it must show results in a relatively short period of time.

"On Sept. 30, 1985, just 16 months from now, the initial program will be over, and farmers will decide on whether or not to continue it. Unless they can see some real progress, I doubt whether farmers will be enthusiastic about continuing to pay for it."

Boschwitz said the board should guard against the temptation to be "somewhat stodgy and conservative."

"Everyone knows how much I like dairy farmers," he said. "But it's possible that any group of 36 strangers who have never worked together before could be relatively slow moving."

Simultaneously Boschwitz cautioned the board to avoid "safe — and probably bland — advertising" that has been the trademark of much dairy advertising until now.

"If the ads don't catch the eye of farmers and consumers, the program will probably fail," he said. Boschwitz also urged that the board actively seek out input from the non-farm sector.

"There are many creative advertising men in this country. One hopes the board will receive and evaluate proposals from a good number of them. After all," he said, "it probably wasn't a beef farmer who thought up 'Where's the Beef?' "

Congressman Supports MX Missile Bill

Congressman Arlan Stangeland voted Wednesday to authorize $1.7 billion to procure 15 MX Missiles. The compromise was down from requests for $3.14 billion and 40 missiles requested by President Reagan and $2.7 billion and 30 missiles requested by the House armed services committee.

An earlier vote to delete the entire appropriation for MX missiles failed by a vote of 212-218. Congressman Stangeland opposed the unilateral shelving of the deterrent.

"The Soviets have walked out of the arms reduction talks, and continue to add an SS-20 missile every 10 days," Congressman Stangeland said. "Voting against the MX would reward the USSR for refusing to negotiate for arms reductions."

He noted the MX is needed to replace 20-year-old Minuteman missiles. "We had planned to install new intercontinental missiles in the late 1970s," Congressman Stangeland said. "That was not accomplished. Even if Congress completely approved funds for the MX next week, it wouldn't be operational until late 1986, seven years late."

While the U.S. has not built a new long-range missile in over a decade, the USSR has added 80 missiles that are similar or larger than the planned MX. They have also flight tested two new types of long-range missiles and have even newer missiles on the drawing boards.

"The one proven method for deterring wholesale destruction is to ensure that the USSR doesn't get a wide superiority in nuclear weapons," he said. "Voting to scrap the MX would not have gained the U.S. a thing, but it would have benefitted the Soveits."

Unilateral actions by the U.S. have failed before, he said. President Carter unilaterally shelved the MX missile, the B-1 bomber, the Pershing II Missile, the Trident submarine, the cruise missile, the neutron bomb and other planned U.S. systems. When he asked the Soviet arms negotiators to reciprocate, they replied, "We are neither pacifists nor philanthropists — w e will do nothing."

"I want a freeze and reduction in the nuclear arsenals of the world, leading to the eventual complete elimination of all nuclear weapons in the world," Congressman Stangeland said. "But until we get a verifiable agreement, we shouldn't increase the threat of war by tempting the arms-building USSR by letting our deterrent rust away while the Soviets refuse to negotiate.

"The one great lesson of our century is that war is averted only when the democracies are strong enough to deter totalitarian agression," Congressman Stangeland said. "We must all work for peace, and the best way to reach peace is to work for peace through strength.

"The best way to get the Soviets back to the table is to show that we will build the missiles they don't want us to have, unless they return to the talks right now," Congressman Stangeland said.

16 Approved In State Cost Sharing Grants

Sixteen applicants have been approved for the initial distribution of $500,000 in state cost sharing grants under the agricultural development program recommended by Governor Rudy Perpich and authorized by the 1983 legislature, it was announced today by agriculture commissioner Jim Nichols.

The state's grants will be matched by at least $272,734 from the 16 farm and commodity organizations successful in keen competition for the fiscal 1984 agricultural development program.

Forty-eight applications were submitted and considered by the Minnesota department of agriculture administrative staff in this first year's grants program. The total applications considered added up to nearly $1.9 million in state assistance sought for development projects.

Commissioner Nichols noted that while the new state program provides the authority for the state to pay up to 75 per cent of the total cost of an approved agricultural development project, this first year's implementation was able to achieve a 65 per cent state and 35 per cent sponsoring organization cost-sharing overall.

Minnesota vegetable growers association received the top grant, $70,000 for a $93,300 market development promotion for "Minnesota Grown" fresh produce.

Minnesota corn growers also received $70,000, but for two separate projects. Complementing the vegetable growers association project is one of the more unique projects approved for a $50,010 state grand to enable the irrigators association of Minnesota to develop a mobile field — cooling system to preserve the freshness and quality of "Minnesota Grown" produce. The irrigators will add nearly $35,000 of their own funds to that $85,000 project.

Other grant recipients for agricultural development projects this year are as follows:

Minnesota corn growers association, $30,000 to establish a research and promotion checkoff and $40,000 to develop intermediate and long-term forecasts of commodity supply, demand, prices and estimated farm income.

Minnesota dry edible bean research and promotion council, $50,000 for a $93,333 campaign to promote new and expanded markets for this specialty crop.

Minnesota wheat research and promotion council, $47,000 of the $94,000 estimated cost to produce two films for global promotion of Minnesota agriculture and its products.

Minnesota egg research and promotion council, $30,000 for a $46,670 campaign to promote increased sales of the "edible, incredible egg."

Minnesota agri-growth council, $42,198 to develop and promote a Minnesota agricultural business directory at a project cost estimated at $59,818.

St. Paul grower's association, $33,080 for a $41,930 campaign to promote and increase the consumer visibility of the St. Paul farmers market.

Minnesota Farmers Union, $49,962 for a $71,778 market development promotion of this state's livestock industry and its variety of high quality products.

Minnesota calf feeders, $13,500 to develop a national and international marketing analysis for the export sale of dairy animals, project cost $18,000.

Minnesota livestock breeders association, $3,000, for a $4,000 cooperative promotion of Minnesota produced red meats and dairy products.

Minnesota barley growers association, $15,000 of the estimated $20,000 cost to develop a checkoff program to finance research and market development.

North Central florists association, $19,500 of the estimated $26,000 cost to develop a sales promotion for poinsettias and other Minnesota grown flowers and foliage plants.

Minnesota turkey research and promotion council, $3,750 of the $5,000 cost for a one-week promotion "blitz" to promote increased sales and consumption of turkey products in the Chicago market.

Minnesota area one potato council, $3,000 for a $4,250 campaign to promote and market the Minnesota grown chipping and other processing potatoes.

Prairie Public TV To Add Broadcast Hrs.

Prairie Public Television had added over 40 hours of daytime programming to its summer schedule for the summer months, according to station officials.

Beginning May 28 and running through September 14, Prairie Public Television will sign on at 8 a.m. weekdays and 9 a.m. Saturdays and Sunday, offering viewers full-day broadcasts seven days a week.

Offering a full summer schedule for the first time in its 20-year history, Prairie Public Television is making public affairs, how-to, drama, and children's programs available during the morning and afternoon times that are used for school programming during the school year. In years past, Prairie Public Television signed-on in mid-afternoon during the summer months, offering children's programs leading into the night's broadcasts.

Prairie Public Broadcasting's Television Manager Larry White notes that this summer's expanded program schedule has been made possible by member viewers in the PPTV coverage area. "This service is something viewers have been requesting for a long time," says White. "The fund-raising success we had in March coupled with our anticipated success in the August membership drive allowed us to go ahead with this extensive addition to our schedule," White adds.

Prairie Public TV's daytime schedule is as follows:

Monday — (A.M.) 8:15 A.M. Weather; 8:30 Body Buddies; 9:00 The Electric Company; 9:30 Powerhouse; 10:00 Today's Special; 10:30 America Works; 11:00 Cookin' Cheap; 11:30 Mister Rogers Neighborhood; 12:00 Sesame Street; (P.M.) 1:00 Masterpiece Theatre; 2:00 Boyd Christenson Interviews; 2:30 Skylines; 3:00 Sesame Street; 4:00 Mister Rogers Neighborhood; 4:30 The Electric Company; 5:00 Sesame Street; 6:00 The Nightly Business Report; 6:30 Wild Wild World of Animals.

State Crime Down; Violent Crime On Rise

Overall crime is down in Minnesota for the first quarter of 1984 from 1983, but violent crimes against people, with the exception of murder, are on the increase.

Minnesota department of public safety reports crime generally decreased almost 14 per cent for January, February and March of this year compared to the same period last year. Rape and aggravated assault are the two categories where crime is on the rise.

Aggravated assault is up 37 per cent and rape up nine per cent for the period. The bureau of criminal apprehension, which keeps track of the state's crime statistics, says the report does not include figures on crime in St. Paul because that city's reporting procedures do not comply with uniform crime reporting standards.

Urban crime was down in the quarter 12 per cent while rural crime dropped 24 per cent. Minneapolis crime decreased 16 per cent.

The report is based on figures supplied each month by sheriffs and police departments. A total of 27,907 crimes were reported in the first quarter of 1984 compared to 32,284 in the first quarter of 1983.

State public safety officials report that of the 1,668 vehicles that have been reported stolen the first three months of the year, 53 per cent have been recovered. While there is an old saying that the 'criminal always returns to the scene of the crime', it appears many people who steal vehicles seldom leave the scene. Officials report that of those vehicles recovered by authorities, 68 per cent were found in the same jurisdiction in which they were stolen.

The picnic was held in honor of Pete Furuseth, son of Norman Furuseth of Williston, N.D. and Jim Walker, son of Ethel and Jim Walker of Bemidji. Both boys graduated from law school at the University of North Dakota on Sunday afternoon. Relatives and friends attended from Concord, Calif.; Williston, N.D.; Minneapolis, Moorhead, Bemidji, Thief River Falls, Northome and Roseau.

Wednesday evening coffee guests at the Winton Knutson home were Mrs. James Koropatnicki and Mrs. Mark Olson of Rocksbury, also Mrs. Judy Wiggens and her granddaughter, Amanda Drews of Bemidji.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Morkrid and Amber were Saturday overnight guests at the LaVerne Hamre home.

Friday evening guests at the Winton Knutson home were Melvin Johnson and Norman Lyn of Seattle, Wash.

Charlotte Bjorgaard, Cheri, Russell and Eric attended the graduation of Donald Magnusson in Argyle on Sunday afternoon.

Last Sunday Florence Knutson went with Mrs. James Koropatnicki to Grand Forks, N.D. to the United hospital to visit with Mrs. Walter Waller of Hallock.

Child's Tooth Development Needs Care

National children's dental health month will be observed throughout the nation during February. As part of the observance, the Pennington county dental society provides the following article:

When a baby's first tooth appears, the mother writes the date in her baby book, the father takes a picture of it and the grandparents brag about its arrival to their friends. Everyone seems to know that the appearance of the first tooth marks an important step in the baby's development.

Children need healthy teeth to chew their food easily, to help them speak clearly, and to look good to themselves and their friends. In these respects, a child's primary or first teeth are just as important as the permanent teeth, even though most of the primary teeth will be lost naturally by about age 12.

The tooth buds begin to grow between the sixth and eighth weeks of pregnancy. As the weeks pass, the buds become tooth-shaped, and their cells form enamel, dentin and the other parts of the teeth. The enamel starts to calcify (harden) between the third and sixth months of pregnancy. During this time, it is important for the pregnant women to eat a diet containing enough calcium, phosphorous and vitamins. If her diet is inadequate, the baby's teeth may not develop properly.

By the time the baby is born, the crowns (the part you see when you look in the mouth) of some primary teeth are almost complete. In fact, a few babies are even born with teeth. According to recent estimates, about one baby out of a hundred is born with a tooth already peeking through the gums. Usually this is a perfectly normal primary tooth that has come in early. As a rule, the first tooth to erupt (come through the gums) is one of the central incisors, or front teeth. This tooth often appears when the child is about six months old. By age 2½, the remaining primary teeth are usually in place in the mouth. In between these times, parents may blame a child's fussiness, diarrhea, drooling, night waking and even fever on "teething."

Studies have shown, however, that teething is not the cause of many of these problems. It is especially important for parents to realize that a child with a fever is ill and needs to be seen by a physician. Mistakenly blaming the fever on teething can unnecessarily delay medical treatment.

As soon as teeth appear in the mouth, they can start to decay. The day your baby's first tooth appears, you must assume an important new responsibility — cleaning the child's teeth. After the baby eats, clean the teeth with a wet washcloth or gauze pad. This will remove plaque, the film of bacteria that forms on everyone's teeth and causes dental disease.

In addition, take care not to give your baby a bottle of milk, formula, sugar water or fruit juice when putting the baby to bed at night or during the day, for a nap. This can cause "nursing bottle mouth," a condition in which a young child's teeth are affected by serious decay. The teeth most likely to be damaged by this condition are the upper front teeth, the ones that make such a difference in your child's smile. So don't take any chances: fill the bottle with water when putting your child into bed.

Remember that baby's first tooth isn't just cute, it's important! By taking good care of it — and the 19 other primary teeth that will follow it — you can help your child go through life with a healthy, happy smile.

Scientists Are Optimistic About U.S. Waterfowl

by Madeleine Jacobs
Smithsonian News Service

Long before the official start of spring, the nation's skyways begin to fill with the sights and sounds of millions of ducks and geese heading northward to their breeding grounds. The graceful V-formation of a flock of canvasback ducks, the haunting call at nightfall of a skein of Canada geese, the undulating waves of snow geese alighting on a marsh — all stir something deep in the human psyche.

Perhaps, as one wildlife expert suggests, these migratory travelers are a symbol of determination, of the will to survive. At times, the odds against survival must have seemed formidably high.

In 1849, explorer Howard Stansbury gazed across a vast expanse of Utah's Bear river delta and wrote: "The marshes were covered by immense flocks of wild geese and ducks . . . Thousands of acres, as far as the eyes could reach, seem literally covered with them."

Yet, even as Stansbury wrote those words, millions of acres of prime waterfowl habitat — wetlands consisting of swamps, marshes, bayous, bogs — were being drained to make way for agricultural, industrial and urban development. The remaking of the American landscape accelerated at a dizzying pace throughout the 19th century.

Overhunting and such recurring natural disasters as drought and disease further took their toll on the nation's waterfowl. By the turn of the century, waterfowl populations, as well as many other populations of wildlife, had suffered drastic declines.

Today, however, many wildlife managers and biologists share the outlook of Harold Duebbert, who has devoted 25 years to the management and research of waterfowl and declares himself "cautiously optimistic about the future of America's waterfowl."

Duebbert is a wildlife biologist at the Northern Prairie Research Center in Jamestown, N.D., one of five major wildlife research installations of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife service. To bolster his view, Duebbert points to long-established federal programs for preserving and acquiring waterfowl habitats — especially high-quality breeding areas in the northern prairie region — that have helped to maintain desirable population levels for a number of species.

Moreover, Duebbert and other specialists say, years of research on the basic biology of these birds and their habitats have begun to yield payoffs, leading to better management of existing habitat and populations.

Turn around came slowly. The first federal wildlife refuge was established on March 14, 1903, when President Theodore Roosevelt, an ardent conservationist, issued an executive order that set aside a two and one-half acre tract in Florida for brown pelicans.

One by one, additional parcels of land and water were taken out of federal lands, donated or bought to protect waterfowl, waterbirds and other wildlife. From such modest beginnings, the interior department's national wildlife refuge system was born.

There are now 416 national wildlife refuges, located in Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and every state except West Virginia. Most provide a haven or nesting ground for North America's 43 native species of ducks, geese and swans — some 80 million birds.

Understandably, managing this or any other complex of lands for dozens of waterfowl and other wildlife species, which may have different needs, is a herculean task.

A case in point: Brigantine national wildlife refuge in New Jersey is a resting ground during the fall migration for 15,000 to 20,000 black ducks and a winter home for 1,500 to 6,000 black ducks. The refuge is also a wintering ground for large numbers of snow geese. And therein lies a potential conflict, says Tom Dwyer, leader of the migratory game bird research section at Patuxent wildlife research center in Laurel, Md.

"The snow geese come in and eat out large areas of the marsh," Dwyer explains. "They literally pull up root stocks, leaving mud flats."

Patuxent researchers are now taking a census of the snow geese and studying their effects on the food supplies of black ducks, which have suffered alarming population declines since the early 1960s. As part of this study, 50 black ducks have been captured, equipped with radio transmitters and released. The ducks are now being monitored on the refuge and adjacent state areas to determine their winter mortality.

Reasons for the decline in black duck populations are unclear, but hunting, coastal habitat loss and interbreeding with its close relative, the mallard, may be causes.

But there are many unknowns, Dwyer says. In another radio monitoring study in Maine, researchers found that the natural mortality of black duck broods may be underestimated by 20 per cent. A related study there revealed that black ducks with broods favored ponds with flowing water created by active beaver colonies, even when other wetlands were available. "This study," Dwyer says, "suggests that regulations promoting an expanding beaver population may result in the creation of black duck brood-rearing habitat."

For at least two decades, wildlife researchers have recognized the importance of unraveling these kinds of interrelationships to ensure proper management practices.

It goes without saying that "we have to understand what makes the bird tick — its basic biology," says Dr. Lewis Cowardin, a wildlife biologist at the Northern Prairie research center. But that's not enough. "We also have to understand how the whole ecological system works. If you don't have that understanding, you're apt to make the wrong management decision."

Another case underscoring wildlife management difficulties is one from the "prairie pothole" region in the Dakotas, northern Montana, Nebraska, Iowa, Minnesota and southern Canada. This area, with its thousands of small ponds or "potholes" left by the retreating glaciers of the last ice age, is the breeding ground of seven million ducks, which produce more than 50 per cent of America's young waterfowl.

For years, managers of this habitat stressed preservation per se, Northern Prairie's Duebbert says. "From studies over the past 15 years, we've learned that prairie habitats are not stable. They are dynamic systems — in their long history, they've been burned, trampled on, regrown." Prairie waterfowl seem to be biologically geared to these changes. "Our studies, for example, show that a tall, dense grass cover planted in a disturbed area attracts two to three times as many hens as native, undisturbed grassland."

Duebbert can now reliably predict how many nests he will find in a given type of grassland. But it is much more difficult to predict nesting success — the percentage of nests in which young hatch — because other factors are at work.

Studies by Cowardin reveal that nesting success in central and eastern North Dakota and western Minnesota may be extremely low — eight or nine per cent — because of predation by the red fox, striped skunk and ground squirrel and because of the conversion of grassland to intensively farmed areas.

At some sites in Montana, however, nesting success rises to 40 per cent, in part because these predators are less abundant there and in part because the type of grass cover is more conducive to nesting.

Drawing on these years of research, Cowardin has developed a mathematical model that enables managers to determine the potential effects of a particular management decision, say, using electrified barriers to reduce predation. The model tells a manager what increase in nesting success might be expected if a particular area were fenced and compares the effects of alternative approaches, such as buying more suitable land.

At the national wildlife health lab in Madison, Wsc., researchers also are studying the management and prevention of disease in wild waterfowl populations. "With the continued loss of habitat," Dr. Milton Friend, lab director, says, "this country has been trying to produce and 'house' more birds on less land. In effect, we've been developing conditions — crowding, for example — that promote disease transmission."

But crowding is only one factor in the spread of dangerous avian diseases. Preliminary research at the Madison laboratory indicates that there are distinct chemical differences in various environments that affect the persistence of disease organisms in the water. Findings from such studies, Friend believes, may help managers make more informed decisions about the suitability of a particular wetland area as a refuge.

Despite important advances in managing waterfowl, the loss of wetlands continues to concern wildlife biologists. A recent interior department study indicates that, between the 1950s and 1970s, nine million wetland acres, an area nearly twice the size of New Jersey, were lost. Current losses are rated at 458,000 acres a year.

Whatever research can do to increase production and manage waterfowl better is important, Duebbert says, but he adds, "There is a real need to preserve as much wetland as we can."

Happy Acres

Happy Acres 4-H club met May 14 at Valhall. The meeting was called to order by president Todd Carlson. County extension agent Polly Prunuske was welcomed. Flag pledges were said and roll call was answered to 'What is your favorite sport?" Secretary's report was read and approved.

A thank you was read from the CPLT for those who helped at family fun night. Treasurer's report was read and approved, showing a balance of $155.39. Puzzle buttons are still on sale for $1. Gloria Mapes talked about 4-H Sunday, May 27 and appointed committees for name tags, hostesses and clean-up. The secretary read the club charter.

Gloria Mapes talked about fund raising for leaders council, such as an auction, money jars and a thing-a-thon. Junior leader spring retreat was announced for May 18 and 19. No decision made on ticket prices at the carnival. Kathy Carlson talked about share-the-fun and thanked Paul Johnson and Corey Bugge for standing in when someone was sick. Twenty-seven members will go to state fair for this. Thanks are extended to the coaches.

Kathy Alberg talked about community pride. Eleven members went to CPLT carnival. Club members will clean Valhall at the next meeting. Planting at Oakland Park will be at the conclusion of Dairy Day. Food pantry needs crackers, soup, powdered milk and peanut butter or donations of money. June 20 is the date for county demonstrations. Work was scheduled to be done on the banner at Conley's.

Sharon Smith talked about touring the homes to see projects; let the leaders know if you want to be in the tour. Anyone who has any ideas about judging at the fair for future years should tell the leaders. There was a vegetable gardening project meeting after the business meeting.

Bev Finke received the Hot Dog award for her outstanding work in the shooting sports project. Shannon Anderson made a motion to adjourn the meeting, seconded by Steve Conley. Todd Carlson gave a review of records. Demonstrations were given by Jason Clark on tomato plants, Adam Bugge on vegetable gardening and Matthew Carlson on New Home for Plants. Recreation was "Trainwreck". There were 30 members, 11 parents and six guests present. Next meeting will be on June 11 at Valhall.

Foods Hint: When baking, sometimes you use egg and solid shortening. When you measure the shortening it always sticks in the cup. Instead, crack the egg in the cup, mix it up a little and dump the egg into the bowl. Then put the solid shortening in the cup. Wow! It doesn't stick!!

THE SUBJECT ISN'T HAIL.
IT'S RISK.
Maybe insurance isn't on the top of your list of priorities. But "risk" should be. Years ago, many farmers and ranchers could self-insure themselves. But today their investments are too great. They have too much at stake.
Farming has become capital-intensive. And because it is, insurance has become a very sophisticated subject. "What can I afford to put at risk?" is a much more pressing question to ask your insurance counselor than, "How much does hail insurance cost?" What's at stake is so much more than your sweat equity and a chunk of your savings. Today it's more often business equity and credit payments.
So who can help you measure your risk? At Production Credit, we're qualified to help. We serve farmers exclusively, and we have the financial and agricultural know-how to assist you.
How much hail insurance is right for your operation? At Production Credit, we'll give you competitive rates and straight answers. Call us today about hail insurance. Ask us questions, and we'll ask a few of our own. We think our expertise can help.

Windy Weather Causes Serious Soil Erosion

Recent strong winds in the last couple of weeks have started to take their toll, according to Allan Gustafson, district conservationist of the soil conservation service in Thief River Falls.

"Wind erosion on the sandy soils was very visible last Wednesday, with wind gusts up to 30 miles per hour or more," he said. "The sky was a big haze in certain areas. The western end of Pennington county is most susceptable to wind erosion."

Red Lake county has three large sand plains; one on its northwest corner, another in the Terrebonne area, the third in the southeast corner of the county.

Fields that are dry on top were hurt the worst, both seeded fields and the ones not yet worked. Most of the topsoil is ending up in tree rows, fence lines and road ditches. Fields that had some residue on the surface from the conservation tillage generally were not having any wind erosion problems, Gustafson said.

"Hopefully, the crops will start growing and soon provide the protective cover for the topsoil," he added. "April and May are the two critical months for serious wind erosion in this part of the state."

Surplus Food Distribution Is Next Week

Surplus commodities will be distributed in this area at several locations from May 29 to June 1, for households meeting minimum income guidelines.

Commodity cards must be presented for each household which an individual wishes to pick up commodities for. Proof of meeting minimum income standards will be required before cards will be issued. Further information on obtaining eligibility cards may be obtained by East Marshall and Beltrami county residents by calling Outreach aide Karen Skadsem at 222-3309. # How To Join Others In Star Watching

by Daniel K. Broclous
Smithsonian News Service

Every year for about the past decade or so, local planetaria and astronomy clubs have sponsored public lectures, sky-watching programs and "star parties" in celebration of National Astronomy day. This year, those activities were celebrated across the United States on May 5, except in northern California where Astronomy day was celebrated in April.

For people who want to combine an interest in astronomy with an unusual vacation, the Smithsonian selected studies program is holding a series of seminars and visits to observatories in the Tucson, Ariz., area. The program, "The New Astronomies," includes lectures by well-known scientists and tours of observatories on Kitt Peak and Mount Hopkins.

There are also year-round activities for amateurs. Amateur astronomy clubs exist in all 50 states and in most other countries, from Canada to Japan, from South Africa to Sweden. The Chicago astronomical society, founded in 1862, claims to be the world's oldest astronomy club. Among the largest amateur organizations are the astronomical league and the American association of variable star observers (AAVSO).

League is an umbrella agency with 9,000 members and 150 societies and clubs across the country. To receive a copy of "Reflector," the league's newsletter, write the editor, Carol J. Beaman, 6804 Alvina Road, Rockford, Ill. 61103.

AAVSO is a non-profit, worldwide scientific and educational organization of amateur and professional astronomers who observe stars that change in brightness. In a recent year, nearly 200,000 observations were reported to AAVSO from more than 500 observers worldwide. Special skills or equipment are not required to join. For details, write AAVSO, 187 Concord Ave., Cambridge, Mass. 02138.

Astronomical society of the Pacific is a non-profit educational and scientific organization dedicated to increased public understanding of astronomy. Its members include professional and amateur astronomers, educators and laypersons. The society publishes a bimonthly magazine, Mercury, describing new developments in astronomy in non-technical terms. Write the Astronomical society of the Pacific, 1290 24th Ave., San Francisco, Calif. 94122.

Four-year-old society of amateur radio astronomers circulates information for builders and promotes observational programs and publication of results. The monthly newsletter reports on members' activities. Contact Robert M. Sickels, 7605 Deland Ave., Fort Pierce, Fla. 33451.

Individuals interested in contributing to the International Halley watch should write to S.J. Edberg, Jet Propulsion labratory, California institute of technology, MS T-1166, 4800 Oak Grove dr., Pasadena, Calif. 91109.

Magazines describing astronomy for the general reader as well as amateur skywatchers include "Sky and Telescope" and "Astronomy". "Sky and Telescope" is a monthly publication on astronomy and closely related subjects. "Astronomy" is a colorful magazine describing the wonders of space with special sections devoted to amateur astronomy. Both are available at libraries and bookstores.

"Amateur Telescope Making" is a three-volume authoritative reference work for serious hobbyists. For information on ordering and prices, contact Scientific American, ATM Dept., 415 Madison ave., New York, N.Y. 10017.

And finally, amateurs who spot new comets, asteroids of novae may report their discoveries to the International Astronomical Union's central bureau for astronomical telegrams at the Harvard-Smithsonian center for astrophysics in Cambridge, Mass. The bureau is a clearinghouse for such new discoveries and, by cablegram, quickly alerts astronomers worldwide so they may study and confirm the sightings. The bureau also assigns names to the new comets; to ensure priority of discovery, amateurs should send information by telex, 710-320-6842, Astrogram Cam.

Our Saviour's Academy Gets $3,000 Grant

Our Saviour's Christian academy of Thief River Falls has been awarded a $3,000 grant for the 1984-85 school year from Aid Association for Lutherans (AAL).

The money will be used to obtain a computer and related expenses for 25 students enrolled in a computer science course. The grant is part of AAL's Lutheran high school enrichment program which will provide more than $455,000 this year to nearly 100 Lutheran high schools in the United States.

Local high schools determine their needs in general areas of faculty and staff development, program enrichment and constituent relations.

500 HOURS of volunteer service have been compiled by a number of workers at Northwestern hospital services. Clarice Gallther (left) and Edythe Pearson were among those recognized at the auxiliary luncheon Saturday. Others having similar service include Pauline Aubol, Claudine Herber, Naomi Peterson and Bonnie Tauer.

Golf Team Heads Region 8AA Field

A week before the 1984 Region 8AA meet, Thief River Falls boys stamped themselves a legitimate post-season title contender Tuesday with an impressive first place finish in the 13-team Brainerd Invitational.

All 13 Region 8AA golf-playing schools were represented at the meet, conducted on the Brainerd Golf & Country Club course — site of the 1984 Region 8AA tournament next Tuesday.

Thief River Falls won in a field that included Alexandria, St. Cloud Apollo, Bemidji, Brainerd, Detroit Lakes, Fergus Falls, Little Falls, Melrose, Moorhead, Park Rapids, Rocori and St. Cloud Tech. Only Region 8AA school not at the meet was Sauk Rapids.

In addition to team honors, the Prowlers' Jim Geatz established himself as one of the top Region 8AA individuals with a first place medalist performance yesterday.

Maybe it's too much pressure to put on the Prowlers to expect them to return to Brainerd and repeat Tuesday's success, but coach Jack Boyer's team has definitely made an impression on the rest of the Region 8AA teams, and the Prowlers will be a team to watch next week.

Thief River Falls will be gunning for its first regional golf title since 1963 Tuesday.

Track Teams Have Tough Assignments

Thief River Falls boys and girls track teams, both for the most part fielding young and experienced squads this spring, still managed to enjoy some degree of success during the course of the regular season that concluded Monday at Roseau.

But competition will be a lot tougher Thursday when the Prowlers are matched against Moorhead, Park Rapids, Detroit Lakes, Fergus Falls and Bemidji in the 1984 North Sub-Region 8AA high school track meet at Bemidji.

Moorhead girls are not only expected to win the North Sub-Region 8AA meet, but also the overall Region 8AA title with an excellent team.

Thief River Falls girls have lacked the individual standouts assured of first place finishes this season, with the Prowlers instead relying on their depth to score points. The Prowlers' best hopes of advancing entrants into the Region 8AA meet is in the 1600 and 3200-meter relay teams, according to Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer. The Prowlers have placed first or second in those races in almost every meet this spring.

But while the 3200-meter relay team of Georgia Howard, Paula Wilkens, Cindy Kruta and Peggy Cruz has been particularly impressive, their best time this year has been a 10:20 clocking. Moorhead, on the other hand, was a 10:08 to its credit.

Moorhead boys are likely to have a strong team, too.

Best bets for the Thief River Falls boys are the hurdles, where Randy Swenson and Jeff Langan have been winners all spring in the 110-meter highs and 300-meter intermediates. Swenson has a strong 15.5 clocking in the 110 high hurdles Monday at Roseau.

But Detroit Lakes probably has the outstanding individual in the North Sub-Region 8AA field, and he's a hurdler: Jay Jorgenson, who won four events in last week's Mid-State Conference meet. He took the 110-meter high hurdles in a school record 14.7; won the 300-meter intermediate hurdles in a school record 39.0; captured the triple jump in a conference record 40-7; and topped the high jump field at 6-4 — which tied a conference record set two years earlier by his older brother Todd.

Miscellaneous

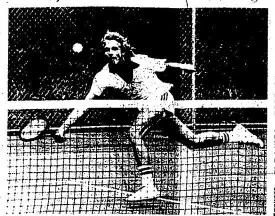
+ Moorhead and Bemidji are nearly assured of being the top two seeded teams for the 1984 North Sub-Region 8AA high school baseball tournament, scheduled to play Tuesday and Thursday next week at Moorhead. The Spuds finished 5-1 and the Lumberjacks 4-1 against regional foes and will receive byes into the tournament semifinals. Thief River Falls, Fergus Falls, Detroit Lakes and Park Rapids will likely be matched up in the opening round based upon seeding voting by the coaches. Pairings will be announced this week.



CROOKSTON'S TOP tennis player, Jay Claassen ran down this shot from East Grand Forks' Del Nelson Monday during the championship match of the 1984 Sub-Section 8 high school tennis tournament played in Thief River Falls. The Pirates easily won the match 4-1, but Claassen had his troubles in a 6-1, 6-0 defeat at No. 1 singles. Individual portion of the tournament was scheduled to be held here today (Wednesday).

TRF Ends Five-Game Losing Streak . . .

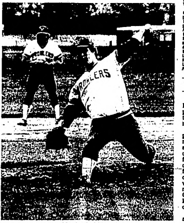
Prowlers End Schedule By Beating Flyers 11-1



WINNING PITCHER Monday in Thief River Falls' 11-1 high school baseball victory over Bagley was junior lefthander Ryan Drees, who helped snap a five-game losing streak by the Prowlers by limiting the Flyers to just four hits — two in the second and two in the fifth — during the five-inning, 10-run victory. Thief River Falls finished its regular season schedule with an 8-6 record. The Prowlers will enter North Sub-Region 8AA tournament play next week in Moorhead.

Fourteen Thief River Falls batters paraded to the plate in an eight-run fourth inning Monday as the Prowlers closed out their 1984 regular season high school baseball schedule with an 11-1 win over Bagley.

Because of wet grounds at the Prowlers' normal fairgrounds diamond home field, the game site was switched to the Northland Community College diamond. Cold temperatures and light rain followed the team, but the Prowlers ignored the elements and snapped a frustrating five-game losing streak at the expense of the mistake-prone Flyers.

Thief River Falls finished with an 8-6 regular season record. A Thursday home date with Roseau was suppose to be the season finale this week, but a scheduling mix-up by the Rams forced cancellation of that game.

Bagley surrendered two second inning runs Monday when Ryan Bakke caromed a single off the third base bag and Gary Cornell drew a walk. Bakke scored on a two-out single to left by Joe Blankenfeld and Corenll scored on a wild pitch.

Things really fell apart for the Flyers in the fourth when they gave up eight runs on four hits, six errors, a balk, three walks and a hit-batsman. All that added up to a 10-0 Thief River Falls lead.

It started with a walk issued to Cornell and a two-run home run over the left field fence by Blankenfeld. Rick Spong followed by beating out an infield single before Bagley collapsed defensively. Todd Ortloff, for example, struck out, but reached base when the ball got by the catcher on the third strike for an error; was picked off first base, but reached second when the Flyers, with a Thief River Falls runner at third breaking for the plate on the play, dropped the ball at home; made it to third when Bagley third baseman Bob Bestul failed to hold onto the throw on a stolen base attempt for an error; and scored when Bagley pitcher Randy Kircher threw the ball away on a pick-off move to first base.

Two bases-loaded walks given to Blankenfeld and Drees also produced runs that inning — giving Blankenfeld four RBI's for the game.

Drees lost his bid for a five-inning shutout when Bestul hit a ground-rule double and scored on a two-out bloop single behind second by Craig Olson.

That avoided the 10-run rule ending for the Flyers in the top of the fifth, but the end came in the bottom of the inning when Steve Solheim walked on a full-count, Brian Dormady was hit by a pitch and Tim Bottem walked on four pitches to load the bases. A one-out throwing error — inexplicably to first base, anyway when the game-ending run at the plate would have been an easy force-out — made it an 11-1 final.

Thief River Falls will enter post-season play next week at Moorhead when the six-team North Sub-Region 8AA baseball tournament, featuring Thief River Falls, Moorhead, Bemidji, Fergus Falls, Detroit Lakes and Park Rapids, will get underway Tuesday and finish Thursday, May 31. Pairings will be announced later this week.

Meanwhile, the Thief River Falls junior varsity will wrap up its schedule this week by hosting the Middle River-Marshall County Central varsity today (Wednesday) at 4:15 p.m. and entertaining the Roseau junior varisty Thursday at 4:30 p.m.

Impressive Golf Win . . .

TRF Boys Win Brainerd Meet

Thief River Falls beat Fergus Falls in a tie-breaking playoff Tuesday to win the Brainerd Invitational high school golf meet — a preview of the 1984 Region 8AA tournament for boys next Tuesday at the same Brainerd Golf & Country Club site.

At the end of the regulation 18 holes, Thief River Falls and Fergus Falls were deadlocked at a four-man 316 team stroke total, with the Prowlers beating the Otters in the playoff for the title.

Rest of the field, which included all 13 Region 8AA golf teams, found Little Falls a close third at 318, Alexandria and Brainerd tied at 321, Rocori 323, Melrose 325, Park Rapids 326, Moorhead and St. Cloud Tech 327, Bemidji 328, Detroit Lakes 331 and St. Cloud Apollo 334.

Thief River Falls senior Jim Geatz added individual honors with a first place medalist finish at 72, two shots ahead of Dan DeMuth of Apollo and Chris Strab of Little Falls at 74. Mark Grasso of Little Falls had a 75 and Bob Martin of Brainerd turned in a 76.

It was the final regular season outing of the 1984 season for the Prowlers, and their third victory in 10 invitational meet appearances this spring. They earlier won an eight-team event at Red Lake Falls back on May 1 and won their own 11-team Thief River Falls meet on May 15.

TRF Girls Will Golf In Region Event Friday

Thief River Falls girls completed their 1984 regular season high school golf schedule Monday with an appearance in a four-team Mahnomen Invitational.

Host Mahnomen won the event with a four-player 396 team stroke total, followed by Roseau at 410, Thief River Falls 425 and the Mahnomen junior varsity 589.

Jeannie Gibson of Cass Lake, which did not field a complete team, was meet medalist with a 78. Kathy Spilde of Mahnohen was runner-up with an 83.

For the prowlers, Michelle Olson had rounds of 48-49 for a 97, Kathy Reuter 50-53 for a 103, Kari Jorde 52-57 for a 109, Kirsten Pollick 60-56 for a 116, Jenny Spencer 65-62 for a 127 and Hendi Tangquist 66-68 for a 134.

Coach Ruth Onkka's Prowlers will compete in the 1984 Region 8AA meet Friday at Little Falls starting at 11 a.m.

North Sub-Region 8AA Meet Is Thursday . . .

TRF Boys Win Track Title At Roseau Invitational

It was a surprise even to Thief River Falls head coach Tim Olson Monday when the Prowlers won the boys' portion of the annual Roseau Twi-Light Invitational high school track meet.

Thief River Falls won the 11-team event with 93 points, followed by Tri-County with 83, Marshall County Central 78½, Crookston 77½, Fisher 59, Red Lake Falls 43, Warroad 36, Roseau 30, Hallock 20, Lake of the Woods 8 and Kennedy 0.

It was just the second victory in a dozen multiple-team outings for the Prowlers this spring, with their only other victory coming in a much-smaller five-team field at the Thief River Falls Invitational May 8.

Even more surprising than Thief River Falls' victory was Crookston's fourth place finish. The Pirates, not the Prowlers, have been the dominant team in the area this spring.

It was the final regular season meet for the Prowlers, who will joint Moorhead, Detroit Lakes, Fergus Falls, Park Rapids and Bemidji at the 1984 North Sub-Region 8AA meet Thursday in Bemidji starting at 4 p.m.

"A good way to finish up," confirmed Olson. "It was fun. I didn't expect it, and the kids didn't expect it, either. They were really excited about winning it."

Thief River Falls won the meet despite winning just one event — the 300 meter intermediate hurdles, where Randy Swenson ran a 41.9. He was also a second place finisher with an impressive, but wind-aided, 15.5 in the 110 meter high hurdles. That was one of six second place finishes for the Prowlers that helped them accumulate the 93 meet-winning points.

Thief River Falls girls, meanwhile, actually outscored the boys by a single point, 94-93, but that still only netted the Prowlers third place behind Crookston with 130 points and Roseau with 117. Problem for the girls was the fact the points just weren't as evenly distributed as they were in the boys' portion of the meet.

Rest of the point totals for the girls included Hallock with 73, Kennedy 39, Warroad 17, Lake of the Woods 14, Red Lake Falls 8, Marshall County Central 2, Fisher 1 and Tri-County 1.

Like the boys, the Thief River Falls girls had a single first place finish when Edna Johnson, Paula Wilkens, Cindy Kruta and Peggy Cruz ran the 3200-meter relay in 10:37.

Point total could have been higher, explained Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer, but the Prowlers were minus some individuals who would have closed that gap between them and second place Roseau.

MR-MCC Wins Baseball Game 10-4 Monday

Winning pitcher Danny Cwikla was also 3-for-4 at the plate Monday as Middle River-Marshall County Central defeated Humboldt-St. Vincent - Lancaster - Pembina 10-4 in a match-up of cooperative high school baseball programs.

Two home runs highlighted a seven-run fourth inning for the winners, who received a solo shot from Dean Hjelle and a three-run blast from Darrin Peterson that inning.

Cwikla pitched a two-hitter. Middle River-Marshall County Central collected eight hits in winning for the fifth time against eight losses.

Success didn't carry over to Tuesday, however, as Middle River-Marshall County Central lost a 9-8 game to Kennedy-Hallock at Newfolden.

It wasn't a good performance, indicated Middle River-Marshall County Central coach Tom Neibauer. "A lack of concentration," he said.

Tom Neumann had two hits, but the losers were out-hit 7-6 as the Rockets enjoyed offensive success against Dean Hjelle, the top Middle River-Marshall County Central pitcher. Five Kennedy-Hallock batters who received walks off Hjelle wound up scoring.

Middle River-Marshall County Central rallied from a 9-2 deficit with a six-run seventh inning, but left the tying run at second base.

Final regular season outing of the 1984 season was scheduled to be a 4:15 p.m. game today (Wednesday) against the Thief River Falls junior varsity. Post-season playoff start Friday for the bottom two seeded teams, with the quarterfinals scheduled Monday, semifinals Wednesday, May 30, and finals Friday, June 1.

EAST GRAND FORKS' Del Nelson stretched to reach a shot from Crookston's Jay Claassen at No. 1 singles during the championship match Monday in the team portion of the 1984 Sub-Section 8 high school tennis tournament played in Thief River Falls. Nelson surprised Claassen 6-1, 6-0, but the Pirates handled the Green Wave 4-1 for the title. Nelson was to be the No. 1-seeded player in the singles portion of today's individual tournament matches in Thief River Falls, with Claassen moving into doubles where, combined with twin brother Jeff, they formed the No. 1-seeded team.

TRF Beats Mahnomen, Loses To Crookston . . .

Pirates Win Sub-Section Team Tennis Title Here

Top-seeded Crookston easily won as expected in the team portion of the 1984 Sub-Section 8 high school tennis tournament played Monday in Thief River Falls.

First round match of the five-team tournament saw No. 4-seeded Thief River Falls beat No. 5-seeded Mahnomen 4-1.

In the semifinals, Crookston eliminated the host Prowlers 5-0 while No. 2-seeded East Grand Forks edged No. 3-seeded Bemidji 3-2.

That set up the finals, but it was no contest as the Pirates breezed by the Green Wave 4-1, earning a spot in the Section 8 tournament semifinals Tuesday at Brainerd.

Individual portion of the Sub-Section 8 tennis tournament was scheduled to be held today (Wednesday), beginning at 9 a.m., in Thief River Falls, with the top two singles players and top two doubles teams moving on to the Section 8 tournament field Wednesday, May 30, at Brainerd.

A youthful Thief River Falls team won easily Monday against Mahnomen, with wins coming from juniors Dan Imgrund and Jeff Vanyo in singles and two doubles combinations made up of eighth graders Troy Hanestad and Shayne Anderson, plus Brett Haugen and John Dondelinger.

However, Crookston swept the Prowlere in straight sets in the semifinals.

"We had a good match against Mahnomen," explained Thief River Falls coach Whitey Olson. "The kids did a nice job. But Crookston is a veteran team with lots of experience. They just had too many good players for us."

With the entire cast returning, Olson is optimistic about the Prowlers' tennis program. "The future is ahead of us," he noted. "We're looking forward to more success in the future."

Thief River Falls' line-up for today's individual competition included Vanyo and freshman Chad Konickson in singles, with Erickson and Imgrund, plus sophomore Dave Winjum and freshman Trent Lemer, in doubles.

Wildlife Group Has Backyard Refuge Plans

Any backyard, from several acres to a few square yards — even a window box — can become a wildlife refuge-in-miniature.

National Wildlife Federation's new "Gardening With Wildlife" kit is designed to help create a backyard environment where birds, butterflies, small animals, trees and flowers can thrive. Developed by NWF's expert naturalists, the kit is the official "Backyard Wildlife Habitat" planning and planting guide with activities and suggestions that can provide years of pleasure for gardeners and the wildlife they'll attract.

Included in the kit's 33 items are a planting guide, a wildlife habitat log for your personal records, a bird feeding preferences booklet, and patterns to build birdhouses and feeding tables.

For more information about the "Gardening With Wildlife" kit, write to National Wildlife Federation, Dept. 170, 1412 16th St., NW, Washington, DC 20036. If you would like to purchase the backyard kit, send $14.95 (plus $1.55 shipping) to the NWF address.

State Parks Open House

Department of Natural Resources has 64 good reasons for people to explore Minnesota this season: they're the 64 designated state parks administered by the DNR's Division of Parks and Recreation.

And with free admission on Sunday, June 3, as an added incentive, visitors are encouraged to explore a park they have never visited before.

Don Davison, Director of State Parks, said that one day each year is designated as an "Open House" and the usual requirements for motor vehicle entrance permit is waived. Picnic areas, hiking trails, swimming beaches and interpretive centers and programs are all available at no cost to the visitor.

Regular charges for special services such as camping, canoe and boat rentals and firewood will still apply, said Davison.

"Whether it's fishing, canoeing, boating, hiking, photography or just a change of pace and scenery that provides your version of bliss, there is room for you — in Minnesota's state parks," he said.

There are some important exceptions to the June 3 open house date that should be noted. Annual Forestville Festival has been expanded to a two-day event this year, with rollicking music and old-time activities highlighting the folkways of yesterday. Visitors to Forestville State Park, 40 miles southwest of Rochester, on either Saturday, June 2 or Sunday, June 3, will find that the motor vehicle permit is not required on either day.

In recognition of the 100th year anniversary of the first shipment of iron ore from Tower Soudan mine, the open house date for Tower Soudan, Gooseberry Falls and Split Rock Lighthouse State Parks has been changed to July 28 to encourage visitors to participate in festivities planned in celebration of the event that shaped the lives of so many Minnesotans.

For additional information on Minnesota's state parks, contact your local state park, regional DNR office, or the Outdoor Recreation Information Center, Box 39, Centennial Building, St. Paul, MN 55155, or call (612) 296-4776.

Federal Duck Stamp

With 1984 marking the 50th anniversary of the federal duck stamp, wildlife officials at the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources have emphasized the importance of wetlands protected in the state through the use of revenue from stamp sales.

"The federal waterfowl production areas in Minnesota complement the state wildlife management areas that the DNR has continued to acquire since 1951," said Roger Holmes, DNR Wildlife Chief. "Together, they comprise a major accomplishment in wetlands conservation and the perpetuation of waterfowl."

Idea for a duck stamp that would provide a dependable annual source of funds for the purchase and protection of waterfowl habitat was conceived by Iowa conservationist and professional newspaper cartoonist J.N. "Ding" Darling.

First stamp went on sale in 1934 for $1 and $635,000 of them were sold. Since wetlands could be purchased for as little as 77 cents per acre at the time, the initial proceeds represented considerable potential habitat.

First funds raised were used to acquire refuges, or sanctuaries, and frequently involved restoration of large wetlands that had been destroyed by drought and drainage. It was first thought that the refuges would be sufficient to conserve waterfowl but it was soon found that nesting areas and feeding and resting sites would also be needed.

During the half century that the federal duck stamp program has been in existence it has produced more than $285 million. These funds have assisted in the purchase of all or part of 186 of the nation's 400 wildlife refuges and thousands of acres of federal waterfowl production areas.

In Minnesota, wetlands acquired with federal duck stamp money are found in about one-fourth of the state's 87 counties.

U.S. Department of Interior has declared that "No part of our landscape provides so many benefits at so little cost to the public as America's wetlands — our swamps, marshes, bottomland forests and other types of water-dominated areas."

Federal and state wildlife officials, conservationists and sportsmen are urging the purchase of the 50th anniversary duck stamp, even by those who do not hunt waterfowl.

Said Holmes, "For the modest price of $7.50, people can do their part toward protecting the habitat of all wildlife — both game and non-game — whose continued survival depends upon us."

Fish Packer License

Unintentional deletion of the "Fish Packer's License" passed in the recent legislative session is being corrected under the DNR Commissioner's administrative authority granted by the same bill. It was not the legislative intent to omit the Fish Packer's License, said officials.

Department of Natural Resources has announced that Commissioner Joseph Alexander has issued a new order providing for a "Fish Packer's Permit" to be issued at no cost.

Persons having this permit will be able to provide anglers the same services that were previously provided under the Fish Packer's License.

Until this permit is available, the DNR conservation officers will honor packaging of fish for transportation by persons who held a 1983 or 1984 Fish Packer's License.

Fish prepared and packaged for transportation must comply with the labeling and record keeping requirements.

Volunteers Needed

Each year the Department of Natural Resources provides a river level reporting service for the public during the canoeing season in order to promote safe and enjoyable use of Minnesota's rivers. The reports cover 19 designated canoe and boating rivers.

This year the DNR is conducting a survey to improve the reporting service and is requesting volunteer assistance from private citizens. Volunteers can assist by filling out river level inventory forms and sending them back to the DNR.

Questions on the form relate the river level to the conditions of the river. The volunteer will be provided with forms and listings of gauge locations as a reference for river level readings.

As a reward for their help, each volunteer who forwards five or more completed forms will receive a bound copy of maps for 18 canoe and boating route rivers from the DNR.

"This survey is an important one for canoeists and the DNR," said Steve Kirch, DNR Trails and Waterways Unit. "The information will be valuable in helping the department to more accurately relate river conditions to those canoeing the streams." Persons who would like to participate in the survey or want additional information should write or call Trails and Waterways Unit, Box 52 Centennial Building, St. Paul, MN 55155; telephone (612) 296-6699.

Designated canoe and boating routes are the following rivers: 1. Big Fork, 2. Cannon, 3. Cloquet, 4. Crow (North Fork), 5. Crow Wing, 6. Des Moines, 7. Kettle, 8. Little Fork, 9. Minnesota, 10. Mississippi, 11. Red Lake, 12. Root, 13. Rum, 14. St. Croix, 15. St. Louis, 16. Snake, 17. Straight, 18. Zumbro and 19. Pine.

Free maps of these rivers are available from the DNR, Trails and Waterways Unit.

Turkey Stocking

Wildlife officials have explained why individuals or sportsmen's clubs are required to have a permit from DNR area wildlife managers before importing turkeys into Minnesota from other states or releasing them into the wild.

DNR Wildlife Chief Roger Holmes explained that the permit requirement is designed to protect resident flocks of truly wild turkeys from inter-breeding with inferior or hybrid strains, some of which have been reared in pens and have lost their fear of humans.

He said the pen reared birds also are frequently attracted to farms and other rural homes where they become a nuisance, requiring control efforts. Because released turkeys are technically classified as a protected species, any private control or removal effort requires a permit from the DNR.

"This can become a very significant local problem and is why the department will not transplant wild turkeys to areas occupied by pen reared or semi-domesticated turkeys," said Holmes.

In order to protect established flocks of wild turkeys and potential transplant zones in Minnesota, wildlife managers will not issue permits for the release of pen reared wild turkeys or their offspring within a zone south of State Trunk Highway 55 and east of Interstate 35 in the southeastern part of the state, or other portions of the state deemed suitable for transplant of wild turkeys.

Holmes said the Minnesota Chapter of the Wild Turkey Federation supports the DNR policy governing the release of pen reared turkeys.

Chapter president John Beard said, "Our members and many cooperating landowners have dedicated long hours to the enhancement of the wild turkey transplanting program. It would be a shame to have this program damaged by well intentioned but ill advised releases."

He urged those concerned with the future of the state's wild turkey population not to release pen reared or imported strains of semi-domesticated birds.

Fishing Guides Won't Require Work Permits

Minnesota fishing guides who work on boundary waters from U.S. bases will not be required to get work permits from Ontario, Congressman Arlan Stangeland reported today.

Canada's federal immigration office has sent orders to Ontario's provincial leaders that no authorization or permits are needed for Minnesota guides who set out each morning from camps on the U.S. side of the border.

Congressman Stangeland received word of this settlement from William Lundy, an officer of Canada's embassy in Washington.

"This is great news for Minnesota tourism and jobs," he said. "It removes a major roadblock from settling mutual questions about replenishing fish supplies and preserving the livelihoods of hundreds of Minnesotans who make their living from tourism."

Stangeland, a senior member of the U.S.-Canada Interparliamentary Group, said he had worked for such a settlement over the past 16 months.

"We did our best to cooperate directly with Ontario on this issue, but every time we seemed to agree, they came up with more red-tape," he said. "This seems to settle a thorny issue permanently."

Minnesota fishing guides who work on lakes entirely within Canada will still have to apply for work permits, unless Ontario determines on a case-by-case basis that their work creates significant benefits for Ontario.

"We still must address the questions of regulating catches and replenishing fish on boundary waters," Congressman Stangeland said.

Rep. Stangeland introduced legislation on that matter after the 1984 USCIG meeting last March. The bill (H.R. 5340) would encourage the President to seek an international commission to regulate fees and catch limits on boundary waters. Those fees would be used to replenish fish resources.

Winged Steeds Gallop Through African Folklore

by Eve Ferguson
Smithsonian News Service

"On certain evenings and sometimes, I must confess, in the daytime, Amadou-Koumba recounted to me tales which lulled me to sleep as a child. He taught me others, too, studded with maxims and morals, in which can be found all the wisdom of our ancestors."

In this memory, contemporary Senegalese author Birago Diop recalls the special role of his own family "griot," Amadou-Koumba, the historian, entertainer and mediator in disputes of his clan.

Griots, as they have been known for centures across western Sudan and part of the Guinean coast, are unifiers of the community, retelling deeds of ancestors, spreading traditional faith and serving as intermediaries at such important social occasions as weddings and child-naming ceremonies.

In Mali, Senegal, Gambia, Nigeria and other African countries, where the Islamic faith reaches back as far as the ninth century, it was the griots who, through the tradition of oral literature, spread the teachings of the Prophet Muhammad, often weaving traditional fables and proverbs with Islamic folklore inspired by the Koran, the sacred book of Islam.

Islam in Africa is nearly as old as the faith itself. Within a generation of the death of Muhammad in 632, Arab soldiers were moving across North Africa and converting the ancient Berber and Tuareg populations in Morocco, Algeria and Tunisia. Later, eastern and western regions were influenced, not by conquest but by Arab commercial expansion along lucrative trade routes, some across the Sahara.

Now, more than a thousand years after the introduction of Islam onto the African continent, Islamic folktales flourish — replacing traditional African legends altogether, existing alongside the older tales or blending with them to create new stories that share aspects of both cultures.

Of the many tales related by griots and their counterparts in various African cultures today, one is told repeatedly. This is the fantastic story of al-Buraq, the winged steed that one night carried Muhammad from Mecca to Jerusalem and then through the seven heavens to the throne of Allah. Recounted in part by Koranic revelation, the story is elaborated upon in religious commentaries and by the artistic and popular imagination. Now, this legend, along with visual images of the Prophet's mythical steed, is featured in a Smithsonian National Museum of African Art exhibition.

Al-Buraq appears often in prints available in Egypt and other Islamic nations of North Africa, but the image is found also in West Africa and Sahel. Indeed, Rene Bravmann, guest curator of the exhibit and author of the related catalog, "African Islam," first encountered the al-Buraq image in the central marketplace in the city of Kumase, Ghana.

"I was browsing through books and manuscripts," Bravmann recalls, "when I noticed a print of a curious white winged creature: it had the body of a horse but its head was that of a beautiful woman, with long dark hair, wearing a jewelled and plumed crown. This riderless steed had elegant peacock feathers for a tail, mighty wings upon its back. . . I was told by the elderly bookseller that the artist had depicted her in flight just as it is written in the Koran.

"To my mind," Bravmann continues, "the popularity of al-Buraq is based on the power associated with this steed." The Prophet's ascesion raised him to a level that no ordinary mortal had attained; there was no event in Muhammad's life that had so triumpantly indicated his claim to be the "Apostle of God."

Koran simply states that Muhammad was "carried" by "his servant at night" to the presence of Allah, and some interpretations assume only the Muhammad was "taken up" to Allah. Others say that he climbed a tree or a ladder into the heavens. But the legend of the winged, part-human steed al-Buraq, popularized by the griots, is the tale that has gripped the Muslim imagination.

"Al-Buraq," Bravmann writes, "is a vital part of this religious epic, a part replete with miracles that both instruct and enchant and enable the believer to contemplate the kingdom of heaven and Allah."

One fabulous fable that elaborates on the character of al-Buraq emerged from the Swahili Coast, that area, from Mozambique to Somalia, richly immersed in both traditional African and Islamic cultures.

In this story, al-Buraq — the name means "lightning" — refuses to let Muhammad ride on her back when he is summoned by Allah to make the journey to Jerusalem. Regardless of the great speed of the winged steed, time is running out. Finally, she decides to let Muhammed ride on her back — but only if she is guaranteed eternity in paradise. Muhammad is apprehensive about making such a promise, but realizing that he must respond to Allah's call, he agrees, and they fly off through the heavens in a flash of lightning.

Motif of a flying horse appears in secular African folklore, although al-Buraq is not mentioned by name. In the Egyptian tale of "The Fisherman's Son," the sultan of the land demands that a young boy bring him "the flying horse" or be killed. Not knowing where to find such a horse, the boy asks the advice of his grandmother, who tells him, "My son, would that God had not guided him who guided you. The task is very difficult. Without God's help, you will surely die. But the flying horse is to be found in the heart of the desert far from human eyes."

Al-Buraq also is depicted in paintings, sculpture and drawings, textiles and jewelry, which like the stories, often convey shared aspects of both African and Islamic cultures.

The Limba people of northern Sierra Leone create an image unlike any other representation of the steed. A charm, drawn in black and sepia inks and called "ambaraku" (al-Buraq), depicts a riderless figure surrounded by Arabic calligraphy. The image is particularly striking because it captures the essence of al-Buraq. It shows an abstract and riderless steed, surrounded on all sides by the words of God.

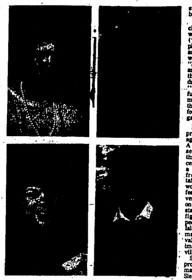
Limba believe that the charm is a powerful aid in warding off harmful witches ("tasalima") and, when placed above a doorway, acts as a sentinel capable of killing witches in a matter of days. "Its protective capabilities are twofold, stemming from the written verse and the drawing," Bravmann says. "The words proclaim the fullness of Allah's power and majesty and thereby assert that the home in which it is found is under His protective gaze."

Baga people of Guinea produce an al-Buraq image unique to their culture. A wooden, stage-like assemblage is adorned with three images of al-Buraq: a central figure consisting of a crowned head extending from the front and a tail fashioned out of colored wood to look like peacock feathers, and two smaller versions of the figure placed on either side of the top of the stage, next to the larger figure's wings. The Baga people have been exposed to Islam for centuries, yet they maintain their traditional values, weaving the al-Buraq image into such occasions as village festivals.

Special African parades and processions also are a blend of many customs. In Freetown, Sierra Leone, for example, one carnival processional known as "Lanterns," because of its elaborate floats and magical lanterns, embraces Christian, traditional African and Muslim sectors of the city. Lanterns occurs at the end of the annual Islamic fasting period, Ramadan; but is really more a reflection of urban life.

One masquerader, who in 1978 paraded as a captivating woman garbed in bright colors and a sash bearing the image of Queen Elizabeth II wearing a crown, was topped by a remarkable figure of al-Buraq poised for flight. "While the secular nature of the processions strikes the viewer most forcibly," Bravmann comments, "its Muslim roots. . . are still very apparent."

Simple, often rough, pictures of the steed without her rider are common in Islamic villages, especially in Egypt. Bravmann firmly believes that "it is these 'crude pictures' that are so popular in Africa and that may in part have served as visual catalysts for the wonderfully creative renditions of al-Buraq currently being produced by African sculptors and scribes." These images and the tales, so memorably told by the African griots, demonstrate how cultures interpret a faith, keep it alive and arrive at new artistic expressions — at once Islamic and African.



GRADUATION CEREMONIES for the graduates of Our Saviour's Christian academy in Thief River Falls will be conducted Friday at 7:30 p.m. at the school with Rev. Charles Johnson of Faith Lutheran Brethren church as the speaker. Theme for graduation is from Psalm 31:3, "For Thou art my rock and my fortress; therefore for Thy Name's sake lead me, and guide me." Graduates include (clockwise from upper left) Lana Jorgenson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Jorgenson; Julie Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Johnson; Audrey Nicholls, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Nicholls; and Dawniss Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Johnson.

We're neighbors you can bank on.

"Trust"

Banking is an industry built on trust. When depositors leave money in an account, they have the assurance that it will remain there and grow. When a check or draft is written, there is a trust that it can be redeemed. When a bank loans money for a new car, home, business, or college education, there is a trust that the money will be repaid. Without trust, banking would be impossible. As your hometown Independent Bank, we're proud of the trust we have received and the trust we have given as a vital part of our community for generations. Ever since the early pioneers settled in the Minnesota wilderness, Minnesotans have recognized the need to trust their neighbors, to give and receive a helping hand, to work together for a better community. Our most important trust as an Independent Banking institution serving this community is to make certain that our services are always responsive to the needs of the community. It's a trust we'll always keep.

About 65 Keenagers enjoyed the chicken dinner and Norwegian goodies on Friday at the community center celebrating Syttende Mai. The regular monthly meeting was called to order by President Lloyd Larson by having everyone stand up and sing "The More We Get Together". He welcomed back Christine Jevne, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Maijola, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith. The secretary's report was read by Selma Sorter and the treasurer's report by Hazel Nelson. Harriet Larson read a thank you note from Pastors Rick and Nancy Lund for the gift given to Christopher Matthew. Gerry Nelson spoke briefly about the meeting she had attended on the committee on aging. A quilt was displayed that will be raffled off and will be given to the lucky winner at the county fair. Information about various trips will be discussed at the June meeting. Outstanding senior citizens chosen to represent the Holt Keenagers were Gerry Nelson and Ray Gusa. Syttende Mai king and queen chosen were Tillie Thompson and Oscar Swenson and were crowned by Gerry Nelson and Harry Engen. Ellen Anderson of the Middle River Record was present to take pictures. Door prizes were won by Olga Knutson and Lloyd Larson. It was decided to purchase an amplifier system for the center and also an electric roaster, silverware and a big kettle for the kitchen. Pat McCullough and Harry Engen are donating rugs to be put by the doors. There will be a poster put up on rules and regulations on lights, furnace and tables. Those who were present to celebrate birthdays in May were Albert Swenson, Hilma Horien, Elvira Ring, Alice Rodahl and Clara J. Reierson who brought cakes and Harriet Larson who brought ice cream. A tape of accordion music by Olaf Reiersum was played while the projects were being set up. Two films shown by Selmer Sorter were "The Last of the Jacks" and "The Last Log Drive in Minnesota". Everyone enjoyed the day.

ROCK-O-MATIC INDUSTRIES

TMR 12 & TMR 14

Go for RUGGEDNESS!
Go for the TMR12 or TMR14 from ROCK-O-MATIC.

Twelve or fourteen feet of rocks, roots, stumps and other foreign material is swept into sizable windrows, easy to handle, by the side delivery action of these windrowers.

Both of these models have a heavy duty hydraulic floatation drum and 3 rows of hard surface pins to leave an absolutely clean trail behind you. You have a choice of PTO or hydraulic-drive-on-your-ROCK-O-MATIC-windrower, to which we have added shaft guards, a heavy duty frame, an oil bath chain case, and ductile pillow blocks. You'll feel confident with either the TMR 12 or TMR 14 knowing you'll have years of trouble free operation from all the extras we implement in every machine.

MODEL 546

A hardy member of the ROCK-O-MATIC family is the 546. This machine makes a clean 5 foot-3 inch sweep in the toughest of rock conditions. The popular 546 is available in either PTO ground drive or hydraulic models.

Built into every 546, is a clutch system integrated into the PTO, high quality tie rod cylinders for longer service and easy field maintenance, full protection chain guards, and a ductile detachable apron.

HD58

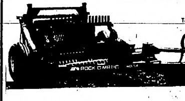
The LABOUR SAVER. The HD58 FROM ROCK-O-MATIC.



Here's a rockpicker packed with extras to make land clearing EASY AND ECONOMICAL. The HD58 has an eccentric rake reel action.

The HD58 makes a mighty 5 foot sweep of rock infested areas and boasts an unbelievable 8 foot high dump. The elevated dump means higher rock piles for more serviceable acres.

546 SIDEWINDER

At ROCK-O-MATIC we build QUALITY into every machine that we manufacture.

Now available on the 546 is the 8 foot sidewinder attachment to increase your picking width to a hefty 13 foot. This detachable hydraulically driven wind makes the 546 sidewinder one of the more popular rockpickers from ROCK-O-MATIC.

In Re: Estate of Vincent L. Noah, Deceased

Order and Notice of Hearing on Petition for Formal Adjudication of Intestacy, Determination of Heirship and Appointment of Personal Representative in Unsupervised Administration and Notice to Creditors

TO ALL INTERESTED PERSONS AND CREDITORS:

It is ordered and notice is hereby given that on the 13th day of June, 1984, at 2:00 o'clock P.M., a hearing will be held in the above named Court at Thief River Falls, Minnesota, on petition of Emil Bagley, dated May 9, 1984, for adjudication of intestacy and determination of heirship of the above named decedent, and for the appointment of Emil Bagley, whose address is c/o Polk County Social Services, Crookston, MN 56716, as personal representative of the estate of the above named decedent in unsupervised administration, and any objection thereto must be filed with the court. That, if proper, and no objections are filed, said personal representative will be appointed to administer the estate, to collect all assets, pay all legal debts, claims, taxes, and expenses, and sell real and personal property, and do all necessary acts for the estate.

Notice is further given that ALL CREDITORS having claims against said estate are required to present the same to said personal representative or to the Clerk of the Court within four months after the date of this notice or said claims will be barred.

Picture Series Tell The Story

A photograph is a moment of time captured on film that may perhaps stand alone in an album or frame. There's no reason, however, that the photograph need be alone. By taking a series of pictures, you can establish a context and often tell much more of a story than with a single photograph.

Picture series are especially effective when the subjects are children. The reaction of children to new experiences and the range of expressions that play so openly across their faces make great photographic material. And the activity shown in the pictures doesn't have to be any more spectacular than baking a cake, playing on a slide or being introduced to a new experience.

You don't need any special equipment to take a picture series, just a good eye and an open mind. A Kodak disc 4000 camera, however, can make things easier because it automatically advances its film, so you're ready to shoot again in seconds.

Like any story, a picture series should have a clear beginning, middle and end, so don't overlook preparations and cleaning up, if they're part of the story.

There's yet another advantage to taking a series of pictures: it will give you a better choice for the photos you want to display. Professional photographers try never to depend on a single picture. They know how easy it is for a subject to blink or grimace unexpectedly. By shooting a series, even if you ultimately don't choose to display the pictures that way, you'll end up with a good selection of poses and expressions.

It's always a good idea to take more than a single picture, so while you're at it, take a series.

STRAIGHT TALK

Albert D. Hottis, Associate Professor of Business and Holder of the Schwan Endowed Chair for Free Enterprise, Southwest State University, Marshall

Daily my mail includes unsolicited catalogs offering electronics, shoes, novelties, crafts, housewares, records, books, pottery, liquidation items and other "bargains." To attract attention, it is increasingly common to find sweepstakes, surprise gifts and extra rewards for those who respond, supposedly whether they buy or don't buy. Since all of these attention-getters cost money, they add to your price and make direct mail purchases more of a value risk than over-the-counter purchases at a local store.

The number of sweepstakes being offered (all available to those who buy or don't buy) is growing. In one month, I received more than 30 direct mail sales pitches with sweepstakes prizes of up to $2,000,000 to the lucky winner. Many of these sweepstakes are deceptive. They imply that your odds are good and that you could be the big money winner. Their computers even print your name, sometimes, in a headline as the possible winner.

This month I found that a few of the sweepstakes were the result of multiple mailing list purchases, so that I received as many as five offering envelopes. Upon opening the "bonus" envelopes included with each mailing, I discovered that the same numbers were imprinted in each of the mailings. One of these mailers even let me know that I had won either the first or fifth prize. Some friends showed me that they, too, were checked as winners of the first or fifth prize!

When I sent in my order, I was to include a form which allowed my benefactor to announce that I was the winner and required me to respond for news media interviews and appear on TV. I also was to check whether I wanted the prize in cash, bonds or gold. My friends also received the publicity and television permission form and the prize winners preference slip.

Apparently these two forms included in a sweepstakes add to the number of us who are sucker enough to respond, and who want that added "edge" that we believe a buyer gets over those who just return a certificate checked, "No, I don't want to buy but I do want to either enter or receive my prize!"

Many mass mailing companies back up their sweepstakes mailing with TV commercials to encourage returns. One commercial shows a neighbor working in his yard who admits to the interviewer that he hasn't returned a sweepstakes certificate. At that point, a cash delivery truck drives up to the house next door, and the truck driver piles ten monstrously large money bags on a happy sweepstakes winner. Since I do not believe that payments are made in pennies or nickels, but rather in lightweight checks, this commercial is deceptive. In many instances, the payoff is made over 10 to 20 years, so that the before-tax prize is a fraction, in purchasing power, of what is advertised and implied. Many of these prizes, if you read the small print, apply to a series of sweepstakes, and the odds are one in a hundred or two humdred million or more.

Worse than the deception concerning the sweepstakes is the probability that when buying by mail, there is a difference between the delivered item and your perception of it based on an ad copywriter's lingo. There also are possibilities of shipping delays, damaged merchandise, nothing ever coming, or the upset that comes with problem shipments and charges.

As an example, I bought some tapes by mail. They didn't work. I returned them with a letter. The records of this merchants were not good, so I was continuously dunned and threatened for nonpayment. Finally my multiple letters got through and a replacement tape was sent, which also did not work and restarted the whole process.

Looking at a bargain price on a computer printer, I ordered one by mail. It came in a box which was not damaged. It was cracked, so that it obviously had been opened before shipment and mailed with a knowledge that it was damaged. I called. I wrote. I finally gave up. I couldn't stop payment on my credit card charge because the shipper processed the order after clearing the charge. The shipper's telephone number for customer service, unlike his 800 order number, is an expensive long distance charge that more than consumed any saving I anticipated from this discounter.

From these and more horror experiences in mail order purchasing I have learned a few rules that I apply before placing any order: (1) I recognize the problems I will have in trying to right any wrongs, like bum charges, defective merchandise, or products and services that just aren't what they appeared to be; (2) I deal only with reputable national firms; and (3) I buy from a close-by local merchant, a retailer who needs my goodwill, unless the merchandise is not available here! Living with these rules has reduced my blood pressure and extended my life, even though I won't win any meaningful sweepstakes prizes. The postage savings are mounting up from not returning those sweepstakes certificates, so I am a winner!

That's Straight Talk!

Day On Campus At Crookston Slated June 7

"A Day for You and Me" is the theme of the day on campus Thursday, June 7 on the University of Minnesota at Crookston (UMC). This event is sponsored by the agricultural extension service and UMC. Understanding of one's self and others will be addressed through workshops and speakers throughout the day.

The conference, which is open to all adults, will look at many concerns that Minnesotans often share about health, family relationships, career choices, credit ratings, wardrobe planning and horticulture. Each participant may select three workshops to attend.

Seminar leader for the day will be Dr. Dean D. Nelson of Fargo who will present the "Personal Profile System" to all day on campus participants. This seminar will help individuals increase productivity in organizations by helping him or her function as a team. Dr. Nelson will use a combination of lecture and small group discussions which will help participants identify four primary styles of behavior by the use of the personal profile system.

Fee for the one day conference is $10, which includes lunch and conference materials. Advance registration is required and must be received in the East Polk county extension office in McIntosh by May 31.

For further information, contact the county extension office for a registration form.

Timing May Be Key In Giving Anti-Cancer Drugs

Harmful side effects from two anti-cancer drugs can be minimized by giving the drugs at certain times of day, according to University of Minnesota researcher Dr. William Hrushesky, whose study if the first to demonstrate a daily rhythm in the human body's susceptibility to such drugs. He presented his findings at the American society of clinical oncology meeting in Toronto.

Combination of the drugs adriamycin and cisplatin is a potent treatment for ovarian or bladder cancer, but side effects sometimes force physicians to lower the dosages, resulting in less effective treatment. The side effects include kidney damage caused by cisplatin and a reduction in the number of infection-fighting white blood cells, an effect of adriamycin.

However, Hursheskу found that the damage was minimal in patients who received adriamycin at 6 a.m. and cisplatin at 6 p.m. In patients receiving the drugs on the reverse schedule — adriamycin and cisplatin at 6 p.m. and 6 a.m., respectively — kidney damage was 25 per cent higher and the reduction in white cell numbers was 43 per cent greater.

Explanation lies in the phenomdnon of circadian rhythms. These daily activity patterns govern a host of bodily functions, including heart rate, blood pressure, temperature and urine production. Hrushesky's study extended the list to the human body's sensitivity to anti-cancer drugs.

"For many years, scientists have known that the circadian rhythms of mice and rats affect the susceptibility of the animals to the bad effects of more than 10 of the most important anti-cancer drugs," he said, "but this knowledge has only very recently been applied to the treatment of patients."

Patients who received the drugs at the optimal times reaped several benefits. They had fewer bleeding episodes, missed treatments and infections and needed reductions in their drug dosages less often than patients on the reverse schedule.

Although circadian rhythms influence the body's response to every drug, the timing of drug treatments is not always crucial. For example, penicillin may work better against the bacterium that causes pneumococcal pneumonia at certain times of day. But whenever it is given, it works very well and does so little damage to the patient that the timing of dosages is not an important consideration.

Treating cancer with drugs is entirely different from treating bacterial infections, though. Cancer cells are so similar to normal cells that anti-cancer drugs always damage and even kill some normal cells. These side effects can sometimes cause a patient to become seriously ill. Thus, there are powerful reasons for finding ways of keeping the drugs on target without reducing their effectiveness.

Hrushesky said that his studies with mice and rats indicate that the time of day influences the success of anti-cancer drugs. The same dose of each of the top 10 such drugs can kill either all or none of the groups of mice treated at different times of day. In fact, the time of drug administration can make the difference between mice dying of experimental cancers and being cured.

"While it is much too early in this study to be bale to know if one time schedule is more effective against ovary or bladder cancer than the other, the overall results have been excellent," Hrushesky said. "Over 80 per cent of patients with advanced ovary cancer and about 60 per cent of patients with advanced bladder cancer have had marked shrinkage or complete disappearance of their cancers. Although it is still early in the study, it seems as though some of these patients with very advanced cancers may be being cured." He added that the effectiveness of his specially timed treatments is at least as good as the best non-timed regiments.

Hrushesky has studied 55 patients, but he said he needs many more to determine whether the time of day anti-cancer drugs are given affects the curability of the cancers. A medical oncologist, Hrushesky subspecializes in the drug treatment of cancers of the bladder, ovaries, kidneys, prostate, uterus, cervix and other cancers or the urinary and reproductive organs. His study is funded by the National Institutes of Health.

LEST WE FORGET

REVOLUTIONARY WAR
CIVIL WAR
World War 1
WORLD WAR 2
KOREAN WAR
VIET NAM WAR
Middle East...

They have not died in vain — those who paid with their lives the last full measure. Today, Memorial Day, is the day to remember Lexington, Gettysburg, Coral Sea, Okinawa, Normandy, Viet Nam and Korea.

We need only to look at the cemeteries of the world to realize the supreme sacrifice that was called for that we might be secure. As they bravely died, so we must bravely live.

Let us nobly remember those who laid themselves between our country and her foes. This is Memorial Day.

Grygla

Lillian Sundberg, Grygla, 294-6146

Helping Carl Holte celebrate his birthday at his home on Thursday evening were Mr. and Mrs. Norris Hagen, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Wikstrom, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Holte, Magnus Satre, Grant Satre, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Holte, Brian, Bruce and Brad Holte and Mrs. Wayne Lunsetter. A delicious potluck lunch was served including birthday cake. Happy birthday Carl.

Carl Holte returned last week from Fargo, N.D., where he had spent three weeks in the Veteran's hospital where he underwent surgery. He also spent a few days visiting at the home of his son Richard Holte and family at West Fargo.

Dinner guests at the Flossy Newton home on last Sunday in honor of Flossy's birthday were Mr. and Mrs. Dale Newton and Kristi of Thief River Falls, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Newton, Cathy, Lisa and Sara, Olaf Aune, Ione Hagen of Gatzke, Bonnie Verbout and Joni, Jeff Newton, Rodney Newton, Sara and Melissa of Thief River Falls. Afternoon guests were Janice Jesme, Mrs. Marian Franzman and daughters. Happy birthday Flossy.

Tuesday, May 15 coffee guests at the Flossy Newton home were Adeline Sorenson, Minnie Bucholz, Elida Nelson, Elizabeth Brateng, Inga Olson, Clara Gram, Beatrice Hook, Alice Hook, Alice Vigen and Joyce Lansrud.

The Grygla senior citizens met at the community center on Wednesday afternoon. The birthdays of Carl Holte, Adeline Sorenson and Flossy Newton were celebrated. Cards and games were played and a delicious lunch was served including ice cream sandwiches, and several birthday cakes. Hostesses were Marie Sorenson, Lillian Newton, Gloria Holte and Cathy Newton. Guests besides the regular members were: Norma Jokela, Dorothy Hendrickson, Mrs. Jim Holte, Mrs. Norman Newton, Donna Jelle.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Moran of Columbia Heights spent the weekend visiting at the homes of relatives. They also met many of their friends who attended the services and dinner honoring the 1984 high school graduates. Clayton and his wife Katherine Moran were former residents of Grygla. Clayton is a grandson of H.E. Mussey, who was the original publisher of the Grygla Eagle in the early 1900's and Katherine Moran is a sister of Mrs. Norman Newton and of Ray Sorenson. She is a daughter of Melvin Sorenson, a former resident of Grygla. Mr. and Mrs. Moran visited with Melvin Sorenson in Thief River Falls at Oakland Park Nursing home and at the Norman Newton and the Ray Sorenson homes.

Friends and relatives who attended the golden wedding anniversary celebration honoring Mr. and Mrs. Walter Deunow (former Elsie Holthusen) at the Immanuel Lutheran church at Elizabeth, near Fergus Falls on Saturday, May 19th were Mr. and Mrs. Barnett Benson, Mr. and Mrs. Herb Holthusen, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Holthusen, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Wilkins, Rheinard Holthusen, Brian and Denise Holthusen and Mr. and Mrs. Aldon Johnson.

Jill Saurdiff returned on Friday from a tour of Europe. She traveled with a group called the Euro-Spring group and spent five weeks at the school at Oxford, England. While there she visited London several times and also took a ferry to visit in Holland. She also spent three weeks on a trip to other places in Europe on a grand tour.

Visitors at the Allard Morken home during the weekend were Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Klaven, Pearl and Bennie Klaven of Thief River Falls, Mr. and Mrs. Ordean Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Black of Middle River, Mrs. Gaylene Quam and family of Goodridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Wikstrom returned on Thursday from Saskatchewan Province in Canada, where they had spent a week visiting ten of Vernon's nieces and nephews near and around Prince Albert. Many of these relatives were originally from Strandquist or their parents were once residents of Strandquist. Mr. and Mrs. Wikstrom enjoyed their trip and the opportunity to see that the Canadians were doing farming much like the farmers in our area.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Saul were visitors at the Vernon Wikstrom home on Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Brenna of Cloquet spent a few days visiting at the Harland Lee home this past week.

Other guests were Cerise Swanson and Tausha and Judith Kotrba and Cara of Goodridge.

Sunday visitors at the Harland Lee home were Mr. and Mrs. Harland Lee Jr. and David of Thief River Falls.

Visitors at the Ernest Selle home during the weekend were Dale Folger and Bill Desrocher of Thief River Falls, Clarence Stromberg, Charles Dablow and Cheryl Stinar.

Pastor Smerek, Mrs. Ada Smerek and Mrs. Alice Johaneson attended the 1984 Minnesota district convention of the Lutheran church which was held at the Concordia college field house for three days last week at Moorhead.

Among the relatives who attended the wedding of Sherine Howland and Gregory House at the Zion Lutheran church at International Falls on Saturday were Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Howland, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Bakken and Ryan, Mr. and Mrs. Loren Lusignan, Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Jensen, Tony, Mathew and Wendy, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Warne, Jason and Denton, also Mr. and Mrs. Steven Sorvig and Mr. and Mrs. Wes Swanson all of Thief River Falls and Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Cleven and Michael. Mrs. Steven Sorvig was matron of honor and Steven Sorvig was the soloist. Pastor Rolf Wangberg officiated at the ceremony. Rolf Wangberg's father was once the pastor at Trinity church in Thief River Falls. All of the relatives from this area spent the weekend at International Falls and on Sunday they were guests at the Oral Howland home where the bride and groom opened their gifts. The bride, Sherine, is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oral Howland.

LITTLE OAK . .

Mr. and Mrs. Gary B. Johnson were coffee guests at the Arnold Haugen home on Saturday.

Mrs. Terry Haugen, Jeremy and Patricia and Mrs. Robert Johnsrud were to Grand Forks, N.D. on Tuesday. Patricia was to the doctor for a checkup.

Mrs. Arnold Haugen enjoyed a visit by phone from her grandson Steven Haugen of Parkville on Friday evening.

Monday visitors at the Gladys Hanson home were Ygonne Robidoux and Ruth Jordon of Red Lake Falls.

CREATIVE COOKING

Salmon Divan is a classic. It's an elegant dish you can prepare with confidence on a moment's notice.

SALMON DIVAN

1 can (7-3/4 oz.) Bumble Bee Pink Salmon
2 medium zucchini
2 tablespoons butter
1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
1 tablespoon flour
1/4 cup sliced green onion
1/2 teaspoon dill weed, crumbled
1/2 cup milk
1/4 cup mayonnaise
3 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
Paprika

Drain salmon. Slice each zucchini into 4 lengthwise slices. Steam until tender-crisp. Arrange 4 slices in each of 2 individual baking dishes. Dot equally with 1 tablespoon butter and 1/4 teaspoon garlic powder. Melt remaining 1 tablespoon butter in a small saucepan. Stir in flour until blended; add green onion and dill weed. Cook, stirring, about 1 minute. Gradually stir in milk until sauce thickens. Remove from heat. Stir in mayonnaise and 1 tablespoon Parmesan cheese; fold in salmon. Spoon salmon mixture over zucchini. Sprinkle with remaining 2 tablespoons cheese and paprika. Bake in 350° F oven 15 minutes. Cool 10 minutes before serving. Makes 2 servings.

STRAIGHT TALK ABOUT STRAIGHT LADDERS

Sooner or later, every homeowner is faced with maintenance chores which demand the use of a straight ladder. The time to learn how to use one safely is now—before you start climbing.

If your ladder is wood, lay it flat and walk on all the rungs. That way you'll find any weak ones before it's too late.

To raise it easily, prop the base against a wall, raise the upper end over your head and walk toward the wall hand over hand until the ladder is upright. Then place the feet of the ladder on a solid resting place one-fourth the ladder's length away from the wall.

Don't try to reach awkward lengths while on the ladder. Climb down and move it over.

If there's a strong wind blowing, stay on the ground. If there are powerline wires overhead, forget it.

And when you're ready for some straight talk about insurance, come see us.

We represent INA/Aetna. But we work for you.

News for TEA LOVERS

SOMETHIN' LITE FOR SPRING

Does the thought of a pool party bring on panic because the result of winter-long feasting is quite revealing? Then it's time to shape up for spring!

Start by burning calories and excess fat with effortless exercising. Tennis, running and cycling are fun, aerobic activities which can take the place of routine and boring exercises.

Combine a regular sports program with sound, sensible eating patterns. They'll keep you trim and healthy.

For example, after a rousing round of tennis, relax with Sparkling Tea Cooler. This cool, refreshing drink not only tastes terrific but also quenches your thirst.

And the best part is that it's only 16 calories per serving thanks to Lipton Low Calorie Lemon Flavored Sugar Free Iced Tea Mix. The mix is high on taste, but low in calories. Simply stir together with water, lime juice and club soda, then serve over your favorite sliced fresh fruit.

A totable light snack such as the rolls pictured here is a perfect way to ward off hunger pangs for less calories than cookies. Simply top refrigerator biscuits with lemon flavored sugar free iced tea mix, poppy seeds, sesame seeds, ground cinnamon or finely chopped nuts and bake.

Once you taste these two terrific treats, you'll see how easy it really is to win the weight loss game.

SPARKLING TEA COOLER

3 tablespoons Lipton Low Calorie Lemon Flavored Sugar Free Iced Tea Mix
1-1/2 quarts water
1 tablespoon lime juice
1 cup sliced fresh fruit
1 cup club soda, chilled

In large pitcher, combine lemon flavored sugar free iced tea mix, water, lime juice and sliced fresh fruit. Just before serving, add club soda. Serve with ice. Makes about 8 servings.

Sunday School Awards

Sunday, May 20, marked the end of Sunday school for the summer at Oak Ridge church and attendance awards were presented during the morning worship service. Each child receives a pin after 26 Sundays with Sundays being carried over from the previous year, enabling youngsters to be eligible for two pins in a given year. Receiving pins from the 3 and 4-year-old class were Melissa Hams, Sammi Hjelle, Karleen Klemetson, Branden Page, Nicholas Swanson and Mandy Eggelston. Jodi Swanson was their teacher, assisted by Jenelle Vatsaas and Rhonda Sheehan. Kindergarteners were Ryan Hible, Darwin Klemetson, Tyler Valge and Leah Helgenset. The 5-year-olds are taught by Sherry Page.

First and second graders were Eric Bjorgaard, Ryan Cerkowniak, Tara Ellingson and Krista Steinert, taught by Jennifer Johnson. Third and fourth graders were Matthew Steinert, Nathan Cerkowniak, Russ Bjorgaard, Matthew Vagle, Krist Srnsky and Hans Helgenset, taught by Jennifer Vagle. Fifth graders were Jon Hams, Tonya Hible, Tracy Srnsky and Syndi Steinert, taught by Marcia Sandahl. Sixth graders were Becky Bakken, Cheri Bjorgaard, Steve Olson, Jill Sandahl and Kathy Srnsky, taught by Diane Klemetson. Seventh graders were Chad Bakken, Traci Klemetson, Corey Moen, Brian Sandahl and Dana Steinert, taught by Jean Back. Eighth graders were Chris Bjorgaard, Tina Hible and Steven Johnson, taught by Julie Steinert. Supt. Sharon Hoglo made the presentations, also thanking Charlotte Bjorgaard and Carol Waswick for helping with the music and substitute teachers Betty Moen, Kristi Dyrdal, Diane Colby and Joyce Burkel.

A reminder that Vacation Bible school at Oak Ridge will run from 9 a.m. until 12 noon during the week of June 4-8. All area children are welcome to attend, but please call Mrs. Bill Hoglo evenings if you wish to enroll your child, so that study materials may be obtained.

Newlyweds

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Mike (Patty Ellingson) Jarshaw, who were married recently and are moving into the former Burt Johnson farm home. A wedding reception will be held Saturday, June 2 from 2:00 until 4:30 p.m. at Oak Ridge church. All friends and relatives are welcome.

Hospitalized

We were sorry to hear that Frank Armstrong had to undergo emergency surgery while he and Alma were vacationing in Washington, D.C. He got out of the hospital May 16 one week after surgery, on the date of their 51st wedding anniversary. Latest word received Monday, May 21 is that they hope to be flying home again in a few days.

Word also was received this morning that Steve Steinert is feeling much better after being up and around following back surgery May 15. Julie returned home Saturday to be with the children, but plans to rejoin her husband at a later date. Steve's mother, Sylvia Steinert, of Red Lake Falls, has been staying at the Steinert home with Dana, Syndi, Matt and Krista.

Diane Ayers was among a group of girls from Our Saviour's Christian Academy who spent Friday in Grand Forks.

Oak Ridge Council Meeting

Oak Ridge council meeting is scheduled for Thursday, May 24 at 8 p.m. at the church. All former and newly-elected members are urged to be present.

A Question of Use

Following editorial by Marc Parenteau appeared in a recent issue of the Red Lake Falls Gazette and provides a reasoned view of an unfortunate situation:

It appears the days of bus service to Red Lake Falls are numbered. Although several people testified in favor of this transportational service to our city, the simple fact remains, not enough people are taking advantage of it. Even among those who testified, no one said they traveled on the bus more than 10 times a year. That, coupled with the fact the bus company, Red River Trails, Inc., insists it's losing money on the route, would indicate Red Lake Falls will be without bus service in the near future.

Red River Trail's plan is to switch its route between Crookston and Thief River Falls on its Moorhead to Baudette run. Instead of serving Marcoux, Red Lake Falls and St. Hilaire, the bus will run through Euclid, Angus and Warren. The company feels ridership will be three times better and revenue will increase by about $8,000.

The move appears to be a prudent business decision, however, we in Red Lake Falls can't help but be chagrined and a little saddened. The loss of bus service will not be a hardship for most of our citizens, but as the testimony at a public hearing last Thursday indicated, several of our senior citizens will be left without the means to travel.

Red River Trails provides inexpensive, convenient travel to people who need to go to the Veterans Administration Hospital in Fargo. It provides a link for people to visit relatives throughout the state and country. It provides transportation for college students between home and campus. The list goes on and on.

Bus transportation's biggest competition comes from the automobile. People find it much more convenient and faster to jump in their car when they wish to go somewhere. The sad fact is not everyone is able to do this, particularly college students and senior citizens. Yet, but companies are forced to restrict service to those cities where they can obtain the maximum usage.

If there is an answer to the problem, it has yet to materialize. Red Lake Falls residents can still obtain bus service by traveling to Marcoux Corner, which is nine miles away. But as one person said, "It might just as well be 100 miles away." Another problem is the bus schedule through Marcoux is not compatible with Red River Trails' route through Crookston.

The only hope for Red Lake Falls residents would be if the state transportation board denies Red River Trails' proposal. However, after hearing the testimony, this would appear unlikely. What makes the whole matter frustrating is there's nobody to blame. We cannot blame people for not using the bus if they have no reason to. And we cannot blame the bus company, since they are in business to make a profit.

It's a Catch 22 without the irony. Yet the consequences are equally unpleasant.

Citing The Reasons

Following editorial is from the Bemidji Pioneer:

The good news about crime these days is in the annual report issued by FBI Director William H. Webster. The preliminary figures for cities of 100,000 population or more show that serious crime dropped by a full seven per cent last year. That was the steepest decline in almost 25 years, and it marked only the first time since 1960 that the crime rate dropped two years in a row.

Knowing why crime is finally on the decline would help in keeping it that way. So, how can the drop be explained?

Many experts — Harvard's James Q. Wilson among them — have long argued that American's aging population will result automatically in diminished crime. Inasmuch as most crimes are committed by males between the ages of 14 and 26 years, a shrinking pool of individuals in that category must mean a shrinking population of potential criminals and, in time, less crime.

Webster, however, doubts that the statistics prove any direct correlation between population age and crime. Instead, he cited effective police work and greater citizen involvement in crime-prevention programs.

Attorney General William French credited some of the Reagan administration's law enforcement initiatives (the anti-drug war for one) plus a pervasive "get tough" attitude in government and the public.

Our own guess is that all of these suggested factors, plus one more mentioned by the attorney general, deserve some measure of credit. "It is no coincidence that the decrease in our crime rate comes at a time when more criminals are behind bars than ever before," Smith said. Exactly so.

The same statistics that show most crimes being committed by young males also show that so-called career criminals are responsible for disproportionate numbers of crimes. Send this repeat offender — the addict who supports his habit through burglaries, for example — to jail for longer terms and he has correspondingly fewer opportunities to prey on the public.

That precisely is what is happening in most states. And the FBI statistics show conclusively enough that it is working.

Fairness And Taxes

Following comments are by Richard Lesher, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States:

Those who opposed the 1981 tax cut began their attack by claiming that the Economic Recovery Tax Act would be wildly inflationary. As the tax cut was phased in over three years, however, inflation fell from its double-digit levels of 1979 and 1980 to less than four per cent.

The "tax cuts cause inflation" argument was then set aside, only to be replaced by the assertion that "it won't work," meaning that the tax cut would not generate economic growth. This argument fell apart when the recovery dropped unemployment rates from 10.8 per cent to 7.8 per cent, and more than 5.4 million new jobs were created in 16 months.

It soon became clear that these folks were opposed to tax cuts per se and were looking for any argument. The tax cuts had brought us neither runaway inflation nor a recession — and for a little while our liberal friends were arguing for both.

As a last resort, the liberals decided to bring out the heavy artillery — the "fairness issue." It certainly seemed like a sure winner. Everyone wants to be treated fairly. Indeed, successful political movements in this country, from the American Revolution to the civil rights movement have been fueled by the American quest for fairness. Fairness is also part of our cultural heritage.

So, the battle cry of the liberals became the "fairness issue." Tax cuts, labeled "Reaganomics," were unfair because they "took" from the poor and "gave" to the rich.

Let's examine that charge.

The 1981 tax cut reduced the marginal tax rates on individual income taxes by 25 per cent across the board. Every single taxpayer saw his or her tax rates drop by 25 per cent. And in 1985, tax brackets will be indexed for inflation to eliminate bracket creep.

Now, at first glance, that seems fair. It treats all taxpayers the same. The decision, one would think, is over.

But liberal politicians have done an interesting thing to the word "fairness." Tax reform packages are held to be "fair" only if they shift the tax burden from lower-income to higher-income Americans. Recognizing that our liberal friends have an odd definition of fairness, let's accept their premises for a moment and take a look at how the tax burden shifted as a result of the 1981 tax cuts.

Examining the federal income tax returns for 1982, we find that the proportion of the tax burden shouldered by those individuals earning less than $50,000 fell, and the share of the tax load shouldered by those earning more than $50,000 increased. Interestingly, the increase was greatest among those earning more than $1 million; their share of the tax burden increased by more than 40 per cent.

Even the "soak-the-rich" liberals should be happy.

It appears that the charge that tax cuts are unfair may have to be replaced by a new, as yet to be discredited, argument against tax cuts. I look forward to hearing what they come up with.

Borrowed Nonsense:

The traveling couple stopped at a restaurant in the Missouri Ozarks. The restaurant featured Chinese food, Oriental music, and dark-haired watiresses attired in ornate kimonos. The mood was somewhat broken, however, when the waitress stopped at their table, bowed stiffly, and drawled, "How y'll doin' tonight?"

Two youngsters visiting Minnesota on vacation for the first time were setting up their own little tent when the mosquitoes got so bad they shut themselves inside. When a few fireflies appeared, one youngster said to the other: "Now the skeeters are looking for us with flashlights!"

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

Meddling in Mergers

The guests have arrived. The cards are dealt. And just as the four of you settle down for an evening's game of bridge, Uncle Samuel lets himself in the front door. Oh no.

Uncle Samuel doesn't seem to have a job or business — but everyone else's business seems to be fair game. During the bridge game he kibitzes, insists on changing trump in the middle of a trick, and, despite his ignorance of the game, makes up new rules and requires that you play by them. When the food is brought in from the kitchen, Uncle Samuel takes half, drops some on the floor, and gives the ham sandwiches to those who wanted roast beef and vice versa. He seems pleased with himself. And before he leaves for the evening, he reaches into the players' pockets and helps himself to loose change.

We all know people who are incompetent at handling their own lives but are free with advice for the rest of us. The spinster aunt who tells us who and how to marry. The bungling employer who can't do his job but harasses us when we are trying mightily to do ours. And we all share Uncle Samuel — Uncle Sam for short.

Yes, Uncle Sam, unaffectionately known as the federal government, is a meddler. He pries into our personal and business lives. He wants us to fill our forms so that he knows exactly what we are up to at any given moment. He tells us what to do and when. And he helps himself to our pocketbooks to finance his role as nanny.

A recent cartoon showed two politicians talking in Washington. One explained to the other, "My motto in life is if it moves, tax it; if it moves too quickly, regulate it; and if it doesn't move at all, subsidize it."

Politicians simply love to control things: our lives, our incomes, our bank accounts. Thus, politicians are wary of new technologies and changes in the economy; they don't control them and, therefore, they don't like them. A dynamic, vibrant and growing economy spins off new ideas, new jobs, new inventions and new companies at a dizzying pace. The politicians can't take credit for such progress, and so they become morose and unhappy. Change produced by new laws, new regulations and new spending programs is, however, unthreatening. The problem for the rest of us is that such changes may impoverish rather then enrich our lives.

This attitude toward progress in the private sector has prompted some self-serving congressmen to grab headlines with denuciations of recent corporate mergers and acquisitions. In mergers — as both mergers and acquisitions are known in the popular press — one company buys another firm, or the two companies merge assets to become one firm. What is the matter with mergers? Nothing, unless you are a politican and resent anybody doing anything without your express permission. Oh, politicians may give other reasons for opposing mergers. Bigness is bad, they say. But they would combat such bigness by increasing the size and power of the federal government — the biggest "business" in the world. Who do these guys think they are kidding?

An examination of the role of merger activity in our economy shows that it generally benefits Americans. Mergers benefit consumers, workers and investors by increasing the efficiency of both the buyer and the acquired firm.

Here are some hard facts. A recent study shows that when two firms begin discussing a merger of acquisition, the stock price — the value the marketplace puts on a company — increases for both firms. In an unfriendly merger — the ones that usually get the headlines — the acquired firm's stock jumps 30 per cent. In friendly mergers the stock of the company being acquired increases by an average of 20 per cent. And the firm doing the acquiring also benefits with an average increase in stock price of 4 per cent.

Moreover, the increased competitiveness and efficiency are good for consumers, who may face lower prices, and for workers, whose jobs may be more secure. And the investors benefits as the stock prices rise.

Congress should stop trying to outlaw mergers. "It ain't broke," and even if it were, Congress shouldn't try to fix what it doesn't understand.

The problem here, as in so many other areas, is that Congress believes its job is to run the country. It isn't. Congress' job is to run the government, and it shouldn't take on any more tasks until it learns to do that one right.

THE BIG CHILL
may be a great movie, but it's not a great way to live

Now that winter's behind us, the idea of replacing your old furnace may not be too exciting. But it's a good time to think about taking "the big chill" out of next winter by investing in a new high efficiency gas furnace.

If your furnace is more than 10 years old, it's probably operating at 50% to 60% efficiency. With new state-of-the-art gas furnaces, you can increase the annual fuel utilization efficiency (AFUE) rating to between the 92% to 97% range. The higher the rating, the more energy—and money—you save. What happens, you see, is more heat is generated from the same amount of gas. It's simple: more heat; less waste.

Wouldn't you like to save 45¢ out of every dollar? With the money you save, you can pay for your new furnace in a matter of two to three years, and have enough money left over to take in a movie besides.

Start saving today. Check the yellow pages for the name of the High Efficiency heating dealer nearest you.

STRAIGHT TALK

Albert D. Hattis, Associate Professor of Business and Holder of the Schwan Endowed Chair for Free Enterprise, Southwest State University, Marshall

JFS is an interesting example of a very successful businessman. He started out with a minimal formal education. He became a coal miner. Eventually he was the union representative at the "weigh-ins", to verify the amount of coal produced, which affected wages and benefits earned.

In time JFS started selling tools. He was a hard worker, a good salesman, and smart. He eventually became a regional manager and then vice president for marketing of a large national public corporation. He developed the ability to manage well based upon learning from his experience. He was then hired to head a major national corporation which had been poorly managed by a pack of Ivy League MBA's.

Over a couple of rough years, JFS turned his company around, made it grow, doubled its sales, and multiplied its profits. All was going well until a health problem gave him two alternatives. He could stay on the job and die within a year or he could leave the job and survive in another climate. Since he enjoyed living, he retired. The old Ivy League MBA's took over, again, and drove the business into bigger and better problems fast.

The point in all of this is that recently a young Harvard business school graduate wrote an interesting article noting the basic challenges facing business today as understanding and reacting to international competition, knowing how to identify and create new business opportunities, and what we have defined as management, efficient use of resources so that we can be competitive and survive.

He stated that our universities teaching business stress fundamentals of accounting, finance, production, marketing and human resource management from a theoretical viewpoint. Many of these subjects are taught by individuals who may never have had the experience needed to convert these fundamentals into practical use. These individuals may not understand meeting a payroll, practical aspects of international competition, and the identification and creation of new business opportunities. Never having had any real experience, "They teach for an ideological fantasy land that may never have existed, so that the desensitized business student is like an untrained army private sent into battle with no proper training and a high casualty rate."

This new Harvard MBA ends his article concerned about the 50,000 new MBA's (and multiples of BSBA's) who are completing training with "antiquated took kits" that will hurt everyone, including the new business grads.

JFS understood the practical aspects of business. He had earned his MBA and doctorate from the College of Hard Knocks. He survived and succeeded because he was prepared and knew what to do. He also understood that he had to work with and through people, and that this involved personal relationships, good oral and written communications, and a willingness to spend the time necessary to be a humane manager. His success was not an accident of fate. During his years as a chief executive officer, he had major decisions that had to be made, and he had made them with great care. He saw to it that they were properly presented and explained.

JFS is not alone. Time after time, in study business leaders who have been truly successful over an extended period of time, the answer to that success is practical experience gained on the job in what is a significant vocation, like medicine, construction and so many other areas of activity. Entrusting a business to someone who has done a certain amount of reading would be like selecting a surgeon who never interned or served a residency period observing and practicing under the supervision of an experienced and successful surgeon.

Many of the failures of our business system can be attributed to bad management. Success is easy when things are booming. The real test of management comes in problem periods. Many of our managers are not prepared for that test. Telling them to go back to school to qualify themselves may be poor advice unless the school has an experienced staff that knows the score and can answer the question, "What qualifications and experience do you have in a real live business?"

That's Straight Talk!

QUICK QUIZ

??????????????????????????????????????????????????

As office automation replaces typewriters with word processors, are secretaries afraid they too will be replaced? Or, has the word processor made life easier and opened up new opportunities? A recent survey of secretaries who operate word processors, sponsored by Kelly Services, Inc., reveals some interesting—and sometimes conflicting—answers to these and other questions on how their lives have been affected by office automation. See if you can guess how the secretaries responded.

1) Most secretaries feel that word processing will lead to salary increases.

☐T ☐F

2) Most secretaries have received pay increases as a result of word processing skills.

☐T ☐F

3) How many secretaries feel new positions would open up for them as a result of their word processing skills? a) 25% b) 52% c) 76% d) 91%

4) How many secretaries believe that they themselves will enter one of the advanced positions? a) three-quarters b) half c) less than half.

5) Are secretaries concerned that word processing will eliminate jobs?

☐yes ☐no.

6) Secretaries feel that the use of a word processor increases stress.

☐T ☐F

ANSWERS:
1) True. 2) False—66% said they had not. 3) d—91%. 4) c—Less than half (38%). 5) No—82% were not concerned at all. 6) False—68% said it alleviated stress.

For more information on the role of the secretary in today's office, write for a copy of the survey to Rose Leach, Kelly Services, Inc., 999 West Big Beaver Road, Troy, Michigan 48084.

How To Choose A Mattress

By Angel Echevarria

When it comes to choosing a mattress, you can and should lie down on the job. Here are ten sensible tips on how to select bedding that will give you a good night's sleep.

1) TRY IT OUT. The way to tell if the product fits your needs is to test it.

2) GIVE IT THE FIVE MINUTE TEST. Almost any back tension release feels good after you have been on your feet all day. Roll around the mattress. Stretch!

Echevarria

3) EXAMINE THE COVER. Ask your salesperson what's under it. Ask for a brochure on the features and specifications.

4) INSPECT STITCHING. Make sure that it is neat and trim.

5) TEST FIRMNESS. Everyone has different preferences. At Somma, for example, the manufacturer points out that since the cylinders can be varied with the amount of water — each side of the bed can be adjusted for custom comfort.

6) CHECK THE LENGTH OF THE MATTRESS. It should be at least six inches longer than the tallest person who sleeps on it.

7) NOTE THE EDGES. You should be able to sit on the edge of the bed without the mattress sagging.

8) READ THE LABELS.

9) INQUIRE ABOUT WARRANTIES.

10) DON'T SKIMP. Spend as much as you can for a mattress that will give you the most satisfaction for the longest time.

Mr. Echevarria is Chairman of the National Sleep Institute and President of Somma Mattress Company, a Los Angeles firm that manufactures a water-filled sleep unit that's been called the most innovative design in the mattress industry.

Butterfly Beauty Is More Than Meets The Eye

by Lilas Wiltshire
Smithsonian News Service

"Although butterflies are the best-known group of invertebrates, it is appalling what we still don't know about them," says Dr. John M. Burns, an evolutionary biologist at the Smithsonian's national museum of natural history in Washington, D.C.

Among the unanswered questions, for example, are ones concerning larval foods and parasites of larvae. Some life cycles are totally unknown along with how and why the adult butterfly chooses nectar from one plant and not from another — or the part that color plays in that choice.

Burns is one of a number of scientists around the world who devote their lives to the study of Lepidoptera (butterflies and moths). His own particular interest has focused on the skipper butterflies, especially how one species gives rise to two or more daughter species. He thinks this "speciation" process may be rather more rapid and more random than many workers currently believe. Among the resources available for his work are the museum's collections of about 3.5 million specimens of Lepidoptera.

As a result of these and other studies, scientists do know that the butterfly has adapted itself beautifully to its surroundings. Moreover, they have found that its coloring and behavior — the source of our aesthetic admiration — may be a matter of life and death to the butterfly.

Wing color patterns are the result of innumerable tiny scales, overlapping like roof tiles on a thin, colorless wing membrane. Each scale is a single color, and the arrangement created stripes, eyespots, shading and background colors.

Color is produced either by pigment or structure of a combination of the two. Structural color is created by the play of light on microscopic ridges and layers in the scales with air space between. The prism effect yields an iridescence that gives to the orange sulphur butterfly, for example, "one of the most reflective and spectrally pure surfaces found in nature," according to the late Dr. Robert Silberglied, an entomologist with the Smithsonian tropical research institute.

Markings are used for communication — during courtship and to intimidate predators — and for concealment.

Buckeye, widespread across the United States, has large black-and-yellow eyespots with iridescent blue "irises" along its wings that, no doubt, give it a head start with startled predators. Anglewing and leaf butterflies, with their jagged-edged wings and mottled brown color, blend in so perfectly with bark or leaves that they can virtually disappear from view on landing.

Monarch, on the other hand, flies "openly," flaunting its orange and black color. It is recognized — and shunned — by predators who, in the past, have tasted the poisons it carries, left over from the noxious milkweed eaten by its caterpillar. The viceroy, a non-poisonous butterfly, in turn, has evolved its own color patterns to mimic the monarch and gains protection for itself by association.

Pipevine swallowtail, whose larvae feed on poisonous Dutchman's pipe and other pipevines, is mimicked in the same way by females of other species; the males of those other species retain their own patterns, perhaps for aiding mate selection.

Hairstreak butterflies have, on the hindwings, long hairlike tails resembling antennae as well as complex patterns, including eyespots and radiating lines. Even the shape of the wings joins in to create a "false head" that directs a predator's eye away from more vulnerable parts. Dr. Robert K. Robbins, an entomologist at the National Museum of Natural History, has found, in comparing species, that the more complete the "false head" disguide, the greater the chances are that the predator will get only "a mouthful of hindwing while the butterfly escapes otherwise unharmed."

As striking as these color uses are, there are other wing patterns in the ultraviolet range seen by butterflies — they have perhaps the broadest-known spectral range of vision in the animal kingdom — that do not necessarily match those patterns visible to humans. Silberglied studied these patterns in North American sulphur butterflies and found that they can be used in courtship for both sex and species identification. The precise roles of these and other patterns, however, remain elusive, like the butterfly itself.

SIMULATED INJURIES during an emergency drill Wednesday evening were further complicated by the likelihood of toxic substances in the area. The drill involved an explosion and fire at a chemical plant at which potential for harm beyond that experienced by workers in the area would be a possibility. Firemen equipped with breathing apparatus attend to one of the "injured" workers above after having determined the chemical involved and received instructions on precautions to be taken.

Disaster Drill Tests Reactions To Chemicals

Disaster drill conducted by Thief River Falls law enforcement, hospital and emergency services departments Wednesday evening proved to be a good learning experience, according to Pennington county sheriff Charles Richards.

A simulated chemical explosion at the Simplot Soil Builders plant on the west edge of the city was the exercise presented. Richards said the simulation involved material commonly transported through this area but which had to be identified by personnel responding to the emergency call.

Detonation of a device similar in size to an aerial salute started the drill and startled residents in the area. A smoke bomb by a truck in which the chemical was apparently being transported added realism to the scene and presented another potential hazard which had to be considered.

While the drill went fairly smooth, Sheriff Richards said, he added that it demonstrated the need for schooling of law enforcement and emergency personnel in handling of hazardous material. He said that the fire truck responding came in on the upwind side as it should have done, but probably because it was the shortest route to the scene. A police officer responding did walk into the smoke, which would have been toxic if the actual chemical had exploded, to assist those with simulated injuries.

Several changes were also noted as advisable at the hospital in regard to drugs on hand, availability of resource material to identify how to handle specific chemical injuries, and avoidance of contamination because of the chemicals.

Burglars Take Lantern's Cash Early Saturday

An undetermined amount of cash was stolen in an early morning burglary of the Lantern bar and restaurant on Saturday. Case was still under investigation as the Times went to press.

According to Pennington county investigator Bob Wold, entry was apparently gained by breaking a window, with a locked cabinet in the office forced open to get the cash. Nothing else was apparently taken. The burglary was reported at approximately 7 a.m. this morning, and was determined to have occurred sometime after 4 a.m. when the business was locked up.

Anyone having any information which might be pertinent to the investigation is asked to call the law enforcement center 681-6161.

CONCLUDING a demonstration of machinery designed to separate municipal garbage and turn the paper and cardboard into a utilizable fuel source, representatives of the Lundell Manufacturing Co. built a fire to prove that the fuel sticks burned clean and hot, with practically no smoke. Observing the demonstration were: (from left) David Strong, Jobs Inc.; unidentified; Vern Lundell, inventor of the machines; Don Kyser, engineer with MPCA; Russ Christianson, CPA; Wally Sparby, state representative; Kathy Hahne, special consultant with Minnesota department of energy; Frank Altman, assistant commissioner for energy finance, Minnesota department of energy; Wayne Olson, Pennington county engineer; Bob Jablinske, Thief River Falls sanitation commissioner; Jerry Misukanis, representative of Preferable Fuels and Systems Inc.; Ed Welsch, grant loan officer for Minnesota waste management board; and Mrs. Ted Pauling, sales consultant.

Delegation Views Means For Garbage Processing

by Dave Berg
Times Reporter

Nine people boarded a Bemidji Airlines charter flight at the Thief River Falls regional airport at 7:30 a.m. Tuesday, traveling to Cherokee, IA, to see a demonstration which could change the way Thief River Falls, and eventually the rest of the country, deals with its garbage.

That delegation included Don Grabanski, county commissioner; Ken Murphy, city alderman; Wayne Olson, county engineer; Robert Jablinske, city sanitation commissioner; Dave Strong, Jobs Inc.; Jim Rogalla, Norwest Bank; Les Nordhagen, Les's Sanitation Service; Steve Nordhagen, Future Fuels Inc.; and Dave Berg, Times reporter.

We were met at the Cherokee airport by representatives of Lundell Manufacturing Company Inc., a firm which has operated in Cherokee since 1946, making a diverse line of equipment that includes farm machinery, satellite antennas, densifiers and separation machines.

Shortly after arrival we were joined by a second group which flew in from Minneapolis. On this flight were State Representative Wally Sparby; Frank Altman, assistant commissioner for energy finance, Minnesota department of energy; Russ Christianson, certified public accountant from Thief River Falls; Don Kyser, engineer, Minnesota pollution control agency; Rick Nordhagen, Future Fuels Inc. of Thief River Falls; Ed Welsch, grant loan officer, Minnesota waste management board; and Ken Yeager and Kathy Hahne, special consultants with the Minnesota department of energy.

Meeting was called at the request of the Nordhagens to see a demonstration of machinery developed by Lundell Manufacturing, which the Nordhagens hope to utilize in a new business to be established in Thief River Falls. If that business, Future Fuels Inc., is successful, it could serve as a pilot program for the entire United States, and revolutionize the way we think about garbage. Although much work remains to be done before that business becomes a reality, the enthusiasm generated by the demonstration in Cherokee could bring it into operation as early as October of this year, according to Russ Christianson.

That demonstration indicated that it is possible to mechanically separate a mixture as complex as municipal garbage, reducing the amount which is presently buried in landfills by approximately 25 per cent of its volume; recovering approximately 15 per cent as valuable recyclable materials; and converting the largest percentage (which is made up of paper and cardboard) to fuel briquets which provide heating values close to burning of coal.

For the demonstration a load of garbage collected in Cherokee the night before was dumped on the floor of the Lundell Manufacturing plant. Vernon Lundell, who founded the company in 1946, explained that it would provide a real "trial by fire" of his separation machine, since heavy rains the day before had left much of the garbage in an extremely soggy condition which the machine had not encountered before. The tour group was warned in advance that the sights and smells they would encounter were not pleasant.

Following a brief tour of the manufacturing facilities, the group was led to an area where a prototype of the separation machine which the company intends to market was set up. Lundell explained that a number of improvements which had been suggested trials of the equipment would be incorporated into production models. A huge mound of garbage lay next to the feed table of the machine, which was approximately 80 feet long and five feet wide, and three conveyor belts came out at different locations along the right side.

After the garbage was loaded manually onto the infeed table, Lundell explained that it passed through a series of rollers and knives designed to shred the plastic bags, break glass and separate the garbage.

Magnetic separators then removed metallic objects such as cans, which were conveyed to a container for collection and eventual resale. Other materials were carried along on a series of revolving knives resembling a huge hammermill, coming out on two conveyor belts at the end, one carrying "wet garbage" such as dirt and fruit pulp, which was dumped in a box for eventual disposal; the other carrying mostly paper, cardboard and plastic, which were dumped in a pickup for transporting to the densifier.

TWO OF THIRTEEN Minnesota students to receive scholarships of $1,000 or more from the Elks national foundation are David Ose and Cynthia Solem of Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls. Each of the local students received $1,000 scholarships from the national organization. In addition, David Olin presented each of them with a $200 scholarship check from the local Elks lodge. Both seniors at Lincoln high school this year, David will attend St. Olaf college in Northfield in the fall while Cynthia will attend Northland community college in Thief River Falls. David is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Ose and Cynthia is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Solem.

LHS Graduation Is Set For Thursday

With 190 class members as candidates for graduation, Lincoln high school commencement exercises will be conducted Thursday at 8 p.m. at the Thief River Falls sports arena.

Student speakers will be Jill Kathryn Isaacson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vern Isaacson, presenting the welcome from the class and Jeffrey David Hamerlinck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hamerlinck, who will give the class farewell.

Processional and recessional will be "Pomp and Circumstance" played by the high school orchestra under the direction of James Solsten. Invocation will be presented by Rev. Berton R. Hushagen, pastor of Trinity Lutheran church.

Principal Frank Hamerlinck will introduce the class speakers and present the class of 1984 for awarding of diplomas by Harry Sjulson, chairman of the School District 564 board of education. Music will be provided by the Lincoln orchestra playing "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring" and the Lincoln concert choir singing "O God Our Help in Ages Past" by W.M. Croft and the Lincoln high school "Alma Mater". The choir is directed by David Morken.

The top 10 scholastic honor students for the Class of 1984 are Jacqueline Kramer, David Ose, Richard Spong, Jeffrey Hamerlinck, Cynthia Solem, Jill Isaacson, Sheila Duke, Dennis Langevin, Linette Olson and Bonnie Delage. Jeffrey Hamerlinck and Jacqueline Kramer were winners of the American Legion and auxiliary outstanding senior awards.

Junior honor escorts for commencement exercises will be Karla Johnson and Shannon Kezar.

Timothy Kruse from the graduating class was president of the student senate at Lincoln this year with other class members on the senate including Melissa Bondy, Jill Isaacson, Kim Lawrenz and Teresa Nelson.

Seniors named to the national honor society include Jacqueline Kramer, David Ose, Richard Spong, Jeff Hamerlinck, Cynthia Solem, Jill Isaacson, Sheila Duke, Dennis Langevin, Linette Olson, Bonnie Delage, Craig Goodrich, Lori Dusek, Randal Erickson, Susan Block, Jeffrey Langan, Raymond Mosbeck, Marlys Schindler and Kathryn Reuter.

Memorial Day Services Today

Memorial Day services were scheduled for today (Monday) at 9:30 a.m. at the Plummer high school gymnasium and 10:30 a.m. at Friendship Gardens in Thief River Falls.

The services are sponsored by the veterans organizations and their auxiliaries in those communities and public attendance is encouraged.

FOUR GRADUATES are included in the Frank Olson family from the Viking community this year. Mrs. Olson (Sharon) received her cap from the nursing program at Northland community college in Thief River Falls Friday afternoon. About an hour later her son Robert received his two-year degree from Northland at commencement exercises in the school gymnasium. Her daughter Diana (right) received her high school diploma Friday night from Marshall county central high school in Newfolden, and her daughter-in-law Julie (Norberg) will receive her diploma from Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls Thursday.

VALLEY DAIRY

JOBS INCORPORATED "Builders of Thief River Falls" have completed a wall of support for the local industrial development organization. Jim Winjum (left) president of Jobs Incorporated, and Dr. John Seaverson look over the building blocks signifying contributions to the organization's program of work. Jerry Sandstrom, executive director of Jobs Incorporated, said the organization now has 122 paid individual memberships and 94 Jobs Builders, the latter of whom have made $100 contributions for the work at hand. Goal of the Jobs Incorporated program is to retain present jobs and secure new jobs for the community. "We welcome your comments, questions and concerns," Sandstrom said. "Ideas of how to create jobs are important and we are always glad to answer questions or follow up on potential leads." The Jobs Builders display board is now located at First Federal Savings and Loan association.

Groundwater Conference Set Here June 13th

What is happening to groundwater in Minnesota? The second conference to explore that question will be held in Thief River Falls at Northland community college on June 13.

Purpose of the conference is to introduce the basics of groundwater location, movement and sources of contamination to those who are affected by it — county officials, planning commissions and zoning administrators, farmers, homeowners with their own wells, municipal water people, sanitarians, state and federal agency personnel, and others with an interest in ground water quality and quantity.

The conference will also explore the status of knowledge about groundwater in northwestern Minnesota.

Groundwater is the source of drinking water for two-thirds of Minneosta's residents, approximately 2.6 million people, according to the Minnesota Groundwater Newsletter.

"The quality of Minnesota's groundwater is becoming an increasingly important issue, yet few people know much about it," said Gil Gabanski, chairman of the Minnesota Groundwater association. The department of health has said that of the total number of municipal water wells they test, about 10 per cent have some contamination problems.

Conference participants will hear about where groundwater is found, how it moves, where it goes, how groundwater and surface water interact, and how water becomes contaminated. There will also be discussions of abandoned wells, a major problem in Minnesota, and how an aquifer can be cleaned. Major happenings that will affect groundwater in the future, such as the possibility of selling water rights to other states, will be part of the agenda.

Major speakers include Joseph Rossilion, executive director of the Freshwater foundation; Ron Thompson, department of health, Minneapolis; and Mike Hansel, Minnesota pollution control agency.

Credits for continuing education for real estate people will be requested from the department of commerce. Five and one-half real estate credits were awarded to the Brainerd groundwater conference.

The conference is being sponsored by the Agassiz environmental education council, department of natural resources division of waters, Minnesota association of soil and water conservation districts, Minnesota soil and water conservation board, the state planning agency and the

Edward Gerszewskis Are At Home In Hopkins

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Leo Gerszewski are at home in Hopkins following an exchange of marriage vows at the Assumption Catholic church in Richfield, and a wedding trip to Hawaii.

The bride, the former Margaret Ann Wheeler, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wheeler of Richfield. The groom, formerly of the Newfolden community, is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Gerszewski of Warroad.

Rev. Ronald Meyer officiated at the double ring ceremony witnessed by approximately 200 relatives and friends. David Mike, a friend of the groom, was reader, and his wife, Carol, Eucharistic minister. Allan Graetz, cousin of the groom, was acolyte and Barbara Schrenk played the guitar and sang "I Have Loved You," "The Gift of Love," "The Wedding Song," and "On Eagle's Wings."

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, was attired in a long-sleeve, floor-length, white satin gown featuring a basque bodice trimmed with Alencon lace and pearls. The A-line skirt flowed in a cathedral train edged with Venise lace. At the Queen Anne neckline, she wore a single strand of pearls, borrowed from her grandmother. A Juliet headpiece, held her veil of silk illusion. She carried a cascade of red silk roses, accented with white babies' breath.

Attending the bride were her sisters: Jean Wheeler, as maid of honor and Kathleen Wheeler as bridesmaid. They wore royal blue satin gowns with batteau necklines, short puffy sleeves, and box pleated floor-length skirts with side-tied sashes. Their headpieces were wide brim royal blue hats with the turned up side complemented by a flower. They carried red and blue roses, accented with small white flowers. Their pearl necklaces and matching earrings were gifts from the bride.

Flower girl was Linda Graetz, cousin of the groom. She wore a light blue floor-length gown with lacy, puffed short sleeves. Her headband was trimmed with small blue and white flowers and white ribbon streamers. She carried a single red rose surrounded by blue and white flowers. Her necklace was a gift from the bride.

Denis Gerszewski, brother of the groom, was best man. Groomsman was William Wheeler, brother of the bride. The ushers were Bernard Donelan and Dale Lechner, cousins of the bride and groom, respectively. The groom was attired in a white tuxedo and his attendants wore gray tuxedos.

The mother of the bride wore a floor-length gown of light blue georgette with the jewelry neckline complemented by four symetrical drapes. The groom's mother wore an aqua floor-length gown topped by a sheer long-sleeved jacket. Their identical corsages were miniature white roses.

Special guests were Mr. and Mrs. Carl Wheeler, Minneapolis, grandparents of the bride, and Mrs. Stella Gerszewski, Argyle, grandmother of the groom.

A reception and dance followed at the Wold-Chamberlain American Legion. Host and hostess were Michael and Darlene Graetz, cousins of the groom. Friends Mary Kaltoff and Jenny Welter served the punch and champagne.

The five-tiered wedding cake was cut and served by Rosemary Britton, Waseca, aunt of the bride, and Mary Gerszewski, Minneapolis, aunt of the groom. Pouring coffee were Gertrude Donelan, Waseca, and Verna Slominski, Grand Forks, also aunts of the bride and groom.

Waitresses were Gloria Otis and Jackie Lindner. Fidelis Lindner arranged the gifts. All are cousins of the groom. The bride's cousin, Bonnie Britton, presided at the guest book.

After the rehearsal, the evening prior to the wedding, the groom's parents hosted a dinner at the Richfield American Legion.

The bride is a graduate of Holy Angels academy and the University of Minnesota. She is employed by Midwest Life Insurance company. The groom, a graduate of Newfolden high school and the Minnesota school of business, is employed by Thermo King corporation.

Baby Shower Set for Mrs. Lundeen and Robbie

Mrs. Vincent Lundeen and son, Robbie, will be honored at a baby shower on Friday, June 1, at 7:30 p.m., at the Ebenezer Lutheran church, rural Oklee.

All friends and relatives are welcome to attend.

New Student Registration Set At UMC

New student registration at the university of Minnesota-Crookston (UMC) is scheduled for June 8, beginning at 9:30 a.m. All area students, whether or not they have been accepted for study at UMC, are encouraged to attend, according to Dale Knotek, director of student activities.

Students will have the opportunity to register for fall quarter classes, meet with division chairpersons and faculty, and take care of special interests and needs such as housing, financial aid, organization membership, and athletic participation.

Parents are encouraged to attend, according to Knotek. For more information call UMC at 218-281-6510, extension 358.

Lioness Club Of Goodridge Make Donations

Several donations, totaling $575, were made a recent meeting of the Goodridge Lioness club.

Following a proposal made by the executive board, members voted to match the Lion's club donation of $500 to purchase tables and chairs for the Goodridge Community hall.

Other contributions made were $25 to the Youth Main Street beautification project headed by Ethel Wiseth, and $50 for packets for the upcoming baby sitting clinic.

A progress report on the baby sitting clinic project was given by Marilyn Olson. She stated that the event will be held at the Faith Lutheran church with sessions scheduled from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. A fee will be charged. Those enrolling the course must be 10 years of age or older. Topics will include panel discussions with parents and children, focusing on emergencies requiring help from the fire and police departments. Mrs. Olson stated that final plans will be made at a later meeting of the committee.

Vice president Elaine Wiseth presided at the meeting which included the secretary and treasurer's reports by Marlys Drangstveit and Sharon Wayne. Dorothy Wayne read the correspondence from the Blood bank and Camp Courage. An announcement was also read regarding the state convention to be held June 8-10 in Minneapolis.

Convention expenses were discussed and it was decided to schedule silent auctions at upcoming meetings to help meet those needs. Also discussed was the need of obtaining a 100 cup coffee maker. Helen Grabowski was appointed to head that committee.

The dinner meeting was held at the Trapper and Trader with the Highlanding 4-H club presenting the program. The youth, attired in costumes, performed a dance to the tune of "Hokey Pokey". The club leaders are Claudia Howard, Peggy Hoffman and Tony Bryle. The program also included two poems "Dirty Dishes", and "Self Sufficient", read by Janice Peterson.

Visitors attending the meeting were Arlene Mosher, Sherry Swanson, Pattie Lipp and Char Caldwell, members of the Thief River Falls Evening Lioness club. Peggy Hoffman won the free supper and Janice Peterson, Elaine Wiseth and Peggy Hoffman, the door prizes.

Road Projects In Area Total $16 Million

Over 150 miles of state highways in northwestern Minnesota will see some sort of highway improvement work during the 1984 construction season, according to district engineer Bob Wolfe of the Minnesota dapgartment of transportation. Cost of these improvements is estimated at $15,988,000.

Twenty projects are scheduled for the construction season now starting. Several projects are now getting underway and all but three have been let. The projects involve about 75 miles of resurfacing, 21 miles of seal coat, 39 miles of concrete joint repair on concrete roadways and 18 miles of more extensive grading work.

Work will also include 10 culvert replacements, three bridge replacements and two bridge repair jobs. There are about 1,730 miles of roadway and 350 bridges in District 2 which encompasses a 14-county area in northwestern Minnesota, according to Wolfe.

As in past years, the scheduled projects are mostly rehabilitation type projects aimed at preserving existing roadways and maintaining their strength. Only two projects, trunk highway 71 between Lake George and Kabekona and trunk highway 59 between the south Polk county line and trunk highway 2 are reconstruction projects that involve rebuilding the roadway grade.

In addition to this scheduled work, maintenance workers will be working on smaller projects in all areas of the district this summer, Wolfe said.

Among the construction projects are the following:

T.H. 11, replace Baudette Bay bridge (carryover), $2,067,000 and resurface T.H. 11, Frontier to Indus, (carryover), 18.9 miles, $1,011,000; T.H. 11, three miles west of Baudette to Pitt, resurface three miles, $153,000; T.H. 59, south Polk county line to T.H. 2, grade and surface 11.3 miles, $2,000,000 estimated; T.H. 2, overlay bridge over Red river in East Grand Forks, $556,000; T.H. 32, overlay bridge over Clearwater river in Red Lake Falls, $384,000; T.H. 89, replace bridge over Roseau river at Ross, $501,000; T.H. 92, T.H. 2 to T.H. 92, spot overlay on five miles, $92,000; T.H. 89 3.5 miles south to 4.8 miles north of Marshall-Roseau county line, spot overlay on 8.3 miles, $110,000; T.H. 2, T.H. 32 to 12 miles east of T.H. 59, concrete joint repair on 27 miles, $500,000 estimated; and T.H. 197, Hallock to state line, concrete joint repair, 10 miles, $42,000.

CHANGE IN DIRECTORS for the Northwestern hospital auxiliary took place at the May meeting of the board in the CNC chapel at the hospital Wednesday. Retiring board members who have completed their three-year terms are seated and include, left to right, Mrs. Stan Wilson, Mrs. Jon Larson and Mrs. Lowell Collins. A NEW FLAG for St. Bernard's parochial school in Thief River Falls to replace one which was stolen recently was presented Friday by the Veterans of Foreign Wars auxiliary. Left to right in the photo are Mrs. Mildred Rux, community services chairman; Kathy Aune, Americanism chairman; Kaye Dondelinger and Lisa Anderson, sixth grade students; Charles Walrath, principal; and Edna McEnelly, president of the VFW auxiliary. The flag at St. Bernard's was one of several which have been stolen recently in Thief River Falls.

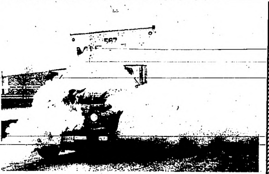
FIREMEN CONFER during a training exercise Wednesday evening in an attempt to determine what type of material caused an explosion and fire. The surprise drill was conducted as a test for law enforcement, emergency personnel, firemen, hospital workers and medical personnel. It simulated an explosion at a chemical plant and required use of oxygen masks, determination of chemical involved and what hazards it presented, and handling of injured people.



SMOKE BOMB, which was set off following detonation of an aerial salute, added realism to the disaster drill conducted in Thief River Falls Wednesday evening. The truck was parked at the Simplot Soil Builders lot on the west edge of Thief River Falls and the drill involved a simulated chemical explosion and fire. Periodic drills are conducted unannounced to test reaction and preparedness of law enforcement, emergency services and medical and hospital personnel, according to Pennington county sheriff Charles Richards.

KITCHEN KARNIVAL

Featuring recipes from the Kitchen of

Mrs. Willard Purath
rural Red Lake Falls

Italian Barbecued Short Ribs

3½-4 lbs., beef short ribs, cut in serving pieces
1 cup catsup
½ cup Italian salad dressing
½ cup chopped onion
¼ cup brown sugar
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon prepared mustard

Method: In heavy sauce pan cover short ribs with water. Simmer over low heat until tender, 1½ to 2 hours. Place ribs in a baking pan. Combine remaining ingredients and pour over ribs. Bake at 375 for 50-60 minuts. Skim off fat and serve sauce with ribs. Garnish with parsley and an orange slice. Yield: four servings.

This recipe, submitted by Gloria Kirchman of Mankato at the Ninth Annual Minnesota Beef Cook-Off, captured the $500 cash prize and the opportunity to compete in the National Beef Cook-Off in New Mexico in September.

Mrs. Purath has been a member of the Minnesota Cow Belles for 12 years and is past president of both the local and state organizations. The local group, which includes East Polk, Pennington and Red Lake county, meets every other month. The purpose of the organization is to promote the use of beef and to educate the consumer. The focus of the annual Cook-Off is to discover new ways of cooking less expensive cuts of beef.

In addition to her interests in promoting beef, Mrs. Purath is active in raising registered Angus cattle with her husband and son, Gary and his family. Their other children include Janet, a registered nurse in Indiana; Jan Green, Breckenridge; and Douglas, who is married and stationed with the U.S. Air Force in Alaska. The Puraths also have six grandchildren.

Her hobbies are sewing, gardening and wheat weaving. She raises her own wheat for this project and sells the surplus to other hobbists.

Delegation To Iowa Inspects Trash System

Although the machine appeared to be pretty efficient, it did not eliminate the need for manual labor, and a number of people were stationed along the conveyor belts, picking out objects which had gotten through the separation process.

After an inspection of the equipment, Dave Strong, manager of Forsbergs in Thief River Falls, said that he had been impressed with the quality of the manufacturing and operation of the equipment, adding that he felt it was in some cases "overbuilt". He also noted that some of the hand picking could possibly be eliminated by additional equipment which could be manufactured by Forsbergs.

In a later interview, Strong said he had checked into the record of the manufacturer, noting that they had a good reputation for quality. He did note however, that it would be essential to the performance of the machinery to have dependable people scrutinizing what was fed into it in order to prevent breakdowns.

Following the demonstration of the separator, the group was transported to a building several blocks away, where one of the company's densifiers had been set up. The pickup load of paper and other garbage was dumped on the floor, where it was picked up with a front end loader and placed on the feed table of one of the company's densifiers. It was mixed with cardboard to help maintain uniformity of the final product.

As the materials were carried up the feed table, rollers and knives again shredded and mixed the materials, which were compressed under great pressure and extruded from dies located radially around a pair of center wheels. As the material was extruded, it tended to break off in lengths ranging from one inch to about eight inches, falling onto a conveyor belt which cooled the material and carried it away from the machine for storage. Lundell noted that the material was compressed to a density of up to 40 pounds per square foot.

Preliminary results of combustion chamber tests on the pellets indicate that they produce between 8,400 and 11,000 BTU's per pound, compared to about 8,600 for wood, and between 11,000 and 13,500 for coal. Lundell claimed that his company's heating costs had gone from close to $18,000 in 1980, when they burned propane, to $3,458 last winter, when they burned paper cubes. As a conclusion to the demonstration, a small fire was built using the briquets, which burned almost smoke free, somewhat cleaner than a hardwood fire, but with slightly more flame than charcoal. No odor remained to indicate the origin of the material.

Following the demonstration, the group met for lunch and a question and answer session, with comments generally favorable regarding the success of the demonstration.

Perhaps one of the most important comments regarding the demonstration was made by Ken Yeager in a memo which he later sent out to Rep. Sparby and a number of other government officials. It stated in part: "In my view, this project is unique and is certainly deserving of consideration for a planning and-or demonstration grant from the Waste Management Board." He further added that he considered the demonstration a "technical success," and believed the Nordhagens' goals would be of much use to the system.

Representative Sparby said that the feedback he had gotten on the flight back to the cities had indicated that the officials were "real impressed with the quality of the equipment" and had gotten a positive attitude about the project. He said he had tried the fuel briquets in both his fireplace and furnace at home, and felt they had a lot of potential. He added that he would be following up this week with reports to the governor, Tony Perpich, Frank Altman, Mark Dayton and the Waste Management Board, asking for a favorable review and financial support for the project.

"We've got to address this issue sometime in the future," said Sparby. "The Nordhagens have taken a tremendous step forward as a private enterprise. This project could be a model for everyone in the U.S. and could attract a lot of people to Thief River Falls to see it."

Ken Murphy related even more closely to the local issue, "I think it's a good idea because we have to do something about this problem of burying our solid wastes. Although some people might see the project as being in conflict with the incineration plant at Bagley, as it provides an alternative which should be tried and compared." "Maybe both of them will be shown to be feasible," he said, "but one thing I know is that if we don't do something, we will have to start hauling to Bagley, and that will mean $93,000 going out of our community per year in additional costs for garbage handling."

Graduation exercises for 344 students of the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute will be conducted Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Thief River Falls sports arena. A reception for all graduates, families and friends will be held in the arena immediately following the ceremony.

Featured speaker will be Rev. Ernie Mancini, pastor and vice president of Eventide Lutheran home at Moorhead. He has previously worked in YMCA camps, coached football, worked in a boys' correctional institute and done adventure camping and parish work in the Rosemount, Roseville, Coon Rapids, Benson and Moorhead communities. He is also presently on the pastoral staff of the Lutheran Church of the Good Sepherd in Moorhead.

Dr. Orley Gunderson will present the class of 1984 and diplomas will be awarded by Harry Sjulson, president of the board of education for School District 564.

Processional and recessional will be played by Christy Gerardy and invocation and benediction given by Rev. Paul Bortnem. Dr. Gunderson will give a welcome and introduce guests and a vocal solo will be sung by Jackie Helms, accounting student, accompanied by Christy Gerardy.

Vern Treat, director of student services, will introduce the guest speaker. This year's graduating class will bring to 5,749 the number of students who have received graduation certificates from the local AVTI.

A list of graduates in the various programs of the school is printed elsewhere in this issue of the Times.

Stewardship Of Soil Celebrated Here This Week

Pennington soil and water conservation district will join the nationwide celebration of Soil Stewardship Week from May 27 to June 3 with the theme "Conservation: A Common Commitment."

National association of conservation districts (NACD) has sponsored Soil Stewardship Week since 1955, in cooperation with the nation's nearly 3,000 soil and water conservation districts.

Thirtieth annual reference booklet published by NACD cites the reluctance of the human race to fully accept its primary role as caretaker of God's earth. "We are prepared to eat the fruit but the task of dressing the garden is left to the few among us who sincerely care about the perpetuation of the forests, the preservation of the rivers that water the garden and the renewing of the topsoil from which the plants gather their nutrients."

Materials specially designed to promote the Soil Stewardship Week theme have been distributed through the local conservation office to area churches.

Paul Anderson Services Held At Redeemer

Funeral services for Paul V. Anderson, 84, of Thief River Falls, were held Saturday, May 26, at 10:30 a.m., at Redeemer Lutheran church. Anderson died Tuesday morning at Oakland Park Nursing home.

Rev. Luther Anderson officiated at the services. Music was provided by Jan Nordin, soloist, and Ruth Mosbeck, organist. Interment was in the Clara Lutheran cemetery, rural Thief River Falls. The Green Funeral home was in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Art Peterson, Robert Peterson, Ed Nicholls, Howard Dalager, Charles Haanedl and Merle Gustafson.

Paul Anderson, a son of the late Andrew and Anna Erickson Anderson, was born Aug. 27, 1899 in River Falls township of Pennington county. He was baptized and confirmed at Clara Lutheran church and attended school in River Falls township. He farmed with his brother Reuben until retiring in 1978. The following year, he became a resident of Valley Home. In 1982, he moved to Oakland Park Nursing home where he had since resided.

While living in River Falls township, he was a member of Clara Lutheran church. At the time of his death, he was a member of Redeemer Lutheran church.

He is survived by one brother, Reuben Anderson, Thief River Falls; two sisters: Hazel Anderson, Thief River Falls; and Mabel Ulrich, St. Hilaire; three nephews: Louis and Larry Ulrich, and George Johnson; two nieces, Dorothy Stephenson and Delores Kading; and several cousins.

He was preceded in death by a sister, Ruth; two half-sisters: Anna Shaulis and Marie Johnson, and two half-brothers: Henry and Charles Anderson.

Clara Branigan Services Held At Shevlin

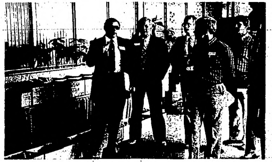
Mrs. Clara H. Branigan, 87, of Shevlin and Thief River Falls, died Wednesday at the Clearwater Memorial hospital at Bagley. Her daughter, Mrs. Francis Hamerlinck, resides in this city.

Funeral services for Mrs. Branigan were held Saturday, May 26, at 1:00 p.m., at the Alida Lutheran church, rural Shevlin. Rev. Roger Rotvold officiated. Interment was in the Sell Lake Lutheran cemetery, rural Shevlin. The Cease Funeral home, Bagley, was in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. Branigan, the former Clara Tiegland, was born Sept. 7, 1896 at Belgrade to Christ and Karen Tiegland. As a child, she moved with her parents to the Alida area, rural Shevlin, where she had since resided. Her marriage to Harry T. Branigan took place Dec. 25, 1916 at Shevlin. He died in 1976. Since then, she had spent her summers in Shevlin and her winters in Thief River Falls.

Survivors, in addition to her daughter, Mrs. Francis (Jeanette) Hammerlick of Thief River Falls, are nine grandchildren, four great-grandchildren, a brother, Elmer Teigland, Shevlin; and three sisters: Mrs. John (Martha) Radil, Shevlin, Ella Nolting and Ann McShane, both of Bemidji.

She was preceded in death by her husband, parents, a daughter, and one son.



VERNON LUNDELL, left, inventory of machinery being considered for use in a solid waste recycling plant in Thief River Falls, explained that all kinds of materials could be densified for use as solid fuel, producing a staggering array of examples to prove his point. His company, Lundell Manufacturing Inc., has been producing densifiers since 1956, mostly for production of agricultural feeds, only recently expanding into the energy market. Purchase of the equipment is being considered for establishment of a new business in Thief River Falls, which would create fuel briquets from municipal garbage. Among those attending from Thief River Falls were Wally Sparby, Wayne Olson, Steve and Rick Norddhagen.

$100 SCHOLARSHIPS from the BPO Does in Thief River Falls were presented to Lincoln high school students last week by Marilyn Winters, scholarship chairman for the local organization. Students (left to right) include Paula Wilkens, scholarship winner to attend Northland community college; Susan Anderson, scholarship recipient for the area vocational-technical institute; and Debra Dietz, alternate for the AVTI scholarship. Not pictured is Cynthia Altepeter, alternate for the NCC scholarship.

Stella Hedlund, Mother Of TRF Woman, Dies

Mrs. Elvin (Stella) Hedlund, 82, of Roseau, mother of Mrs. Adolph Oseid of Thief River Falls, died Tuesday at the Roseau Area Hospital. She had been in failing health for several months.

Funeral services for Mrs. Hedlund were held Saturday, May 26, at 2:30 p.m., at the Bethel Lutheran church at Stafford. Rev. Frank Livingston officiated. Interment was in the church cemetery. The Helgeson Funeral home, Roseau, was in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Kirk Oseid, Jeff Oseid, Jack Oseid, Craig Davidson, Obert Hedlund and James Nelson.

Mrs. Hedlund, the former Stella Sillerud, was born May 12, 1902 at Duxby to Mr. and Mrs. Carl Sillerud. As a young girl, she moved with her parents to Badger and attended school there. Later, she attended Moorhead State Teachers college and taught school for many years.

She was married Dec. 31, 1931 at Roseau to Elvin Hedlund with Rev. Casper Nervig officiating. They settled in the Stafford community, rural Roseau, where they lived until Dec. 10, 1980, when they moved to Roseau.

She was an active member of the Bethel Lutheran church near her home in Stafford and was especially interested in working with the youth. She also served as county chairman for the Sister Kenny foundation for several years.

She is survived by her husband, two daughters: Mrs. Donald (Shirley) Grahn, Roseau, and Mrs. Adolph (Doris) [illegible] sisters: Mrs. Ella Myhre, Stephen, and Mrs. Inga Berglund, St. Paul.

In addition to her parents, she was preceded in death by a daughter, Jean, four brothers and three sisters.

Services Held For Oldrich J. Hoffman, 72

Funeral services for Oldrich Hoffman, 72, of rural Goodridge, were held Saturday, May 26, at 2:00 p.m., at the Faith Lutheran church in Goodridge. Hoffman died Tuesday evening at Northwestern hospital.

Rev. Gene Broughton officiated at the services. Organist for the congregational singing was Ann Manderud. Interment was in the Goodridge cemetery with the Green Funeral home in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Rick Jensen, Jon Jensen, Gary Iverson, Leslie Iverson, Roger Hoffman, Rodney Hoffman and Otto Rehm.

Oldrich J. Hoffman was born Nov. 5, 1911 in Star township, Pennington county, to J.V. and Bessie Brantl Hoffman. He attended school in Star township and grew to manhood there.

He was married June 7, 1939 at Goodridge to Hilda Kompen. Following their marriage, they settled in Highlanding township, Pennington county, where they farmed until retiring in 1975. Since then, they continued living on the farm.

Hoffman was very active in the affairs of the community. He was instrumental in obtaining a grant for the Senior Citizens' building in Goodridge and supervised its construction. He served on the Goodridge school board for 15 years and prior to that was a member of the Old Glory school board in the Highlanding area.

From 1958 to 1977, he served on the Production Credit Association board, had been a member of the Farmers Union and in recent years had been active in the National Farmers Organization, serving two terms as county treasurer. He had also served for more than 20 years on the Faith Lutheran church council.

In 1973 Hoffman and his wife were chosen Pennington County Valley Farmer and Homemaker, receiving an award at the Red River Valley Winter Shows at Crookston.

He is survived by his wife, a son, Clinton Hoffman, Goodridge; three daughters: Mrs. Ron (Judy) Shurtz, Modesto, Calif.; Mrs. Richard (Irene) Farrigan, Latham, N.Y.; and Susan Hoffman, Grand Forks, N.D.; five grandchildren; a brother, John Hoffman, Goodridge; and a sister, Mrs. Earl (Beatrice) Dahl, Santa Cruz, Calif.

He was preceded in death by his parents and one sister, Marie Rehm.

Alf Jorstad Dies Thursday In Grand Forks

BACKING A PICKUP under a conveyor belt off the end of a densifying machine demonstrated for a group of government officials and business people in Cherokee, IA. last Tuesday, illustrated the ease with which fuel briquets could be loaded for use by various customers. The machine is being considered as a possible solution to problems of solid waste disposal for Thief River Falls and surrounding area. Observing the demonstration were: (from left) Don Grabanski, county commissioner; Ken Yeager, consultant for the Minnesota department of energy; Jerry Misukanis, a representative of the manufacturer; Steve Nordhagen, one of the originators of the recycling concept; Russ Christianson, accountant for the Nordhagens; and Wayne Olson, Pennington county engineer.

Progress Made In Planting Of State Crops

Almost half of Minnesota's corn crop has been planted and progress is back on schedule, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service. A good start was also made on soybean planting, while small grain planting was nearing completion in the major growing areas.

Farmers were putting in long hours, some working day and night, to take advantage of the long-awaited stretch of warm, sunny weather. Soils had warmed up and dried out considerably by the weekend, although there were still wet spots in fields. The week was dry in most areas, but an area of east central Minnesota received up to an inch of rain in mid-week. The top layers of soil were getting dry and dusty in the northwest, where some rain would be welcomed.

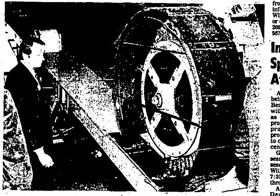
Strong winds caused damage to small grains and sugarbeets in northwest, west central and central Minnesota. An average of 4.5 days were suitable for fieldwork during the week. Topsoil moisture as of May 18 was rated four per cent short, 70 per cent adequate, and 26 per cent surplus.

Field corn ground is 81 per cent prepared versus 73 per cent last year and 82 per cent for the five-year average. Field corn planting stands at 62 per cent complete, and increase of 42 percentage points over the previous week. Planting progress a year ago was 59 per cent; the five-year average is 69 per cent. An estimated four per cent of field corn is emerged compared with five per cent last year and 16 per cent for the five-year average.

Soybean ground preparation is 42 per cent complete versus 42 per cent a year ago and 58 per cent for the five-year average. Oats are 93 per cent seeded versus 88 per cent for the five-year average. Barley is 90 per cent seeded compared with the five-year average of 76 per cent. Emergence is estimated at 63 per cent for spring wheat, 75 per cent for oats, and 55 per cent for barley; five-year average emergence figures for the three-crops are 62 per cent, 69 per cent and 55 per cent, respectively. Winter wheat condition is rated 38 per cent poor to fair and 62 per cent good to excellent.

Sunflowers are 34 per cent planted versus 22 per cent last year and 35 per cent for the five-year average. Sugarbeets are 95 per cent planted versus 92 per cent a year ago and 85 per cent for the five-year average. Some beet fields have had to be replanted because of wind damage. Potatoes are 56 per cent planted compared with 45 per cent for the five-year average. Flax is 41 per cent planted versus 42 per cent for the five-year average. Dry edible beans are 20 per cent planted compared with 17 per cent last year.

Emergence and growth of planted crops were slow early in the week, but were picking up speed as the week ended. Hay and pasture are catching up after having been short for this time of year. Many animals are now on pasture feed. Alfalfa hay condition is rated two per cent poor, 32 per cent fair, 60 per cent good, and six per cent excellent.



RADIAL arrangements of dies around the outside of the densifier demonstrated in Cherokee, IA. on Tuesday is capable of extruding fuel briquets at a rate of 10 tons per hour, depending on the material fed into it. Briquets are one and three-quarters inch in diameter and up to eight inches long, and burn with an efficiency close to charcoal. The machinery is part of a system being considered as a partial solution to the problem of garbage disposal in Thief River Falls and surrounding area.

CARDBOARD is mixed with paper and other materials recovered from municipal garbage as it is fed into a densifying machine which converts it into solid fuel briquets with a density of up to 40 pounds per cubic foot. Interest in the machinery as a possible solution to garbage disposal problems of Thief River Falls and surrounding area led a group of area business people and government officials to Cherokee, IA. last Tuesday to observe a demonstration.

Diocese Adopts Renew Process For Parishes

Bishop Victor Balke of the Catholic diocese of Crookston recently announced that "Renew," a spiritual renewal process for parishes, would be inaugurated in 73 of the 77 parishes of the diocese on October 7.

"The goal of Renew, a three-year coordinated process, is the spiritual renewal of people and parishes through the teaching and witnessing to the Word of God, through the development of vibrant faith communities, and through the development of formation for action and justice," Bishop Balke said.

Bishop Balke pointed out that because Renew was chosen by the priests' senate and diocesan pastoral council as the chief way of implementing the diocesan five-year plan, it will be the priority in the diocese for the next three years. Spanning five six-week "sessions," Renew will begin in October of 1984 and conclude in December of 1986.

Parishes will experience the program directly through the Sunday Mass, take home materials for personal and family prayer, large group activities that will develop the season's theme and small group experience of praying with Scripture and sharing faith.

Sister Pat Murphy, CSJ is director and Rev. Mike Patnode is Spiritual director of the Renew office. They have been responsible for the recruitment of parishes in the process and training of parish leaders.

Annual Dance Workshop At Bemidji State

Dancers Roni Mahler, Robert Busby and Gus Giordano headline the third annual dance workshop scheduled for students and teachers at Bemidji state university June 15-17.

The workshop will focus on jazz, tap and ballet dance with programs designed for all levels of instruction. Specialty classes in choreography, technique, musical comedy and character will be included.

The workshop will begin at 4 p.m., June 15 with concluding afternoon sessions scheduled on June 17. Registration fee is $65 for seniors and $45 for juniors. One graduate or undergraduate credit is also available.

Registration deadline is June 1. Information and registration materials can be obtained by contacting Marion Christianson, Bemidji State University, Bemidji, MN 56601; phone 755-2769 or 751-5823.

4-County EPS Screening Set During June

Women, Infants and Children supplemental nutritional education program, (WIC) is being held the month of June.

Infants and children up to the age of five and women who are pregnant or breastfeeding may be eligible for the program.

All potential clients must call or write the four county EPS service and complete an application.

Early and Periodic Screening will also be offered at this time to children six months through 13 years of age.

EPS checks any or all of the following: hearing and vision, hematocrit determination, urinalysis and physical assessments, denver developmental testing, dental assessments and instruction in care of teeth.

Appointments must be made one month in advance.

The following is the schedule for WIC and EPS clinics in June. June 7, Red Lake Falls, St. Johns hospital; June 15, Thief River Falls, Redeemer Lutheran church; and June 18, Oklee, community center.

Immunizations will be given at all WIC and EPS clinics from 9 to 9:30 a.m. For further information concerning the WIC and EPS programs, write or call: 4 County EPS Service, 206 E. Colvin, Warren, MN 56762, phone 745-4004.

Institute On Spirituality At Crookston

An institute on spirituality is being sponsored by Mount St. Benedict center in cooperation with the diocese of Crookston as part of the ministry program. Howard Gray, S.J. provincial of the Detroit province Jesuits, is scheduled to conduct the institute at the center from June 25 to 29.

Gray will conduct two sessions per day. A general session entitled, "The Spirit Within," is scheduled from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

A special session, "Spiritual Development and Leadership," is being offered for spiritual leaders Monday through Friday from 3 to 5 p.m.

Tuition for the five-day institute on spirituality is set at $50 for either the afternoon or evening sessions and $80 for both sessions. Registrations with a $15 deposit are due by June 10, 1984.

For brochures and registration forms or for more information contact Sister Mary Beth Benken, Mount St. Benedict Center, Crookston, MN 56716 or call 218-281-3441.

Dondelinger Dances In BSU Dance Follies

Mary Beth Dondelinger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dondelinger, of Thief River Falls, a sophomore majoring in elementary education at Bemidji state university, participated in the 1984 Funtastic Dance Follies presented recently at BSU.

Dondelinger participated in a dance titled "Country Swingers."

Dance shows at BSU date back to the 1940's when modern dance recitals were held in the spring. Since the early 70's, the emphasis has changed to include a wide variety of movement, ranging from ballet and square dancing to dances with popular music.

Approximately 200 students participated in this year's production directed by Marion Christianson, BSU assistant professor of physical education.

St. John Bible School Starts In TRF June 4

Vacation Bible school at St. John Lutheran church in Thief River Falls will be open to all children from three years old through the seventh grade, with classes from 9 to 11:30 a.m. Monday, June 4 through Friday, June 8.

Theme of the course is "God Bless Our Native Land." In order to ensure that there will be enough materials for all students, pre-registration is being requested. This may be accomplished by calling the church office, 681-4488 or 681-2409 after 5 p.m.

St. John Lutheran church is located on the corner of First Street and Pine Avenue, just off Highway 59 South.

Veterans Get Information On Business

Minnesota Veterans business resource council and the U.S. small business administration will sponsor a conference providing military veterans information on managing a small business.

The conference will be held at VFW Post 2948, 236 Third Street, International Falls from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. There is no registration fee, but enrollment is limited.

The conference will cover how to start a small business, how to make financial projections, borrowing money and other sources of finance and marketing goods and services.

To register or for additional information, contact the U.S. Small Business administration at (612) 349-3550.

Helleys Seek Host Homes For Students

Youth for Understanding is seeking families who wish to host international teenagers.

To help host families meet the challenge, YFU has developed a comprehensive program of selection, placement, orientation, education and on-going support for host families and international students alike through the dedication of local area representatives. Those who would like to find out how to become a YFU host family may contact Mr. and Mrs. John Helley of Plummer. The Helleys have been with the program for six years, placing students in Plummer, Fertile, Ada, Gary, Grygla, Thief River Falls, St. Hilaire, Bagley, Bemidji and Brooks. Call them at 465-4587.

Area Students Graduate From AVTI At EGF

Cynthia Hess Plans Mission Trip To Europe

Cynthia Hess will spend five weeks in Europe this fall, with Continental Ministries. She is a 1981 graduate of Lincoln senior high school and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip O. Hess of Thief River Falls.

Cynthia, a junior with a secretarial major, is one of more than 35 Northwestern college students who have chosen to spend a part of this year in missions projects in the United States and overseas. The student missionary fellowship on the Northwestern campus in St. Paul raised over $10,000 to help support the student missionaries.

A Time To Remember

Memorial Day is now another Monday holiday instead of the traditional May 30 and it thus seems easier to forget the purpose for its being established.

In the hustle and bustle of recreational pursuits which a holiday seems to encourage, time for reflection is hard to find. But it would be well for all of us today to take a few minutes, even while doing something else, to give some thought to the military sacrifices that have been made for our nation.

Consensus seems to be that the next world war, if it is allowed to happen, will be the last one — not because nations will learn from it but because the world will be destroyed. It would certainly seem that the capability exists for such massive destruction.

Unfortunately, because of the idealogy of some societies, it is not possible for the earth to exist in peace and harmony among peoples. It is therefore necessary to not only maintain a strong defensive capability, but to develop sufficient offense that any aggressor must realize attack will trigger immediate and extensive retaliation.

As Memorial Day commemorates, the nation and its military have in the past been challenged and called upon to fight in order to maintain our way of life. Sacrifices have been monumental and those of us who have been able to benefit from them should be especially grateful. Memorial Day should definitely be a time to remember.

Number One Crime Problem

Robert F. Dee, chairman of the board of SmithKline Beckman corporation recently commented as follows on what he believes to be the nation's number one crime problem:

The U.S. Government claims that drug abuse by young Americans is the highest of any industrialized country in the world.

The Department of Health and Human Services sets the cost of drug abuse to America at about $100 billion a year — $10 to $16 billion because of the effect of drug abusers on health services, law enforcement and judicial systems, the employment market, and welfare and social service systems. Another $70 to $80 billion a year results from the association between drugs and crime.

The U.S. Attorney General's office calls it "Our No. 1 Crime Problem."

Consider these specifics:

—There are about 500,000 heroin addicts in the United States, each responsible for 350 crimes a year when actively addicted.

—Over the past 20 years, there has been a 30-fold increase in the use of marijuana by American young people.

—64 per cent of American youths take an illegal drug before they finish high school.

—More than four million people currently use cocaine; well above half are in the 18-to 25-year age group.

—In the past few years, pharmacy robberies to get drugs have increased over 100 per cent, while robberies of all kinds have increased about 30 per cent in the same period.

Despite an intensifying attack by federal agents, the military, local police and diplomatic efforts, the use of illegal drugs is increasing. A United Nations agency stated in January that "the menace of drug abuse has reached unprecedented dimensions" worldwide.

The problem is complicated because in drug-producing countries — principally in Latin America and Southwest Asia — narcotics sales are a major item in their economies.

These countries have signed treaties with the United States pledging to reduce production and traffic. Congress recently passed a law requiring the State Department to end assistance to countries that don't agree to cutbacks on cultivation of narcotics.

However, foreign aid is based on several factors — including defense considerations. The State Department points out, more over, that even if poppy production were eliminated in, say, Pakistan and Thailand, a great deal of it comes out of Iran and Afghanistan and unreachable areas in Burma and Laos.

The diplomatic approach does not seem to offer more than a partial answer.

What, then, is the solution? In my opinion, it's a combination of every conceivable approach — diplomatic, legal, stiffened law enforcement.

But above all, we need a truly massive educational effort in American schools — far beyond what has already been launched in some communities at the state and local level. The U.S. government must put this program at the top of its agenda.

The work of the 33 federal agencies in nine federal departments that take part in the war against narcotics simply isn't enough. They are fighting a losing battle unless the young people of America are convinced that drug abuse can ruin their lives.

Too Much Pay?

Following editorial is from the St. Louis Globe-Democrat:

The first impulse on learning of hefty pay hikes for many top U.S. executives, including those in the still shaky auto industry, is to condemn these increases as crass, greedy and unwarranted.

When one hears that General Motors Corp. Chairman Roger B. Smith became the first official in GM history to earn more than $1 million a year, it appears he is grossly overpaid. But, reading on, you discover that Smith's salary of $1,058,000 actually is worth far less than the $925,000 that GM Chairman Frederic Donner received in 1965.

On the other hand, there is the care of Ford Chairman Philip Caldwell, who reportedly took in $1.4 million in salary and bonuses in 1983, compared to $445,833 in 1982. That seems a little steep.

Nor are the big executive pay increases limited to just the top executives. At GM, the company paid 5,807 executives bonuses that averaged $31,289.

These large executive pay and bonus hikes could cause both Ford and GM a big headache when talks begin in July with the United Auto Workers union on a new wage contract.

UAW President Owen Bieber made this clear when he told Time magazine, "If these executives who are providing so well for themselves think for one minute that they can convince workers to do without an up-front raise this summer, they better think again."

What really makes employees and stockholders sizzle is when their top officers pay themselves handsomely even when the company is losing money or profits are dropping. In 1982, for example, Time reports that the salary of Mobil Oil Corp. Chairman Rawleigh Warner Jr. increased nearly 36 per cent, to $1.4 million, even though Mobil's earnings fell.

But if a chief executive is a star performer for a large company, shouldn't he be worth as much as a TV anchorman, or a professional baseball, football of basketball player?

For example, Apple Computer directors are happy to have paid John Sculley $1.8 million last year in his first seven months as president because he reorganized the company's product line and successfully directed the marketing of two new computers. The chairman of Apple, Steven Jobs, says of Sculley, "He's a bargain at the price."

People generally are paid what they're worth. Although it does seem a little strange that NBC anchorman Tom Brokaw, who makes a reported $2.2 million a year, is paid almost three times as much as his boss, RCA Chairman Thornton Bradshaw.

Wisconsin Is Right

Following editorial is from the Duluth News-Tribune and Herald:

We agree with the state of Wisconsin: Our federal government should force the Twin Cities to stop defiling the Mississippi River.

The sewer systems serving those communities are from an era when storm sewers and sanitary sewers were one and the same. Thus, when rains or winter runoff push the cities' systems to their limits, raw sewage is allowed to run into the river; that happens on the average of about one day in three and allows an estimated 4.6 billion gallons of raw sewage per yard to flow into the Mississippi.

Wisconsin, whose western border is, in part, the Mississippi, wants the feds to amend the Minnesota permits to require the three communities to devise a comprehensive plan to end this sewage discharge. Our state pollution officials estimate implementing such a plan could cost as much as $500 million.

Now that is a lot of money. But the Mississippi is a lot of water resources, not only to the cities of Minnesota and Wisconsin, but also to people all along its course through America's heartland.

Borrowed Nonsense:

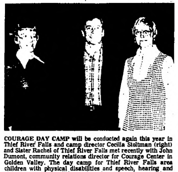
Two men were talking about their wives. "You know," the first confided, "my wife tells me that every night she dreams that she married a millionaire."

"You're lucky," said the second. "My wife thinks she did every time she goes shopping."

ACTIVITY outside the classroom by cosmetology students at the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute is encouraged by the instructional staff. Richard Lucca of International Falls and Laurie Benson of East Grand Forks (above) recently presented an educational program on employment opportunities in cosmetology to 33 students at Lincoln high school. Mrs. Dolly Hallstrom conducted the program with coordination between the AVTI and high school provided by Tom Przybylski.



COURAGE DAY CAMP will be conducted again this year in Thief River Falls and camp director Cecilia Stoltman (right) and Sister Rachel of Thief River Falls met recently with John Dumont, community relations director for Courage Center in Golden Valley. The day camp for Thief River Falls area children with physical disabilities and speech, hearing and vision impairments will be conducted June 6-8 and 11-13 at Hartz park and the national guard armory. For information about the day camp contact Stoltman at 681-5393.

U.S. Senator Rudy Boschwitz reports to Minnesota

To some people, it's fingernails down a blackboard, to others its cracking knuckles, or a drippy faucet. But for me, the ultimate toothgrind is non-dairy coffee whitener! But before the non-dairy coffee whitener lobbyist storms my office (I'm sure there is one) let me explain.

I was driving through central Minnesota recently, the heart of Minnesota's dairy belt, when I stopped for lunch at a local cafe. It was really a nice place. Great food, friendly people. But when I asked for cream for my coffee, I could get nothing but non-dairy whitener.

Now I have nothing personal against non-dairy whitener. For the few people who might prefer it, it's probably OK to have the non-dairy stuff around. But to not even have a dairy product available seems inexcusable. The dairy industry was the mainstay of this particular town's economy and was far and away the most important agricultural enterprise of the area.

My first response was "C'mon cafe owner, where are your loyalties?"

But it should, more appropriately, have been "C'mon dairy farmer! Where are your sensibilities?"

The message here of course goes much deeper than just getting cream for my coffee in a cafe. We need to take seriously the tremendous opportunities for promotion of dairy, and the urgency of taking advantage of them on the federal level and, more importantly, on the local level.

Most dairy farmers can tell you about the 36-member Dairy Promotion Board which will administer the $130 million advertising effort, financed by a 15-cent per-hundredweight checkoff of dairy checks.

If the Board stays on its toes and does its homework, this new and ambitious program may well succeed and have lasting benefits for the whole dairy industry. But it wouldn't be fair, nor would we reach our full potential on the demand side, if we expected the new National Dairy Board (and the existing state and regional boards) to do the whole job.

The rest of the answer is found closer to home: Every dairy farmer has to take the responsibility on himself to ensure that dairy products are readily available and well received by consumers in his local community. Remember if everybody just drank two more glasses of milk per week, there would soon be no dairy surplus.

Here are some examples of dairy farmers who have been making an effort.

— The Benton County dairy farmers annually challenge the staff of WJON radio to a basketball game. The game has drawn over 800 people, including many who live in town. The admission charge of $1 for adults and 50-cents for children includes an ice cream cone for everyone. Referees receive an ADA cap, ADA shirt, and one gallon of ice cream. Dairy princesses serve as cheerleaders. Any net income from the event is donated to the FFA. But more important than the donation is the fact that each year it reminds people of the importance of dairy to their area.

— Meeker County dairymen teamed up with area restaurants for a two-week promotion offering a free refill with a purchase of milk. The restaurants were provided with promotional material to display. Local restaurants say the effort increased their milk sales by 25 per cent.

— Each fall the Stearns County ADA sponsors a series of drawings and contests on radio station KASM. The prizes are dairy product certificates to be redeemed at local supermarkets for one pound packages of cheese and butter. Although the county ADA buys some air time, the promotion generates so much interest that a lot of free air time and publicity results.

— The Winona County ADA has built a "Little Red Barn" on wheels that is moved around the county so that it is present for any local celebration. The barn opens up on both sides so that ice cream, cheese, and milk can be sold (usually at cost). It receives a lot of recognition throughout the county at events held during the spring, summer and fall.

With such a great need to sell more milk and with so many opportunities available in schools, stores, and restaurants around the country, each farmer is in an excellent position to help alleviate a nationwide problem by working within his own community. I encourage each of you to become active in your local dairy promotion group. If there is no milk machine in your local school, maybe you should put one there. If you can't get real whipped cream on your pie down at the cafe, maybe you can persuade the owner to promote real dairy products (and while you're at it get him to supply real cream for the coffee.)

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

Thief River Falls can be very proud of the high school bands that performed in concert May 22 at the high school. Their performance was truly professional.

Doug Engstrom is to be commended for his dedication to the students and music. The community will have another opportunity to hear this excellent band on June 21 at Art in the Park.

MANUAL LABOR was not completely eliminated by a prototype garbage separator demonstrated by the Lundell Manufacturing Co. in Cherokee, IA. on Tuesday for a group of government officials and Thief River Falls businessmen. As paper and plastic products traveled down the final conveyor belt on their way to being densified into a solid fuel source, sorters checked to make sure that no metals or other undesirable objects had escaped the separation process. If plans of the Nordhagen family become a reality and the equipment is purchased for establishment of a recycling business, 28 to 33 jobs are expected to be created in Thief River Falls.

Sheep Days Set For Greenbush On June 6, 7, 8

Greenbush Sheep Days 46th annual observance has been scheduled for three days, with activities starting at 9 a.m. Wednesday, June 6, with a two-day sheep shearing school, and concluding with the annual banquet at 7 p.m. Friday, June 8.

Sheep shearing classes are open to all interested individuals. Cost for the classes is $10. Registrations should be sent to the Roseau county extension office, 308 Center Street West, Roseau, MN 56751.

Activities on Thursday, June 7, will include 4-H, FFA and adult judging contests starting at 8:30 a.m. with judging of the youth sheep show, flocks and pens of lambs.

On Friday, a free dinner will be served on Main Street, starting at 11:30 a.m. Minnesota Sheep Producers Association will hold their annual meeting at 1 p.m. in the American Legion club, with Dean Benker, manager of the East Central sheep project at Big Lake, as guest speaker. An update on wolf depredation of livestock in Northwestern Minnesota will also be given by Steven H. Fritts, wildlife research biologist with the North Central experiment station in Grand Rapids.

Minnesota state junior sheep shearing contest will be held in the Sheep Palace starting at 2:30 p.m. and will be followed by the senior sheep shearing contest.

Annual banquet will begin at 7 p.m. at the Greenlin supper club, with Dr. Stanley Sahlstrom, provost of University of Minnesota Crookston, as guest speaker.

Consolidated Conservation Taxes Reduced

State Senator LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer and Rep. Jim Tunheim of Kennedy noted that a special provision included in the 1984 tax bill which was passed into law by the legislature this past session will provide four counties in the region with a major tax deduction in lieu of taxes on area land.

"The counties of Beltrami, Lake-of-the-Woods, Marshall and Roseau in our senate district will all share in an estimated $420,741 in consolidated conservation land tax deductions," Sen. Stumpf explained. He noted that these deductions are in addition to all other public land tax deductions they receive.

With the three other counties eligible for this tax break (Aitkin, Koochiching and Mahnomen) in 1983, these seven counties will share in the following additional deductions in successive years: $100,000 (1984); $200,000 (1985); $300,000 (1986); and $400,000 (1987).

"I was pleased to see our area given the consideration it deserves for its consolidated conservation efforts, and I am glad this consideration by the state will continue to be given in the tax seasons to come," Stumpf added.

RLF Church Sets Prophecy Film Series

Bethany Lutheran of Red Lake Falls is sponsoring a prophecy film series June 3, 4, 5 and 6 at 7:30 p.m.

The series is based upon Biblical prophecy about the events leading up to the end of the world as we know it and depicts what might happen in the lives of people going through different periods up to the return of Jesus Christ.

A nursery will be provided and coffee served after each showing. Everyone is welcome.

Job Training For This Area Gets $58,500

The governor's job training council has allocated $408,034 for continued operation of 11 employment and job-training projects for older workers, Commissioner Barbara Beerhalter of the Minnesota Department of Economic Security announced today.

Included is $58,500 for Kittson, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau counties.

The additional funding will enable these programs to continue operations between July 1 and Dec. 31, 1984. In January 1984 the council allocated $535,000 to start up the projects.

The additional funds were allocated to Minnesota by the U.S. department of labor under the job training partnership act (JTPA) as part of a total commitment of $815,356 for the 12-month period beginning July 1, 1984. Older workers are defined as those who are 55 years of age and older.

Day On Campus Registry Must Be In May 31

"A Day for You and Me" is the theme of a conference set for Thursday, June 7 on the University of Minnesota-Crookston campus, sponsored by the agricultural extension service and UMC.

Understanding self and others will be addressed through workshops and speakers throughout the day. Open to all adults, the conference, will look at concerns that Minnesotans often share about health, family relationships, career choices, credit ratings, wardrobe planning and horticulture. Each participant may select three workshops to attend.

Seminar leader Dr. Dean D. Nelson of Fargo, N.D. will present the "personal profile system" to all day on campus participants. This seminar is intended to increase productivity in organizations by helping individuals function as a team. Dr. Nelson will use a combination of lecture and small group discussions to help participants identify primary styles of behavior by the use of the personal profile system.

Fee for the one-day conference is $10 which includes lunch and materials. Advance registration is required and must be received in the East Polk county extension office in McIntosh by May 31.

For further information, contact your local county extension office for a registration form.

Peter Eriksson Earns Degree

Peter Eriksson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Algot Eriksson, Thief River Falls, graduated from Bethel college in St. Paul on May 20 with a bachelor of arts degree in biology. Over 410 B.A. and 13 A.A. degrees were conferred during commencement exercises, the most in Bethel's 36-year history as a four-year college.

Social Security Men Here Tues.

Ted Hoversten and Neil Rowe, field representatives of the Grand Forks social security office will be in Thief River Falls at the city auditorium on Tuesday from 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m.

New Rules On Loans Affect Area Farmers

Farmers in Pennington county who suffered 1983 crop losses because of natural disaster may now apply for Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) emergency loans, State Director Russ Bjorhus said recently.

Pennington county became eligible under new legislation which provides that counties bordering on those which have been named eligible for disaster assistance are also eligible for such assistance.

Legislation also extends to eight months (up from six months), the time allowed to file loan applications. For Pennington county farmers, this means the deadline for application is October 31.

Bjorhus said farmers who suffered a qualifying loss from drought or other weather-related disasters, and are unable to get credit elsewhere, may apply for reduced-interest loans to cover up to 80 per cent of their losses up to $500,000. Loans carry a five per cent interest rate for the first $100,000, and eight per cent interest on funds over $100,000. For those able to get credit elsewhere but who choose to apply for FmHA loans, the interest rate is 13.75 per cent.

Farmers who think they are eligible may apply for assistance at the FmHA county office, North Dale Street; P.O. Box 486, Thief River Falls, MN. 56701.

Bjorhus urged farmers to file their applications as early as possible to speed processing and check delivery.

Satesdal Sets Memorial Day Service Sunday

Annual Memorial Day service was scheduled to be held at the Satesdal church at 2 p.m. Sunday, May 27, with a program featuring musical numbers by former members and their families, and guest speaker Randy Moe.

Moe attends the Association of Free Lutheran theological seminary in Minneapolis.

Lunch was also planned to accompany the public services.

City Offices Closed Monday

All offices in the Thief River Falls city auditorium are scheduled to be closed today (Monday) in observance of the Memorial Day holiday. There will also be no garbage pick-up by the city sanitation department today.

Johnston To Enter College

Brian Scott Johnston of Thief River Falls, has announced his decision to enroll at Concordia college in Moorhead.

Johnston, a 1984 Lincoln graduate, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Johnston.

Jobs For Local Youths Sought By Mini Office

Minnesota Job Service office at Thief River Falls will again be sponsoring mini-employment offices, staffed by local students, from Monday, June 4 until August 10. Offices will be located in Red Lake Falls, Warren, Hallock, Warroad, Roseau and Greenbush.

This is the eighth summer that Job Service has operated these offices, whose primary purpose is to assist youths (age 14 to 21) seeking full- or part-time summer employment. Assistance is sought in soliciting job orders from local merchants, private households, farmers, etc. Cooperation from employers in each location is essential in making these offices useful in placing area youths. This service is free to both job seekers and employers.

Local students hired to work at the sites include: Kevin Lundeen at Ecksteins in Red Lake Falls; Patti O'Keefe and Andrea Korynta at Marshall county courthouse in Warren; Kimbel Westerson at Kittson county courthouse in Hallock; Lisa Heinen at Warroad high school; Denise Dalhum and Dale Carlson at city auditorium in Roseau; and Jason Branden at Greenbush high school.

Warroad, Roseau and Greenbush offices will be supervised by Dick Staydohr, an instructor at Warroad high school. Red Lake Falls, Warren and Hallock offices will be supervised by Jeff Gustafson. Any questions concerning operation of the offices may be directed to Gustafson at 218-681-1100.

Bill Herzog Well-Known Official

Former Thief River Falls football coach Bill Herzog, one of the best-known athletic officials in Minnesota, was the subject of this recent feature article in the Lake Region Echo at Alexandria, written by Kerry Nelson.

Herzog served as an assistant coach here under Joe Mrkonich during the 1961 and 1962 seasons before becoming the Prowlers' head football coach for the 1963, 1964 and 1965 seasons. He was succeeded here by Jim Sims in 1966.

Nelson's article, which deals with Herzog's basketball officiating, including his work as a Big Ten referee, is as follows:

Bill Herzog of Stillwater set a goal for himself 15 years ago. Quite simply, the former Alexandria High School graduate wanted to referee Big Ten Basketball games.

That goal became a reality in 1977 and the 49-year-old Herzog, who is a physical education instructor at Stillwater, has been a familiar face to Big Ten Basketball and upper midwest basketball ever since.

During a phone interview from his home in Stillwater, Herzog spoke of his early years in the Miltona area and his career as a basketball official.

Bill graduated from Alexandria High School in 1953 after concluding a successful athletic career there.

An an offensive and defensive end on the Cardinal football team, Bill was all conference during his junior and senior years.

He also played three years on a Cardinal baseball team that won the conference title during his senior year.

It was in high school that Bill got his first taste of refereeing basketball, as he explained.

"When I went to high school we used to play basketball during the noon hour. I was a pretty good sized person (he is now 6'1", 200 lbs.), at that time and I was picked to be referee, I believe, because of my size. The other players felt that I wouldn't be intimidated as a referee," he said.

Following high school, Bill earned a masters degree in physical education at the University of Minnesota. There, he played two years on the Gopher football team and also refereed in intramural basketball games.

Following graduation, Bill and his wife, Carole, moved to Thief River Falls, where Bill would have his first teaching job and a chance to referee more basketball games.

"A good friend of mine who was a teacher in Thief River Falls at the time told me that he was a referee and that he needed a partner," Bill explained. "I accepted, and the job of refereeing has mushroomed ever since."

Bill said that his first high school game as a referee took place in 1961. The game was between Badger and Greenbush, two schools in northwestern Minnesota. Was he nervous for his debut?

"I've never felt nervous about a basketball game," Bill said. "I've always had confidence in my abilities."

Confidence in himself appears to be one of Herzog's strongest assets, but hard work and a certain amount of luck, as he explained, have allowed him to reach his goals.

"I've been lucky in the sense that I have had a very understanding wife," Bill said proudly. "It isn't every wife that would allow her husband to be away so much. She has also been an outstanding mother to our three kids, who I am very proud of," he concluded.

Time away, for a referee, can be considerable during the season. Bill speaks highly of Stillwater High School, where he has taught for 17 years, and the understanding the school has for his schedule

"I'm extremely fortunate to be employed by the Stillwater school district. I think they are proud of my status as a referee and, therefore, will allow me to miss school occasionally for refereeing.

"But I do extra things for the school district to make up for that time off," he added.

Bill's status as a referee is impressive indeed. He is one of two registered basketball referees (the other man is from Waverly, Iowa) in a five state area that referee Big Ten Basketball.

This highly regarded pair represent two of 10-11-000 registered referees in the states of Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, North Dakota and South Dakota.

Bill's career as a Big Ten referee began in 1977 when he officiated a game between two independents, which is common, he says, for referees new to the Big Ten scene.

"Marquette was playing in that game and it was Hank Raymond's first game as head coach for Marquette," Bill explained. "I worked the game with Charlie Fouty who was considered the top college referee in the country at that time."

From there, Bill has gone on to officiate hundreds of NCAA Division 1, small college and state high school basketball tournament games. His biggest thrill?

"Every time I step onto the floor it is a thrill for me," Bill asserted.

There have been several memorable games for this talented referee. Among others, he listed the following key games that he has officiated:

+ Last year's victory by Indiana over Minnesota when Minnesota was in a must win situation.

+ Larry Brown's first game as coach at UCLA when the Bruins played at Notre Dame.

+ This year's first place battle between Purdue and Illinois, which was nationally televised.

"All of the Big Ten Games are memorable for me," Bill added. It is fun to be a part of that competition."

Bill is thankful for the many coaches, players and fellow officials that he has known and worked with. He said that many of them have such high standards and are quality people off the court as well.

"Ray Meyer (De Paul coach who recently retired) stands out in my mind when you talk about coaches," Bill said fondly. "He never missed an

PLAYING AT No. 1 doubles with teammate Dan Imgrund, Thief River Falls sophomore Al Erickson returned his shot against Bemidji's Kyle Bjella and Kevin Kosobud during the quarterfinals of the 1984 Sub-Section 8 high school tennis tournament played in Thief River Falls Wednesday. Erickson and Imgrund won the match 6-2, 6-2 but lost in the semifinals to Kevin Lindstrom and Brent Melsa of Crookston 6-3, 3-6, 6-2. Top two finishers in both singles and doubles play earned berths in the individual portion of the Section 8 tournament in Brainerd Wednesday.

Prowlers Host Park Rapids In North Sub-Region 8AA Baseball

Thief River Falls will host Park Rapids Tuesday at 4:30 p.m. in an opening round game of the 1984 North Sub-Region 8AA high school baseball tournament at the fairgrounds diamond.

Coaches seeded the six teams, giving the No. 1 spot to Moorhead; No. 2 — Bemidji; No. 3 — Thief River Falls; No. 4 — Fergus Falls; No. 5 — Detroit Lakes; and No. 6 — Park Rapids.

Moorhead and Bemidji received first round byes Tuesday. In addition to No. 6 Park Rapids at No. 3 Thief River Falls Tomorrow, No. 5 Detroit Lakes will be at No. 4 Fergus Falls in another 4:30 p.m. match-up.

Semifinals and finals will be played Thursday at Mattson Field in Moorhead.

In the semifinals, Moorhead will play the Detroit Lakes-Fergus Falls winner at 10 a.m. with Bemidji taking on the Thief River Falls-Park Rapids winner at 12-noon.

Championship game will be played at 3 that afternoon.

Thief River Falls finished its 1984 regular season with an 8-6 record. The Prowlers started off 7-1, but then hit a five-game losing skid before finishing last Monday with an 11-1 victory over Bagley. The Prowlers and Panthers have not met this spring.

In starting 7-1, Thief River Falls beat Red Lake Falls 4-3, Moorhead 4-2, Middle River-Marshall County Central 10-0, Crookston 9-4 and 12-6, and Ada 7-4 and 22-11. The Prowlers lost a 5-4 eight-inning game to Bemidji during that stretch.

But in losing five straight, Thief River Falls fell to Moorhead 4-0 and Minot, N.D. 11-4 during the four-team Moorhead Invitational, lost another one-run game to Bemidji 6-5, suffered a 3-0 shutout at the hands of Roseau and dropped a 5-3 decision to Lake of the Woods.

Moorhead and Bemidji were the only North Sub-Region 8AA foes the Prowlers faced this spring, splitting a two-game series with the Spuds and losing those two one-run games with the Lumberjacks. However, Thief River Falls' strong showing against the tournament's top two seeded teams apparently convinced voters the Prowlers were the best of the rest, and for that they'll get a home field post-season game for the first time since 1979.

"I was pleasantly surprised," said Thief River Falls coach Charlie Cornell when he learned of the seeding positions. "We're particularly happy to be playing at home," he added.

Thief River Falls will be trying to snap a string of three consecutive years of first round post-season tournament elimination Tuesday, and they'll be facing an unfamiliar opponent. The Prowlers and Panthers have met just three times in history — in 1968 when Thief River Falls beat Park Rapids 7-0 in Region 8 semifinal game; in 1977 when Thief River Falls out-scored Park Rapids 11-7 in the Moorhead Invitational third place game; and in 1978 when Thief River Falls edged Park Rapids 8-6 in the Moorhead Invitational semifinals.

Cornell admits he has very little in the way of a scouting report on the Panthers, who lost a recent doubleheader at the hands of Fergus Falls 18-1 and 16-4 as the Otters extended their winning streak to seven games. Park Rapids lost earlier North Sub-Region 8AA-counting games to Bemidji 13-4 and Detroit Lakes 9-3.

In another recent North Sub-Region 8AA match-up, Moorhead's Jamie Peterson hit a two-out, bases-loaded single on a 3-2 pitch in the bottom of the seventh inning to snap a 7-7 tie and give Moorhead an 8-7 victory over Detroit Lakes, handing the Lakers their third one-run defeat in their last four games.

Cornell was uncertain on his starting pitching assignment for Tuesday, with senior Brian Johnston of juniors Tim Nyland and Ryan Drees all possibilities. Rest of the line-up will likely feature Gary Corenll at first base, Bob Huot at second, Tim Bottem at shortstop, a Joe Blankenfeld at third base and Ryan Bakke catching. The outfield would find Rick Spong in center, flanked by Todd Ortloff and either Drees or Johnston, who could also be utilized as a designated hitter.

Unlike regular high school baseball games, which are open to the public free of charge, MSHSL tournament plays calls for an admission price, which will be $3 for adults and $1 for students.

TEAMMED WITH Al Erickson at No. 1 doubles, Thief River Falls junior Dan Imgrund kept his eye on the ball during a quarterfinal match against Kyle Bjella and Kevin Kosobud of Bemidji in the individual portion of the 1984 Sub-Section 8 high school tennis tournament played in Thief River Falls Wednesday. The two Prowlers won the match 6-2, 6-2. Team portion of the tournament was played here two days earlier.

TRF Girls Compete In Region 8AA Golf

Cold Spring Rocori girls won the 1984 Region 8AA high school golf meet Friday at Little Falls.

Rocori won team honors with a four-player 367, followed by Alexandria at 370, Fergus Falls 392, Little Falls 408, Park Rapids 420, Thief River Falls 427, Melrose 435, Detroit Lakes 436 and Moorhead 442.

Beth Schissel of Park Rapids was meet medalist with an 84 and Jody Krafta of Alexandria was runner-up with an 85. Denise Dibrito and Ann Miller of Rocori, plus Jenny Hyslop of Fergus Falls, shared third place honors at 88.

Junior Michelle Olson led the Prowlers with a 97, while senior Kathy Reuter shot a 101, senior Karin Wennberg 111, senior Missy Bondy 118, senior Kirsten Pollick 130 and junior Jenny Spencer 138.

While the Thief River Falls girls completed their season Friday, the Thief River Falls boys await their shot at Region 8AA competition Tuesday at Brainerd. The Prowlers just last Tuesday won the Brainerd Invitational, which featured all Region 8AA golf-playing schools on the same Brainerd course being used for the Region 8AA meet.

Spuds Win Two Track Trophies

Moorhead boys and girls teams were both winners Thursday in the 1984 North Sub-Region 8AA high school track meet at Bemidji.

It was an easy victory for the Moorhead girls, who collected 156 1-3 points, followed by Detroit Lakes with 97 1-3, Fergus Falls 75 1-3, Bemidji 59, Park Rapids 57 and Thief River Falls 45.

Things were a lot closer for the Moorhead boys, though, who finished with 125½ points by winning the final race of the day, followed closely by Park Rapids with 122, Detroit Lakes 99, Bemidji 97, Fergus Falls 59½ and Thief River Falls 21.

It was the Spuds' fifth straight North Sub-Region 8AA boys' title and their third straight for the girls.

Individually, the top eight finishers in each event, plus the top four relay teams, earned berths in the 1984 Region 8AA meet, where they'll join the South Sub-Region 8AA qualifiers Saturday, June 2, on the Irv Christianson track at Concordia College in Morhead. The South Sub-Region 8AA meet, featuring Brainerd, Sauk Rapids, St. Cloud Apollo, St. Cloud Tech, Rocori, Melrose, Alexandria and Little Falls, was scheduled to be held Saturday, May 26.

Thirteen Thief River Falls girls and seven boys earned Region 8AA positions on Thursday.

Thief River Falls girls failed to win an event, but sophomore Michelle Puetz was a close second in the 400 meters where she ran 1:01.1 and was just edged at the finish line by Michelle Mallow of Detroit Lakes, who ran a 60.86.

And the Prowlers had a second place finish in the 3200 meter relay were freshman Cindy Kruta, junior Georgia Howard, senior Paula Wilkens and eighth grader Peggy Cruz ran a 10:30.6.

"We did well," reported Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer. "We had some good times. We qualified who I thought we would for region. I don't know how we could have done any better."

Most impressive effort by the Prowlers, pointed out Schafer, was a close third place finish by the 800 meter relay team of junior Tricia Armstrong, freshman Vikki Weigand, freshman Bobbi Thompson and Puetz as they ran their season-best 1:50.8.

Tim Olson, coach of the Thief River Falls boys, said the Prowlers had both some good and some not-so-good showings Thursday. Seniors Randy Swenson and Jeff Langan both dropped their times in the 300-meter intermediate hurdles and junior Scott Fowlers had a time improvement in the 400 meters.

But he was disappointed in the fact that the Prowlers failed to advance a single relay team into the Region 8AA meet.

"There were some places where our times went down," explained Olson, "but the relays were definitely disappointing."

Swenson had a pair of third place finishes for the day for the best Thief River Falls showing as he ran a strong 40.6 in the 300 intermediates, but struggled a bit with a 58.0 in the 110 highs.

Top Seed Players Win In Sub-Section Tennis Meet

Top two seeds in both singles and doubles lived up to their pre-meet billing Wednesday in the individual portion of the 1984 Sub-Section 8 high school tennis tournament played in Thief River Falls.

No. 1-seeded Del Nelson of East Grand Forks handled No. 2-seeded Kevin Gish of Mahnomen 6-2, 6-3 in the singles finals, while No. 1-seeded Jay and Jeff Claassen defeated No. 2-seeded Kevin Lindstrom and Brent Melsa 6-4, 6-4 in an all-Crookston doubles finals.

Top two finishers in both singles and doubles were awarded berths in the 1984 Section 8 tournament Wednesday at Brainerd.

Two days earlier, Crookston won the team portion of the Sub-Section 8 tournament here, beating East Grand Forks 4-1 in the finals of the five-team affair. The Pirates will compete in the Section 8 semifinals Tuesday at Brainerd.

Thief River Falls' best showing Wednesday was by junior Dan Imgrund and sophomore Al Erickson, who reached the semifinals in doubles play. Seeded No. 3, they received a first round bye, then beat No. 6-seeded Kyle Bjella and Kevin Kosobud of Bemidji 6-2, 6-2 before losing to Lindstrom and Melsa in the Section 8 tournament-qualifying semifinals 6-3, 3-6, 6-2.

Sophomore Dave Winjum and freshman Trent Lemer formed Thief River Falls' second doubles entry. They were seeded No. 8 and No. 9-seeded Scott Roy and John Large of Mahnomen 6-4, 7-6 in the first round, with a 7-1 tie-breaker victory in the second set. But they were eliminated in the quarterfinals by Jay and Jeff Claassen 6-0, 6-0.

In singles, Thief River Falls junior Jeff Vanyo was seeded No. 8 and he beat No. 9-seeded Chad Svendg of Mahnomen 6-2, 7-5 in the first round before losing to Nelson 6-1, 6-0 in the quarterfinals.

Second Thief River Falls singles entry was freshman Chad Konickson, who was seeded No. 10, and he lost to No. 7-seeded Sean Benson of Crookston 6-1, 6-2 in the first round.

Singles Results

First round — Jeff Vanyo (TRF) def. Chad Svendg (Mahnomen) 6-2, 7-5; Sean Benson (Crookston) def. Chad Konickson (TRF) 6-1, 6-2.

Quarterfinals — Del Nelson (EGF) def. Vanyo 6-1, 6-0; Will Schnabel (Crookston) def. Andy Kittleson (Bemidji) 6-2, 3-6, 6-2; Todd Martin (EGF) def. Derin McDonald (Bemidji) 6-2, 7-6; Kevin Gish (Mahnomen) def. Benson 6-0, 6-2.

Semifinals — Nelson def. Schnabel 6-2, 6-2; Gish def. Martin 6-3, 5-7, 7-5.

Finals — Nelson def. Gish 6-2, 6-3.

Doubles Results

First round — Dave Winjum-Trent Lemer (TRF) def. Scott Roy-John Large (Mahnomen) 6-4, 7-6; Eric Melbye-Robert Sakkinen (EGF) def. Ron Hegg-Andy Kuhn (Mahnomen) 3-6, 6-2, 6-3.

Quarterfinals — Jay Claassen-Jeff Claassen (Crookston) def. Winjum-Lemer 6-0, 6-0; Kyle Bucher-Jason Schuette (Bemidji) def. Kevin Theroux-John Tangen (EGF) 6-2, 6-3; Al Erickson-Dan Imgrund (TRF) def. Kyle Bjella-Kevin Kosobud (Bemidji) 6-2, 6-2; Kevin Lindstrom-Brent Melsa (Crookston) def. Melbye-Sakkinen 6-2, 6-0.

Semifinals — Claassen-Claassen def. Bucher-Schuette 6-2, 6-1; Lindstrom-Melsa def. Erickson-Imgrund 6-3, 3-6, 6-2.

Finals — Claassen-Claassen def. Lindstrom-Melsa 6-4, 6-4.

opportunity to extend a friendly handshake or engage in conversation. Basketball will miss him next year."

He also listed Minnesota's Jim Dutcher and Michigan State's Jud Heathcote as coaches he deeply respects.

During his years of officiating Bill has seen his share of outstanding players too.

He cited local Minnesota players Randy Breuer and Kevin McHale as outstanding players in college. Other Big Ten players noted by Bill were Magic Johnson (Michigan State), Isiah Thomas (Indiana), Ronnie Lester (Iowa), and Steve Alford (Indiana). All but Alford, who will be a sophomore, play in the National Basketball Association (NBA).

"I would also have to add Mark Aguirre (who played at De Paul and currently plays in the NBA) to that list," Bill said. "He was sensational in college. A few times you had to stand back, scratch your head, and ask, did he really do that?"

With all the enjoyment Bill has as a referee, he can only point to one dislike for the job.

"The one real dislike I have for being a referee is the ignorant fan. He is the guy who comes to the game knowing all the answers," Bill explained.

Bill's work as a referee takes him to arenas in cities throughout the United States, two of which he listed as his favorites.

My favorite place is probably Grand Forks, North Dakota (UND). I used to coach football at nearby Thief River Falls so I know a few people when I go to Grand Forks, he said.

In the Big Ten, Bill cited Mackey Arena in West Lafayette, Indiana, as his favorite arena because "the background colors, which are dark, make it easy to differentiate the players from the coaches."

There is one goal that Bill has not yet reached for himself. That is to work the Final Four of the NCAA Basketball Tournament.

"I want to work that final four," he said firmly. "That is the goal of all of us."

If his pattern continues, Bill Herzog will meet that goal.

WITH THE AID of instructors Helen Anderson (left) and Jody Bendickson, this youngster completed her flip as participants in the Thief River Falls Area Vocational-Technical Institute (AVTI) sponsored community education gymnastics program put on a season-ending performance for their parents and friends at the Knox elementary school gym. Some 65 boys and girls ages 3-8 participated in the eight-week program. Also serving as instructors were Gloria Kildahl, Tammy Gunderson and Rochelle Sandstrom.

CHILDREN FORMED pyramids to close out the program as participants in a gymnastics program performed in front of an audience to finish an eight-week session of instructions offered through the Thief River Falls Area Vocational-Technical Institute (AVTI) community education program. The weekly sessions were held in the Knox gym under the supervision of Helen Anderson, Jody Bendickson, Gloria Kildahl, Tammy Gunderson and Rochelle Sandstrom for boys and girls ages 3 to 8. Sixty-five of them participated in the program, which was completed last week.

Prairie Public TV Has Fishing Show

Rod & Reel is a series about fish, fishing, tackle and techniques premiering on Prairie Public Television Saturday, June 2, at 5 p.m.

This program is hosted by Bill Saiff, Jr., who travels to New Brunswick, Massachusetts, Montauk, Long Island, Lake Ontario and the St. Lawrence River in quest of trout, salmon, bass, walleye, northern pike and the elusive muskie.

Viewers can count on helpful tips on different lures to use, places to fish, and how to prepare your catch for the table. In addition, the show explores some of the new electronic gadgets used in fishing today such as graph records, depth finders, downriggers, VHF radios, etc.

Rod & Reel features guest fishermen, amateur and experts, people knowledgeable about fishing and its environment.

Rod & Reel will not guarantee viewers a trophy fish, but it will certainly add to their understanding of the underwater environment, and will help the average angler attain a limit catch, say station officials.

Series features 15 half-hour programs and is produced by WNPE-WNPI Public Television in Watertown, New York.

Individual programs in the series are as follows:

Week 1 — Introduction to Rod & Reel. Bill Saiff, Jr. has as his special fishing guest, taxidermist Charlie Rawson. You will receive a quick overview of the Rod & Reel, the boat on which most of the series is taped. The location will be Henderson Harbor, New York — home base for the Rod & Reel. Bill and Charlie will be discussing tackle to be used and then will show folks how to catch brown trout and steelhead. The show concludes with a sudden appearance of a couple of white-tailed deer on the icy cliffs of Lake Ontario.

Week 2 — Atlantic Salmon. Mirimacki River of New Brunswick Canada is probably the best-known Atlantic Salmon River in the world. It's the setting for this week's edition of the Rod & Reel. Bill, along with outdoor writer Don Meisner of Fisherfinder magazine, journey to New Brunswick only to be caught in a flash flood. Watch the exciting footage as they drive through the flood in an attempt to escape before the camp is flooded out. Exciting battles with Atlantic salmon take place once the river subsides. The show is capped by Bill doing battle with a 38 inch Atlantic salmon with a fly rod.

Week 3 — Brown Trout. Sands along the shore of the eastern basin of Lake Ontario is the scene for this week's edition of the Rod & Reel. Canadian guests, Mike Russell and Dick Arnold, join Bill for a spring brown trout trip. Mike Russell is an amputee. Having lost an arm six years ago, Mike demonstrates a piece of apparatus developed so that amputees might continue to enjoy the sport of fishing. Share the thrill and excitement as Mike catches his first brown trout ever and his thoughts on being handicapped.

Week 4 — Northern Pike. Site for this edition of Rod & Reel is the picturesque Thousand Islands on the St. Lawrence River. Bill will be fishing on the Rod & Reel with Islands guide Russ Finehout and his daughter. Abundant fishing made for a unique contest between Bill and Miss Finehout.

Week 5 — Rod & Reel Journeys To Canada. Rod & Reel journeys to Canada to a picturesque place on the Rideau River known as Chaffeys Lock. Canadian guide Al Mustard comes aboard the Rod & Reel to teach Bill the art of fishing large mouth bass through the lily pads with frogs. A tasty shore dinner puts bill in dreamland and he experiences a terrible fishing nightmare.

Week 6 — Chinook "King" Salmon. Sam Burgess, tournament bass fisherman, and his wife Carol, join Bill aboard the Rod & Reel for their first experience with the chinook "king" salmon th the Black River in Dexter, New York. Carol becomes frantic, excited and is totally carried away as she battles her first king salmon.

Week 7 — Lake Trout. Rideau Ferry, Canada is the site of this edition of Rod & Reel. Canadian guide, Dan Adams, comes abroad the Rod & Reel and together with Bill they fish the depths of big Rideau Lake in search of lake trout.

Week 8 — Shark. Montauk Point, Long Island is the site of this week's Rod & Reel. Bill joins Mark Ames and Craig Gaunya of Lawrance Electronics to fish blues and maco shark from the decks of a pair of small sport fishing boats. Excitement mounts when Mark and Craig tie into two sharks at the same time.

Week 9 — Coho Salmon. Lake Ontario in August becomes alive with coho and chinook salmon. Howie Ney on his first salmon hunt and veteran sportsman, Clyde Kirk, join Bill in quest of Howie's first coho salmon.

Week 10 — Lake Trout. Canadians Jack Weese and Dave Fox join Bill aboard the Rod & Reel as they seek lake trout from the depths of Lake Ontario. Bill will instruct on the use of downriggers in conjunction with an electronic graph to catch lakers. Videographer Wink Whitney, who shoots most of the Rod & Reel programs, gets a chance to show his prowess as a fisherman.

Week 11 — Bass and Walleye. Rod & Reel returns to Canada — the Ottawa and Mississippi Rivers are fished. Big Jim McLaughlin, noted area fishing expert, and Gary Monroe, local character, join Bill in this week's edition of the Rod & Reel. The highpoint of the program is a fish handling — or mishandling — exhibition of Gary Monroe. Bass and walleye are the target fish.

Week 12 — Chinnok and Coho Salmon. Barbara Kellogg and Peter Burnash join Bill abroad the Whitewater, a Henderson Harbor guideboat operated by Capt. Hank & Lori Stanelc, in quest of chinook and coho salmon. Barb and Pete prove that novice fishermen can produce large numbers of salmon.

Week 13 — Muskie. Muskie is the one fish that constantly eludes Bill. He joins veteran muskie fisherman Big Jim McLaughlin and Jim shows Bill muskies in downtown Ottawa, Canada's national capitol. The Rod & Reel is launched in the water it was never meant to fish.

Week 14 — Small Mouth Bass. Outdoor writer Don Meisner, joins Bill on Chaumont Bay, New York to fish November bass. Minnows and jigs are used to put the bronze backs in the Rod & Reel.

Week 15 — Chinook Salmon. Black River at Dexter, New York has become one of the most famous salmon rivers in New York state with its salmon run beginning in September and lasting through December. Fred Haggerty, area pharmacist, and Bob Dennis, Cordell Tackle Rep of Fort Smith, Arkansas share the excitement of their individual salmon battles on the Black River in the concluding episode of the Rod & Reel.

Card of Thanks

We can never express adequately how we feel about the outpouring of love and service evidenced during our beloved Med's long illness and death. Thanks to our priests and Sister Caroline; all who brought Eucharist to him; doctors and hospital staff; to Darla Twomey and Myrtle Erickson of Hospice for their unlagging dedication; cancer society; Respite workers; pallbearers; many thanks for all the food brought in, the rides given, the beautiful flowers and cards, all the memorials and your understanding.

Our deepest gratitude to all who cared for him and Flora in any way, in their time of trial.

May God's peace be with you always.

The family of Med Mercil

COUNTY COURT
PROBATED DIVISION

In Re: Estate of Ray Rutz, Deceased

Notice of Informal Probate of Will and Appointment of Personal Representative and Notice to Creditors

TO ALL INTERESTED PERSONS AND CREDITORS:

Notice is hereby given, that an application for informal probate of the above named decedent's last will, dated August 27, 1977, has been filed with the Registrar herein, and the application has been granted informally probating such will. Any objections may be filed in the above named court and the same will be heard by the Court upon notice of hearing fixed for such purpose.

Notice is hereby further given that informal appointment of Callie B. INNER WORKINGS of an 80 foot long garbage separating machine were inspected by Don Kyser, an engineer with the Minnesota pollution control agency, and Dave Strong of Thief River Falls Jobs Inc. during a demonstration in Cherokee, IA. on Tuesday. Purchase of the machinery is being considered for establishment of a recycling business in Thief River Falls by the Nordhagen family. As manager of Forsbergs Inc., Strong has some experience with separating equipment, and said he was generally impressed with the quality of the prototype machine developed by the Lundell Manufacturing Co., adding that the 10 year guarantee offered was practically unheard of in the industry.

SKILLS JUDGING in the personal services class taught by Diane Rothschadl at the Northwest vocational center was conducted by these senior students in the cosmetology program at the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute recently. The students spent a day and a half with the center school program, judging hair and nail care and awarding ribbons for first, second and third places. Left to right are Adelle Hegg, Thief River Falls; Renee Ehlers, Warroad; Barb Helley, Plummer; and Laurie Benson, East Grand Forks. Not pictured are Carol Narlock of Warren and Darlene Ignaszewski of Stephen. The students were impressed with work by the high school age students, particularly in braiding and in professional attitude. Maxine Mottram, director of the cosmetology program at the AVTI, said she greatly appreciates the opportunity for AVTI students to work outside the school walls. Rothschadl also expressed appreciation to the AVTI cosmetology instructors and students for their participation and assistance.

LOG REPLACEMENT along the base of several buildings at the Pennington county historical society's pioneer village was accomplished this spring. Pictured above is the Noper log house which was moved to the village about six years ago. A $1,500 grant from the L.B. Hartz foundation was the source of funds to have the replacement and repair work done by Joe Risser of Angle Inlet and Lee Westlund of Walker. Risser has worked with log house construction for 42 years. Other repairs being done this spring include shingling of the Solem and Sons of Norway log houses. Donations to the society include $50 from the retired educators association to repair windows in the school house, $100 from the Soo Line railroad for paint for the depot, and $200 from Northwestern Bell to paint the telephone house formerly owned by Harry Hendrickson. Other large projects for which funds are needed include roof repair on the museum and painting of the church. The village and museum will open June 1 with tours daily at 1, 3, and 5 p.m. The village is closed Saturdays but open Sundays at 2 p.m. Admission is $1 for adults, 50 cents for children, with children under 12 and accompanied by parents admitted free of charge.

NW Vocational Students Build Engine Of Future

Thirty-one students of Allen Aaseby in the metals department at Northwest vocational center in Thief River Falls recently completed a project in which they each built an engine that is now considered to be one of the most promising alternative automobile engines for the future.

In undertaking the project, the students learned not only machine shop skills necessary to work in that vocation, but mechanical principles and pride of workmanship. They also gained a unique conversation piece which would be the envy of any tinkerer in the country.

Project was originally suggested by Richard Kotschevar, director of the vocational center, after reading a book about the revival of interest in the Stirling engine. They were advised on the project by members of the Agassiz Car and Engine Club, which also sponsored a competition amongst the students and served as judges of their workmanship. Cash prizes were put up by the club as an added incentive for the students.

Invented in 1816 by Rev. Robert Stirling, who later became known as the father of the Church of Scotland, this remarkable engine is capable of producing mechanical power from any source of heat, including combustion of any type of fuel or completely non-polluting solar energy.

Unlike gasoline, diesel and jet engines, a Stirling engine obtains its heat from outside the working cylinders, which is one of the main reasons for widespread current interest. An internal combustion engine is generally rather particular about its fuel. Although gasoline engines can be thought of as compact, self-contained powerpacks, some people note that they will not run without an oil refinery attached.

Stirling engines run on the principle that temperature differences at each end of a cylinder create pressure differences and will run if heated by any source. They will even run in reverse if the cylinder is cooled below room temperature. In addition, if the engine is turned by an outside power source such as an electric motor, it can be used to either heat or cool surrounding air or liquids.

By cooling one end of a closed cylinder containing a piston, and heating the other

Summer School Opens June 18

Academic summer school for School District 564 will be conducted from June 18 through July 30 for classes with credit and through July 27 for non-credit classes, according to Supt. Robert Block.

William Desrocher will be in charge of the session for kindergarten through grade 12 with Dr. Leo Ruberto handling special classes. Developmental, remedial and enrichment classes will be offered in the K-12 schedule.

"Summer school provides an opportunity for those children who wish to enrich their experiences beyond that of the regular school year," Desrocher said. "It also offers an individualized learning situation for students needing help with a basic skill." Classes will be held at Mark Twain elementary and Franklin middle schools.

Classes will be conducted daily Monday through Friday with no classes to be held on Wednesday, July 4. High school classes for one-half credit will be two hours in length and those for one credit will meet four hours daily. Middle school and elementary classes are two or four hours in length from 8 to 10 a.m. or 8 a.m. to noon.

There is no tuition for residents of School District 564. Nonresident students may participate at a tuition fee of $60 for two-hour courses and $120 for four-hour courses. Students are expected and required to maintain regular attendance. Students absent more than five days will be dropped from the program. Camp or family vacation absences should be indicated at registration time for prior approval and study arrangements.

Registration deadline is June 8 and will be taken on a first come, first served basis. Insufficient enrollment will result in class cancelation.

Information On Miss TRF Given At Party

Information on participation in the 1984 Miss Thief River Falls pageant will be presented and questions answered at a pageant party to be conducted Wednesday, June 6, at 7:30 p.m. in the commons area of Northland community college and the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute.

The pageant will be conducted Saturday, July 28, with the general theme being "What a Feeling." Girls ages 16 to 25 are eligible to compete. Miss Thief River Falls of 1983, Beverly Rustad, will be present to answer questions and a videotape of the 1983 pageant will be shown.

"We would like to encourage any girls interested in learning more about the pageant to attend the June 6 party and bring other potential candidates with them," stated Lana Christianson, entries chairman for the Thief River Falls Jaycee Women. "There are a number of local area young women who would be good representatives of their community if selected and who would benefit from the experience of pageant competition.

"There are prizes and awards for division winners and runners-up to Miss Thief River Falls," she added, "and the winner herself receives a substantial scholarship and other prizes in addition to participation in the Miss Minnesota pageant in 1985."

Further information is available from Lana Christianson at 681-2566, Debbra Swanson at 681-4962 or Lynn Pederson at 681-6148.

27 Leave TRF For Special Olympics Today

Twenty-seven special education students from the Thief River Falls public schools left at 8 a.m. today to participate in the state special Olympics competition at the University of Minnesota in Duluth.

The students qualified for state competition by earning blue ribbons at regional competition earlier this month at Crookston. Opening ceremonies will be conducted in Duluth tonight, the students will stay on the University of Minnesota Duluth campus, competition will be conducted on Thursday and the group will return home Friday, arriving here about 2:30 p.m.

Participating in the program from School District 564 are Chad Green, Shawn and Scott Betancud, Brent and Mark Fuller, Becky Hopkins, Amy Sisler, Jennifer Vigen, Jeri Nelson, Shelley Flaten, Cory Moen, Betty Bustrack, Laurie Green, Renee Miller, Carol Olson, Michael Burkel, Tammy Foldoe, Dale Opdahl, Rosa Mack, Mike Hamlin, Everett Hoddy, Dan and Dean Kulseth, Tina Kostrzewski, Ray Moschner, Paul Johnson and Carmen Souto.

Advisors for the group will be Arlette Defreece, Patti Wigness, Ken Fletcher, Lee Cerkowniak, Polly Reed, Lloyd Burkel and Eleanore Erickson. Local sponsorship is provided by the Office Education association (OEA) at the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute.

Rupprecht And Peterson Earn Top Awards By FFA

STAR AWARD WINNERS at the Lincoln high school Future Farmers of America (FFA) parent-student banquet recently were Mark Peterson (left), son of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Peterson, and Daryl Rupprecht, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Rupprecht. Mark was named the chapter's star greenhand (freshman member) and Daryl was named the chapter star farmer.

Daryl Rupprecht was named star chapter farmer and Mark Peterson was named star greenhand at the annual parent-student Future Farmers of America (FFA) banquet held recently in Thief River Falls.

Daryl is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Rupprecht and his main FFA project work is in beef. Mark is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Peterson and his main project work is in crops.

Guest speaker was Al Dalen, instructor at the AVTI, who spoke on "Computers." He discussed uses of computers, what to look for when buying a computer, programs available and learning to use a computer.

The program included opening ceremonies presented by the 1983-84 officers and a welcome by chapter president, Lynn Johnson. Other officers are Brent Olson, vice president; Mike Lindholm, secretary; Steve Erickson, treasurer; Mark Lindholm, reporter; Floyd Lundstrom, sentinel; and Gary Geske and Darren Bentow, officers at large.

Doretta Mosloff gave the invocation. The banquet was served by VICA club members Traci Walseth, Jackie Hahn and Kelly Magner and their advisor, Mrs. Diane Rothschadl. Kristy Schantzen introduced the special guests and the FFA members and their parents. All of the FFA officers presented their parents with an appreciation certificate for all the support the parents have given them in the past year.

During the greenhand ceremony 12 members were advanced to FFA greenhands. They were Mark Peterson, Todd Carlson, Jerod Haugen, Mike Geske, Dana Nelson;

REPEAT CHAMPION in the skill olympics sponsored by the Vocational Industrial Clubs of America (VICA), Joe Hermreck of rural Thief River Falls will make a second trip to the national competition this year. A senior at Lincoln high school, Hermreck won his second successive state title this month in a three-hour competition in St. Paul, competing in the machine shop division. At the national competition June 25-29 at Atlanta, GA, he will be matched against at least 49 other state winners in an eight-hour test on use of the lathe, milling machine, surface grinder and drill press. Having bested 22 others in the state contest this year, he hopes to improve on his 1983 national showing which placed him in the upper half of the contestants. He has been working with instructor Allen Aaseby and others to become better prepared for using the equipment he will have at his disposal in the nationals. Hermreck's zest for the machine field and success at competition has earned him the nickname of "Joe VICA" at the local Northwest Vocational center. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Hermreck.

3 Townships In Marshall Co. 100 Years Old

Three Marshall county townships are planning 100th anniversary celebrations this summer and have announced dates for the events. New Solum township will note its anniversary June 24 while Marsh Grove and New Folden townships are combining their celebration on July 3 and 4.

Mrs. Richard (Pat) Moen reports that the New Solum's observance will be a one-day event June 24 beginning with a 10:30 a.m. worship service at the Rindal Lutheran church. A pig roast and pot-luck dinner will be served at noon.

At 1:30 p.m. a program will be held at the Rindal church, followed by games and activities for people of all ages. Sale of buttons, caps, pins and anniversary books are planned as fund-raising ventures. A planning committee meeting was held Tuesday evening at the New Solum town hall.

Ruby Engelsrud of Newfolden notes that the combined celebration for Marsh Grove and New Folden townships will begin with a program honoring Marsh Grove township at the school in Newfolden. Families from the township are asked to bring pictures from early days for that part of the activity which will take place on the evening of July 3.

Souvenir buttons are being sold for $1 which will entitle the wearer to a meal on July 4. Also being offered as souvenirs are caps, cheese crocks and pictorial calendars.

Residents and former residents of the three townships are encouraged to make note of the centennial dates and plan attendance at the events.

Julie Jeanne Peres, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Donald E. Peres of this city, and Trentyn Hugh Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard B. Johnson, rural Thief River Falls, exchanged marriage vows at a 7:00 p.m., candlelight wedding at the Evangelical Covenant church in this city.

The bride's father officiated at the double ring ceremony together with Rev. Dennis Beal. Mrs. Helen Dahlstrom was the organist, playing the traditional wedding march as the bride was escorted to the altar by her father.

During the ceremony, Leah Peres, a sister of the bride, sang "What Your Love Meant to Me"; Dawniss Johnson, a sister of the groom, sang "Flesh of My Flesh"; and Tom Eckstein, a friend of the couple, sang "My Tribute", and "Author of Love".

Lighting the greenery accented candles in the wall sconces, on the pews, altar, piano and organ were Lowell Poppenhagen and Nathan Jorgenson, cousins of the groom.

The bride was attired in an off the shoulder, organza gown with puffy sleeves, a fitted bodice accented with Chantilly lace and pearls, and a lace-trimmed, full-tiered skirt which flowed into a cathedral train. A lace headpiece held her fingertip veil, edged with matching lace. She carried a white Bible topped with sweetheart roses, snowflake mums, and greenery accented with red ribbon streamers.

Her personal attendant was Lana Jorgenson, a cousin of the groom.

Maid of honor was Leah Peres, Prairie Bible Institute, Canada, a sister of the bride. She was attired in a teal green floor-length gown with a ruffled front. The back collar formed capelet sleeves. At the back waistline was a fabric flower. She carried a red candle surrounded by greenery and snowflake mums. In her hair, she wore a single snowflake mum.

Similar attire, only in burgundy red, was worn by the bridesmaids: Christy Stromlund, Los Angeles, Calif., and Janell Williamson, Grand Forks, N.D.; friends of the bride; and Dawniss Johnson, a sister of the groom; and the junior bridesmaids: Andrea and Karlace Johnson, also sisters of the groom.

Wearing a miniature version of the bridesmaids' gowns was the flower girl Jill Dekkers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Will Dekkers of rural St. Hilaire. She scattered red rose petals on a white satin runner. The rings were carried by Benjamin Peres, a brother of the bride. Like the men of the wedding party, he wore a black tuxedo with a snowflake mum boutonniere and a handkerchief matching the gown of his female companion.

Joseph Yaklich, Ellendale, N.D., a friend of the groom, was best man. Groomsmen were Jay Seidler, Ellendale, Karl Kjernes, friends of the groom, and Raynell Johnson, a brother of the groom. The ushers were Matt Grabanski, Jim Dusek, Tom Eckstein, friends of the couple, and Nathaniel Peres, brother of the bride.

The mother of the bride wore a gray pinstripe suit with a long skirt, red cummerbund and a white stock-tie blouse. The mother of the groom was attired in a navy blue street-length dress with a large white collar. Their corsages were of white mums and red rosebuds.

Honor guests were Mrs. Gladys Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Norman Jorgenson, grandparents of the groom; Capt. and Mrs. Charles Douglas, St. Louis, Mo.; Mrs. Gary Dalton, Kansas, Mrs. Nellus Johnson and Elaine Johnson, Duluth, and Mr. and Mrs. Glen Poppenhagen and family of Babbitt.

A reception followed with Rodney and Nancy Johnson, friends of the families, as hosts and hostesses. Nancy Melgaard registered the guests and Jeff and Jill Hanson served the punch.

The tiered wedding cake with a flowing water fountain at the base was topped by a miniature bride and groom. On the steps, leading to smaller cakes, were miniature replicas of the bridal party. The cake was cut and served by Audrey Hanson and Joyce Jorgenson, aunts of the groom. Alice Mosbeck, served the Norwegian cake, made by Shirley Vigstol. Pouring coffee were Mildred Elder and Carol Poppenhagen.

Waitresses were Michelle Thorstad, Sheri Dahlen, Tammy Eckstein, Lori Dusek, Janelle Hamness. At the gift table were Lisa Poppenhagen, cousin of the groom, and Jonathan Peres, brother of the bride.

Following a wedding trip to Bad Medicine lake, near Bemidji, the couple is at home at Ellendale, N.D., where both are enrolled at Trinity Bible college with the groom in the ministerial course of study. Both are graduates of Lincoln high school. Photo, Rich Kennedy, Thief River Falls.

Leonard Helm Is Honored On Retirement

Recognition and retirement party for Leonard Helm, a veteran of 33 years of service to Lakehead Pipe Line company, was conducted last week at the Thief River golf club. About 30 company employees and spouses attended.

Originally from the Euclid area, Helm began his work with Lakehead in April of 1951 at Bemidji as a gang hand on pipeline maintenance out of the district headquarters there. He moved to Viking in the fall of 1952 as a utility man and advanced to utility oiler, oiler operator and station operator.

In 1957 he returned to Bemidji as a welder and spent 10 years there before moving to Michigan in 1970 as forman on a maintenance crew. In 1970 he returned to Bemidji as a sub-foreman and since 1973 he has been foreman of the eight-man maintenance crew in Thief River Falls. The crew handles maintenance of the pipeline from the Canadian border to Trail.

Helm noted that Lakehead operates the largest crude oil pipe line system in the free world. The original 18-inch line through this area carries natural gas in liquid form, he said, with 24-inch and 36-inch lines with 48-inch loops carrying crude oil.

Among retirement gifts presented by the company and employees were a Browning Citori superposed shotgun, rod and reel for salmon fishing with his son who lives in the Yukon, an electric trolling motor and rifle sling. His wife Lois was given a pendant and a camera (in case Leonard catches a fish).

The Helms have three daughters and two sons, the youngest of whom was born in Thief River Falls. They have a 26-foot mini-home and plan to drive to the Yukon to visit their son, who teaches there, in August.

RETIREMENT PARTY was held last week for Leonard Helm who retired following 33 years of service to Lakehead Pipe Line company. The observance took place at the Thief River golf club where a special dinner was served and Helm and his wife Lois were presented with a number of retirement gifts.

Sheep Days At Greenbush Are Set June 6-7-8

Program for the 46th annual Minnesota sheep days at Greenbush June 6, 7 and 8 has been announced by Roger Dvergsten, acting secretary for the sponsoring Minnesota Sheep Producers association.

Shearing schools will be conducted from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. June 6 and 9 a.m. to noon on June 7. The school will be conducted by Clayton Skolen and is intended for all persons interested in learning to shear or improving their shearing technique. A $10 registration fee will be charged to participants.

At 1 p.m. Thursday, June 7, the Minnesota state junior shearing contest eliminations will be conducted. Dean Benker, manager of East Central sheep project at Big Lake, will be judge for breeders' flocks and judging contests. Market lamb judges will be Tom Ostlie of South St. Paul and Howard Alberts of Fargo, ND, both with Central Livestock association, and Benker. Dick Boniface of North Central wool marketing corporation will judge the wool show.

Theme for the Friday, June 8 program will be "Innovative Ideas in the Sheep Business." At 8 a.m. entries for the youth show and pen of five market lambs and breeder flock must be in place. Bernie Nelson and Carl Spong will be in charge.

At 8:30 a.m. the 4-H club, Future Farmers of America and adult judging contest will begin with three classes of sheep to be judged. Roger Dvergsten and Delores Andol will be in charge. Entries for the wool contest close at 11 a.m. when judging begins under the direction of Howard Person.

A free dinner on Main street at 11:30 a.m. will be sponsored by the Greenbush town and country club with Sander Tureson and Rodney Langaas in charge.

Sheep raisers program and annual meeting of the sheep producers association will be conducted from 1 to 2:30 p.m. in the Greenbush American Legion club rooms. Dean Benker will be the speaker.

At 2:30 p.m. the Minnesota state 4-H junior sheep shearing contest will be conducted, followed by the senior sheep shearing contest. The event is open to all at the new sheep palace building with Harold Person in charge.

Awards banquet will be conducted at 7 p.m. in the Greenlin supper club with Person as toastmaster. Speaker will be Dr. Stanley Sahlstrom, provost of the University of Minnesota at Crookston.

Events on Friday include a craft demonstration at 10:30 a.m. and landscape and gardening workshop with Allen Wenner at 2 p.m., both in the Greenbush public library.

Poster Contest Winners From Grygla Listed

Winners of the 1984 conservation poster contest sponsored by the Marshall-Beltrami soil and water conservation district were announced at the awards ceremony at the Grygla school last Friday.

The top four posters were submitted by Steve Hogenson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Hogenson; Brent Lusignan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Loren Lusignan; Alette Sistad, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Sistad; and Stacy Englund, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Englund, all of Grygla.

Theme for the poster contest was "Save Our Farmland" and was open to the fifth and sixth grade students. The four winning posters will advance to area competition to be held in Thief River Falls on June 28.

SWCD Offers Tree Sale For Public Thurs.

ATTENDING THE Grand Opening of the office of Century 21 OK Realty in Thief River Falls recently, Chamber Ambassadors Dave Strong and JoAnn White extended congratulations and a first dollar of clear profit to owners George and Carla Johnson. Located on the corner of Second Street and Knight Avenue, the firm employs six additional sales associates in marketing real estate, offering nationwide listing.

TRF Students Build Engine Of The Future

end, then transferring gases back and forth between them by means of a valve, the piston can be made to reciprocate, which can be transferred rotary motion by means of a crankshaft and flywheel.

Since a Stirling engine's hot parts run at a continously high temperature, early models were plagued with failures, since materials available at the time (primarily cast and wrought iron) were unable to stand up under heat. However, had modern metallurgy been available when the engines were first developed, their success would have almost certainly been assured.

Although somewhat improved metallurgy made the Stirlings and variations on the patent popular through the 1800's, they were used primarily in competition with steam engines for certain specialized jobs. Toward the end of the 19th century, the electric motor and gasoline engine were developed, and since they produced greater power for a given size, they began to replace the Stirlings.

It is ironic that as the Stirling engines were going out of use in the 1920's, stainless steels which have become the key to further development were becoming available. Since these metals are able to stand up to continuous red heat without oxidizing, the engines are expected to gain in both popularity and efficiency as further progress is made in development.

Although the metallurgy involved in manufacture of Stirling engines presently makes them too expensive to compete with the internal combustion engine for automotive use, research on the project is presently receiving considerable attention and money within the industry.

However, where the engine is currently receiving the greatest amount of attention is in the area of outer space exploration. It offers advantages here of silence, long-life, reduced pollution and high mileage. Since it requires no electrical parts with their resulting radio interference, and can be run on solar power and does not even require air to operate, it can be ideal for this application.

In addition, it is receiving a great deal of attention as a source of power for "Third World" countries, where it can be used to pump water or perform other tasks while being run on fires of wood, straw, or even dung.

With the future being predicted for the Stirling engine, the experience gained by these high school age students at Northwest Vocational Center in Thief River Falls can only improve their opportunities when they enter the working world.

Serviceman's Group Life Rates Reduced

A reduction in premium costs for Servicemen's Group Life insurance (SGLI) coverage, to be effective July 1, will result in some three million persons sharing a savings of more than $47 million, the veterans administration announced recently.

Monthly premium for maximum SGLI coverage of $35,000 is presently $4.06 and will be $2.80. The decrease will result in an annual savings of $33.2 million for active-duty military personnel and $14.2 million for ready reservists with full-time coverage.

Administrator of veterans affairs Harry N. Walters described SGLI as "one of the largest group life insurance programs in the country, and an example of successful cooperation between the government and private industry. More than 99 per cent of eligible servicemembers have SGLI protection," he added. SGLI program is supervised by the VA, but administered by the Prudential Insurance company of America as primary insurer and participated in by other commercial companies.

Program insures officers and enlisted members of the army, navy, air force, marine corps and coast guard and commissioned members of the national oceanic and atmospheric administration and the public health service. Cadets and midshipment at the four service academies and members of the ready reserves also are offered SGLI coverage.

Except for the government's responsibility for the costs resulting from the extra hazards of military duty, the insurance program is funded by servicemembers' premium payments. The premium reduction is the result of the program's increased investment income and continuing favorable mortality experience, Walters said.

UMC Offers Workshops On Microcomputer

A series of microcomputer workshops will be offered throughout northwestern Minnesota by the University of Minnesota — Crookston (UMC). The workshops will begin May 21 in Crookston and will continue through August in several communities.

Microcomputer workshops feature an introduction to microcomputer software with special emphasis on the pfs series of software and microsoft's multiplan.

"This series of workshops was designed assuming that most participants would have little or no microcomputing background," according to Bruce Brorson, UMC assistant professor of business. "The course will expose participants to a variety of software and give them a chance to further develop their skills."

Featured software will include word processing-pfs write, data base management-pfs file and pfs report, graphics-pfs graph, and spreadsheets - microsoft multiplan. A maximum of 16 class participants will be enrolled in each workshop with two participants sharing a computer. IBM and IBM compatible computers (Compaq's) will be used for instruction.

Upon completion of the workshops, students will have skill in using the IBM personal computer, have a general knowledge of the common types of software available for sale in today's market, have a general background in the advantages and disadvantages of packaged software for sale in today's market, and be able to make decisions on the applications for which a microcomputer and software may be put to use in a participant's own environment, according to Brorson.

Workshops are scheduled for the following dates and towns: Crookston, May 21-25 and July 16-20; Thief River Falls, May 30-June 2; East Grand Forks, June 11-13; Roseau, June 25-27; Fosston, July 23-25; Warren, July 30-August 1; Red Lake Falls, August 2-4; and Ada, August 6-8.

Cost per participant is $50 for each workshop and one college credit may be earned. To register for any of the workshops, contact: The Business Division, University of Minnesota-Crookston, Crookston, MN 56716; telephone 218-281-6510, extension 445.

THEN and NOW!

Smurfs, among today's most popular cartoon characters, were first designed by Belgian cartoon illustrator Pierre Culliford some 25 years ago.

A whimsical collection of little blue elves has achieved worldwide popularity over the last 25 years.

Then: Twenty-five years ago, Belgian cartoon illustrator Pierre "Peyo" Culliford came up with a band of little blue people that he knew were something special, but he didn't know what to call them. One day while dining he asked someone to pass the salt and pepper, calling them "schtroumpf"—the French word for "watchamacallit." By accident, he had stumbled on the perfect name for his magical creatures. They soon swept the European continent with various adopted names. In Germany they were "Schlumpfe," in Italy, they were called "Puffo," "Pitufo" in Spain and in Scandinavia, "Smolf." When the small blue horde finally crossed the Atlantic ocean—just six years ago—Americans dubbed them with the Dutch word, "Smurf™."

Now: Today, the Smurfs are among the most recognized and beloved characters in the imagination of American children. Smurf figurines, dolls, clothing, books and other paraphernalia have become the number one retail item on the nation's toy counters. Smurf TV characters have taken over the top rating among Saturday morning children's TV shows. Smurf characters have even invaded the American home on drinking glasses, paper cups and cup dispensers. Now, from Mead Johnson, there are Smurf™ chewable vitamins for children. Several vividly recognizable faces of the famed cartoon characters are sculptured right into the tablets. Included are: four grape flavored Smurfs in traditional Smurf blue—Smurf™, Brainy Smurf™, Papa Smurf™ and Smurfette™; red colored,™ cherry flavored Gargamel™, the wizard; and Azrael™, the orange colored and orange flavored evil cat. Parents can buy the new Smurf™ vitamins with the assurance that each tablet helps provide Vitamins A, D, C and other vitamins essential to proper growth and development. There's also an alternate form containing added iron and zinc.

Crystal Sugar Co. To Build Beet Storage

Construction will begin soon at Moorhead on two immense covered beet-storage buildings capable of holding 50,000 tons of sugarbeets each. Owner will be American Crystal sugar company.

"It's a milestone in the beet-sugar industry," claims vice president-agriculture Stew Bass, who notes that this project at Crystal is the first full-scale commercial project of its kind taking place anywhere in the beet-sugar industry worldwide.

"We're combining a number of things: monitors, equipment and instruments. . . data from years of experience in pre-cooling and deep-freezing sugarbeet piles. . . and the knowledge gained from last year's covered storage prototypes (beet domes)," Bass said.

The benefits of these covered buildings, according to Bass, include more precise control of pre-cooling and deep-freezing of piled sugarbeets, and increased protection of sugarbeets from the effects of wind, rain and sun, especially during the period of unpredictable spring weather. In addition, says Bass, this project is the first step toward increasing acreage back to the full 100 per cent of stock ownership.

When completed, the two buildings will cover 4.82 acres, with individual measurements of 210 feet wide by 500 feet long. Inside, concrete walls will provide support, allowing for a free span of open area of 180 feet. The remaining 30 feet (of the 210-foot width) is taken up by the plenum — an area comprised of fans, air exchangers, mixers and instrumentation for pre-cooling and deep-freezing. Ductwork will be placed underneath the concrete floor.

Contract has been awarded for the buildings and site preparation began the week of May 21. Ductwork has been ordered, and is scheduled to arrive the first part of June. A contractor will be selected soon for concrete work.

"We're still going to pre-cool and deep-freeze beet piles like we have in the past," Bass says, "but now we will do this with the protection of an insulated roof, sides and floor, giving us increased control of this process."

New Hospital Price Report Is Released

Minnesota department of health has published a new report on hospital proces in the state, covering hospitals outside the Twin City metro area.

A similar report, released last September, listed prices for 29 hospitals in the Twin Cities. The new report gives price information for the 21 non-metro hospitals in the state which have 100 or more beds.

Both health department reports were based on information published last August by the Minnesota hospital association (MHA) and the council of community hospitals (COCH). MHA and COCH gathered the information as part of an effort to encourage "comparison shopping" for health care services on the part of insurers, employers, health maintenance organizations and other health care consumers.

New health department report, like the earlier one, presents the cost information in a different format from the one used by either of the two hospital organizations. Department officials believe their approach will make it easier to compare costs at different hospitals.

Data provided by MHA includes average prices for patients in each of 25 "diagnostic categories" such as "congestive heart failure", "tonsillitis", or "asthma" — at 13 different hospitals. COCH, which provided data on the other eight non-metro hospitals, divided each of the 25 diagnostic categories into several "case mix groups", based on the kind of treatment required for each patient. Average prices were then calculated for patients in each of 101 case mix groups at each hospital.

Information on the eight COCH hospitals is organized both by hospital and case mix group. Information on the MHA hospitals is organized by diagnostic category only.

A new edition of the Department's earlier report on Twin City hospitals is also now available. It includes information not previously published by the department on Twin City area children's hospitals.

MHA and COCH plan to release updated price information in August for all Minnesota facilities with 100 or more beds.

COCH and MHA compiled the price information partly in response to a 1982 state law, which called for the creation of a voluntary price reporting system for hospitals and other health care providers. The purpose of the law was to keep health care costs down, by encouraging competition among care providers.

Copies of the new non-metro hospital report are available free of charge, in limited quantities, from the department. Interested persons should contact the department's health economics program at (612) 623-5184.

Summer Youth Program Plans Jobs For 4,700

Governor's summer youth employment program expects to provide 4700 jobs to Minnesota youth, beginning June 1, under a $4 million state appropriation, according to Barbara Beerhalter, commissioner of the department of economic security.

Program is designed to provide jobs in the public sector for Minnesota young people between ages 14 and 21. Half of the youth workers will be from economically disadvantaged households, and one-third of those selected must be planning to continue their education beyond high school. Under the program youths earn $3.35 an hour for 20-40 hours a week in jobs which last from eight to 12 weeks.

In 1983 the program was funded at $3.8 million and provided 4600 jobs.

Job Service offices throughout Minnesota are recruiting for the program. Interested youth should contact local offices for more information.

Minnesotans' Works To Be On Exhibit

Minnesotans are invited to submit photos, art works, poems or other creative works illustrating the "Many Faces of Minnesota Education" to be used in the exhibit of the Minnesota department of education at the 1984 state fair.

Adults and children may send entries to The Many Faces of Minnesota Education, Minnesota Education Dept., 841 Capitol Square Building, St. Paul, MN 55101. Entries are not returnable and must be received by June 30.

Each work must be accompanied by a separate sheet of paper with the creator's name, address and name of the school and school district (if applicable). If the work is a photograph, identify subject, people, location, date and photographer.

STIRLING CYCLE ENGINES built by students in the metals department at Northwest Vocational Center were lined up and tested to prove that they were operational. The engines operate on the principle that gases expand as they are heated and contract as they are cooled, and can be powered by any source of heat. Small alcohol burners used for demonstration purposes were one of the only parts which the students did not make in the machine shop. Originally discovered in 1712 and patented in 1812, the design has recently resurfaced as petroleum shortages raise new interest in alternative energy sources.

Say Household Products Are Waste Hazard

Did you ever wonder what to do with those old cans of turpentine, solvent-based paint, pesticides and household cleaning products gathering dust in your garage or basement?

If you've hesitated to throw them out with the trash, your instincts were correct. These chemicals and other common household maintenance and decorating items are hazardous wastes and, don't belong in sanitary landfills, even though most of them end up there anyway.

But then, you ask, where do these wastes belong? Until recently there have been very few safe and practical answers to that question.

Major stumbling blocks to the solution of what to do with these hazardous left-overs are: a lack of consistent advice, no convenient collection system and little public awareness of the problem, according to the household hazardous waste task force recently established by the Minnesota waste management board.

While the board is not specifically required to address this aspect of hazardous waste management, it is interested in the entire spectrum of hazardous waste problems and is seeking guidance from this task force on how to address household hazardous waste management and prevent problems in the future.

The task force is made up of representatives from state environmental and public health agencies, from county and city governments, and from citizens groups. It will begin by focusing on six potential tasks:

+ Education of the general public on proper management of household hazardous wastes.

+ Helping government agencies and other organizations develop consistent responses to inquiries about the proper management of hazardous household wastes.

+ Development of information packages for use by local governments.

+ Identification of specific wastes of concern as hazardous household wastes.

+ Identification of appropriate methods of managing hazardous household wastes after they are collected.

+ Development of recommendations for legislation or long-term activities.

Success stories coming in from other states indicate that public support for this kind of a program is strong and very positive. For example, in Alaska, a two-week effort in Anchorage and Fairbanks (cities with a combined population of 300,000) resulted in the collection of over 9,000 gallons of waste pesticides and chemicals.

A first-ever effort to collect dangerous household wastes from residents of 15 Cape Cod towns drew 8,000 gallons in two weekends of collection. The Cape Cod area relies on a single-source aquifer for its groundwater supply, and good publicity of that fact made residents aware of the danger posed to that aquifer from improper disposal of hazardous wastes.

The protection of limited groundwater resources was also the impetus for widespread participation in an ambitious Florida program. The state's water quality assurance act requires hazardous waste pick-up services be provided to state residents and small hazardous waste generators in 20 of the state's 67 counties this year. Florida refers to this pick-up program as "Amnesty Days".

SCA Services, a waste processing firm, has been contracted to implement the program. They will staff a mobile collection site on wheels: Two 45-foot trailers, with seven chemists and three other staffers working full-time. The trailers will serve as waste collection points for small quantity generators on these well-publicized "amnesty days".

Up to one 55-gallon drum or 450 pounds of hazardous wastes per citizen or business will be accepted at the mobile sites. The program also includes a special component for school wastes and a toll-free statewide number for questions and information.

Communication and cooperation between an environmental group and a hazardous waste service compnay has led to the establishment of a county-wide hazardous waste collection program in San Diego, CA. The waste service company, BKK, will conduct a door-to-door pick up of hazardous wastes following an educational effort by an environmental group, the Environmental Health Coalition. City and county funds will pay for this effort.

An incident in which an employee of a refuse collection company was injured by hazardous liquids disposed into the trash got the attention of the people of Lexington, MA. Citizens started calling the local fire department to ask how they could get rid of the chemicals they had lying around. The city established a one-day, one-time collection aided by the League of Women Voters, the department of public works and the local health department which took in nine 55 gallon barrels of waste from 92 participants. The second year of the program netted enough old pesticides and chemicals to fill 29 - 55 gallon drums, due mainly to the benefits of experience, a $2,500 budget and increased publicity.

The most positive aspect of increased management of household hazardous waste is the manner in which it unites everyone involved in waste management issues. Waste service companies, regulators, environmentalists, ordinary citizens, small business owners, and politicians all strongly support the programs.

For further information on the Board's Household Hazardous Waste Task Force or any aspect of proper waste management, write the Board at: 7323 58th Ave. No., Crystal, MN 55428; or call 1-800-652-9747.

Hints For Homemakers

A Fragrant Custom Borrowed From Japan

Many a Japanese custom has found its way into American homes in the last few years Ikebana (flower arranging), Origami (paper folding), Kirigami (paper cutting) and Bonsai (tree, dwarfing) are some interesting examples.

Now another custom is enjoying increasing acceptance. It's the art of Koh-Do —the enjoyment of incense. An ancient tradition among the Japanese, it's only recently been discovered by Americans.

Many homemakers are discovering what the people of Japan have known for centuries—the art of scenting the air in vestibules and living rooms while entertaining guests or listening to music.

Others use incense as sachet to scent clothing and linens. It's also used as a soothing soporific in the bedroom just before retiring.

Since the art of incense is fairly new in America, Nippon Kodo, one of the leading manufacturers of incense in Japan, has these suggestions:

- Choose only high grade incense, such as Koh, found in quality stores. Select known brands.
- Inexpensive incense, like cheap perfume, tends to be raw and offensive to the senses. It also burns quickly.
- Quality incense compares in aesthetic pleasure and lasting fragrance to the finest French perfume.
- The name and description on the package will tell you what the fragrance is. Only by burning it can you appreciate the subtle aroma and distinguish each of its five distinct varieties: sweet, sour, bitter, pungent and tart.
- Try several fragrances, waiting a day or two in between each test, to determine your favorite.

The fragrance of quality incense wafts from a lovely Oriental burner.

Choice Given To Consumers By Medicare

In what Senator Dave Durenberger called "the most important reform in the 19-year history of medicare," the federal government has issued regulations allowing senior citizens to use their medicare to buy private health care coverage.

Durenberger, who chairs the health subcommittee of the senate finance committee, said the changes are modeled on the success of a demonstration project in Minnesota.

"The key in keeping health care costs down while ensuring quality health care if the marketplace — competition and consumer choice. The Minnesota project has demonstrated that since its inception in 1981," Durenberger said.

"Over 35,000 senior citizens in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area have opted out of traditional medicare coverage to join a health maintenance organization (HMO). They're taking their business to reasonable prices. It encourages both efficiency and quality. The patients save money, and so does the government. Everybody wins," he said.

The proposed federal regulations (which are expected to become final after a 45-day period for public comment) implement a "voluntary voucher" system approved as part of the 1982 tax equity and fiscal responsibility act. Medicare recipients may opt out of traditional medicare coveage in favor of a private health plan such as an HMO. The federal government uses the patient's medicare entitlement to instead pay the private health plan.

In the Minneapolis-St. Paul project, Medicare beneficiaries who join one of three HMOs pay about $30 per month; medicare pays the HMO about $165 per month for each recipient. As under the new nationwide system, the HMO must provide all the services traditionally covered by medicare; many HMOs provide additional services as well.

"At last the federal government is starting to get out of the insurance business and to return decision-making to medicare recipients themselves," Durenberger said. "In Minneapolis-St. Paul the marketplace is doing the job. I fully expect that as these provisions take effect we will see similar results all over the country."

LEC Reports 10 Cases May 29

Law enforcement center report dated Tuesday, May 29, listed eight cases investigated by Thief River Falls police department and two cases investigated by Pennington county sheriff's department by reporting date.

Cases handled by Thief River Falls police department included the following:

May 11 — Report was received that two young females had been seen leaving one of the Northland Village apartment buildings after a resident's mail was ripped up and a sump pump was tampered with. Case is under investigation.

May 12 — Hardees restaurant personnel reported that two male juveniles had smeared ketchup on the wall and torn leaves from a plant before leaving.

May 16 — Ernest Nelson, Thief River Falls, reported that a window had been broken at his residence sometime during the previous evening, causing approximately $10 damage.

May 22 — Bruce Bjorgaard, rural Newfolden, reported that his vehicle had apparently been struck while it was parked at Northwestern Hospital, causing a minimal amount of damage.

May 23 — Don Fugleberg, Thief River Falls, reported that approximately $50 worth of gasoline had been stolen from his pickup while it was parked at his residence.

May 24 — Report was received that a window at Assemblies of God church had been broken, causing approximately $10 damage.

May 24 — Joe Borchardt, Thief Rive Falls, reported that a tool box, value $230, had been stolen from a van belonging to Paint and Glass while it was parked in the alley behind the store.

May 24 — Sharon Garceau, Thief River Falls, reported that approximately $120 had been stolen from her purse while she was in the ladies restroom of a Thief River Falls restaurant.

Cases handled by Pennington county sheriff's department included the following:

May 19 — Delbert Christianson, Smiley township, reported that a battery, value $40, had been stolen from his pickup while it was parked near a garage at his residence sometime during the previous evening.

May 21 — Russell Comer, Mentor, reported that sound equipment, value $1,545, had been stolen from his vehicle while it was parked outside the Lantern restaurant. Entry was apparently gained by prying open a door lock. Stolen articles included: a Promaster Amplifier 700, two Peavy monitors, a gray suitcase containing miscellaneous cords and hookups, a guitar tuner, Shure microphone and a Midland CB radio.

Aid Requests Deadline Set For Thursday

May 31 is the deadline for low-income homeowners and renters to apply for financial help from Minnesota's energy assistance program to pay heating bills, announced Barbara Beerhalter, commissioner of Minnesota department of economic security.

Assistance is available even for renters who have heat included in their rent, and they also are encouraged to apply, Beerhalter added.

Minnesota received $82.2 million this past heating season to assist the elderly and low-income households with heating bills and energy conservation and emergency services. To date, more than 133,000 households, or nearly nine per cent of all households in the state, have been served by the state's energy assistance program. Operators of the program expect to serve an additional 3000 homes by the May 31 deadline.

Eligibility for the program is determined by household size, income and type of fuel used. Energy assistance grants range from $100 to $1180 per household.

Information on energy conservation, where to apply for energy assistance and energy conservation improvement loans is available by calling toll-free 1-800-652-9747.

VA Increases Interest Rate On Home Loans

Veterans administration has increased its maximum home loan interest rate — from 13 per cent to 13½ per cent. The last change occurred on March 21 when it was increased by one-half per cent to 13 per cent.

VA administrator Harry N. Walters said the increase in the maximum rate was made necessary by current mortgage market conditions.

VA action also increased the maximum rates by one-half per cent to 13¾ per cent for graduated payment mortgages, 15½ per cent for manufactured housing loans and 15 per cent for manufactured housing lots, combination manufactured home and lot loans, and home improvement loans.

Rate change does not affect existing loans, whose interest rate remains the same for the life of the agreement.

VA home loans can be used to purchase, construct, alter, improve, repair or refinance a home. This includes the purchase of condominiums and mobile homes, with or without a lot.

Phillips Awards Presented At Courage Center

Courage center is now accepting nominations for the 1984 Phillips awards. Five Phillips awards are presented each year to honor individuals with physical disabilities who have achieved financial and vocational independence, and to stimulate and encourage the employment of people with disabilities.

Winners receive $500 honorariums and special plaques, all made possible by a grant provided by Rose and Jay Phillips of Minneapolis. To be eligible, nominees must be vocationally and financially independent and have physical disabilities severe enough that their continuous employment during the past three years is considered a significant achievement.

Winners will receive their awards at a public ceremony September 14 at Courage center, 3915 Golden Valley Road in the Minneapolis suburb of Golden Valley, Minnesota.

Deadline for nominations is July 1. For information and nomination forms contact William B. Hopkins, Public Affairs Director, Courage Center, 3915 Golden Valley Road, Golden Valley, Minnesota 55422; (612) 588-0811.

Courage Center is a non-profit United Way organization serving people with physical disabilities and speech, hearing and vision impairments. Services include physical and occupational therapy, a transitional residence for young adults, craft training, camping programs, sports and recreation, amateur radio instruction and more. Last year, more than 12,000 physically disabled children and adults benefited from Courage Center programs.

Farm, Orchard Guide Offered By Ag Dep't.

Throughout the growing season consumers can get fresh, Minnesota grown produce at farmers' markets, pick-your-own farms and orchards. To help consumers find outlets where they can buy fruits and vegetables directly from growers, the Minnesota department of agriculture has published a "Directory of Farmers' Markets."

The 1984 directory lists 398 farm outlets along with the market's location, hours, products and phone number. The 64-page, statewide directory also has recipes for using Minnesota grown fruits and vegetables and a chart outlining when each Minnesota fruit and vegetable is in season.

Produce offered includes fresh strawberries, peas, sweet corn, apples, potatoes, squash and other vegetables and berries.

To obtain a free directory write the Tourism Division, 240 Bremer Building, 419 North Robert St., St. Paul, Minnesota 55101. Minnesotans outside the metro area can call toll free 1-800-652-9747 and ask for the travel information center.

Nurse Program At BSU To Be Explained Here

Informational sessions to explain facets of the Bemidji State University nursing program will be held at 1:30 and 4 p.m. on June 11, in room B20 of Northland community college, in Thief River Falls.

Recently established, BSU's program is specifically designed for registered nurse graduates of associate degree and diploma nursing programs. It has been developed in cooperation with postsecondary institutions across northern Minnesota which are represented by the Agassiz region nursing education consortium and the Itasca nursing education consortium.

Such a cooperative model permits students to proceed from practical nursing preparation, to an associate (RN) degree program, and continue for approximately two more years for a baccalaureate degree at Bemidji State.

Nursing courses within the curriculum are designed to build upon a student's basic program with format components developed to provide accessibility to registered nurses.

Students may enroll on a full- or part-time basis. Classes are offered in concentrated block times to enhance access while the University also offers a variety of courses relating to the bachelor of science degree in evenings and at locations away from campus.

Joelyn Scriba, who chairs the BSU nursing department, will conduct the information session and answer questions about the program. Further inquires may be directed to: Joelyn Scriba, Nursing Department, Deputy Hall, Bemidji State University, Bemidji, MN 56601; (218-755-3860).

Library Drops Sponsorship Of Kids' Stories

Summer programming for children at Northwest regional library will not include storytime this year, with the last session held this morning. However, pre-school storytimes will continue to be provided at the library by Northland community college from 10 to 10:30 a.m. Wednesdays, starting June 6.

Other summer events at the library will include a reading program, which will begin with a party at 2 p.m. July 5. Share The Fun skits will be presented by 4-H club members. Children attending the party will be able to register the number of books which they plan to read by August 7. New to the program is "Read To Me" which will allow children who cannot read to count books which their parents read to them. Program is scheduled to close at 2 p.m. August 9, with a party and show featuring mime artist Mike Gallo. Snacks will be served.

Persons desiring further information about summer library programs should call the library at 681-4325.

Citizen Action Key To Renewal In Education

Education is news again. After over a decade of public apathy, we've rediscovered our public school system. It's a campaign issue for the presidential candidates, and it's suddenly a vital issue for Americans of all political persuasions. The schools have moved out of the shadowns and into the spotlight.

Think of it as fall-out from the recession. Or the result of more than a dozen reports on the state of America's schools. In any case, confidence in our educational system has been deeply shaken. But with this loss of confidence has come a renewed interest in our schools, and an energetic new commitment from all sectors of society to their improvement.

The reports were not short on recommendations for improving schools, and the strongest, clearest recommendation of all was that there is an important role for the national, state and local governments; for business and industry; and for parents and citizens. Now, as the education commission of the states' task force on education for economic growth says, "It's time to stop talking about education."

Each of us can think of at least a dozen things that government and industry can do for education. But if you're like Bob Jennings, you're not sure what you personally can do. Jennings, a midwest computer programmer, is the father of two daughters in public schools. He dutifully pays taxes to support the schools, regularly goes to PTA meetings, and last year patiently and proudly attended all of the basketball games in which his eldest daughter played.

Bob Jennings' company also does its part for education. It, too, pays taxes to support local schools and, in addition, sponsors a number of scholarships for talented math and science students. When it comes to doing more for the schools, Jennings replies, "I not only gave at home; I gave at the office, too. What more can I do?"

Or maybe you're more like Martha Walker, a widow, with three grandchildren, who now lives in a Southwestern retirement community. "I've already put two kids through the public schools. It's not my responsibility. It's now up to the young couples with children in the schools. There is nothing more I can do."

Most of us are like Bob and Martha. We pay our taxes; what more can we do?

A great deal, in fact. There are many opportunities to improve education in your community. Here is just a sample:

— Serve as a school volunteer. Schools always need more helping hands, whether it's in the classroom, the playground, the cafeteria or the office. Often, by volunteering, you'll free teachers from noninstructional chores to do what they do best — teach.

— Tutor children who are having reading or math problems. Most communities offer special tutoring programs, particularly for young children. The extra measure of help you provide a youngster today can prevent a failing teenager or dropout tomorrow.

— Help out in school fund raising activities. Every school has its own, but these efforts are essential for providing funds for both scholastic and extracurricular activities, particularly in these days of sharp budget cuts.

— Work to raise funds for your local school library, or donate books. One measure of the excellence of a school is the quality of its library.

— Work to get school bond issues passed. They're the lifeblood of the schools.

— Run for your local school board, or at least get involved in school board elections.

— Write your local representative in Congress to muster support for education. Let him or her know you want better schools and the money needed to support them. Congress needs to know what your priorities are.

— Be informed about education in your local community. Know where the problems are and where local political candidates stand on educational issues. And vote on their educational records.

As a parent, there are many other ways to ensure the best education for your child:

— Be active in Parent-Teacher organizations. They'll keep you abreast of local school issues and keep you informed on ways you can help to improve education.

— Learn how to recognize a good school. That way you'll be able to make more informed judgments about your child's schools. For example, effective schools share a number of common characteristics — the school has clear, focused goals, it sets high standards for all of its students and gives them adequate support in meeting those standards; teachers are well trained and recognized for their achievements; the principal is an effective educational leader; there are programs in place to serve gifted and handicapped students, and those students who may be potential dropouts; and the school building offers a decent learning environment.

— Spend time in your child's school. Get permission to spend at least a day in class. That way you can determine first hand how well the school is doing.

— MAKE EDUCATION A HIGH PRIORITY AT HOME. It's the best way to give your child a "head start." Read to and with your child; take an interest in his or her homework and in school activites. Above all, learn about the school's education program. If you value education chances are your child will follow your lead.

Remember we all have a stake in the schools. Now that the talking has stopped it's time for each of us to do our share.

DIABETES: A THREAT TO YOU?

A major effort is underway to help people with diabetes — many of whom don't know they have the disease.

About 11 million Americans have diabetes. Some five million don't know they do. You are at risk of developing this serious disease if you are over 40, overweight and have diabetic relatives. Blacks, Hispanics, American Indians and women, especially those who have delivered babies weighing over nine pounds, also are at higher risk than the general population.

Diabetes and its complications kill more Americans than any other disease except cancer and heart disease. However, new research and treatment may help reduce the toll of diabetes. The American Diabetes Association has launched the largest public-health education program in its history. The $4-million, nationwide project, the American Diabetes Association Clinical Education Program, is designed to provide all primary care physicians with the latest information on the diagnosis, treatment and prevention of Type II diabetes.

Type II, non-insulin-dependent diabetes, is the most common form. In this type, the body usually does not properly use the insulin it produces to convert food into energy needed for daily life. As a result, a sugar, called glucose, builds up in the blood. Many scientists believe this build-up leads to serious complications such as blindness, heart disease and stroke, kidney failure as well as nerve and blood vessel damage that can result in leg and foot amputations.

New techniques to control blood glucose and recent research on insulin action and dietary measures in diabetes management can help physicians control the disease better and may reduce severe complications.

For more information on diabetes, contact the American Diabetes Association at Two Park Avenue, Box CEP, New York, NY 10016, or check the White Pages for a chapter near you.

Senators Join In Tariff Plan For Walleyes

Baited by new Canadian restructions on fishing in Ontario-Minnesota border lakes, Senators Dave Durenberger and Rudy Boschwitz of Minnesota have introduced legislation placing a tariff of $3 per pound on walleyed pike imported from Canada.

"This year the government of Ontario imposed a series of regulations and licensing requirements on non-residents, including daily individual camping fees, 21-day renewable fishing licenses, and restriction of hunting and fishing guide permits to residents only," Sen. Durenberger said.

"The fishing restrictions were added, Ontario officials say, in fear that U.S. anglers are dangerously depleting the walleye population on the Canadian side of the lakes.

"Actually, Durenberger said, "only about four per cent of the walleye catch in Ontario waters goes to individual anglers, whether American or Canadian. The great bulk of the catch goes to Canadian commercial fishermen, who in turn export much of it to the United States.

"If preserving walleye stocks is really the goal, then, the restrictions do nearly nothing to accomplish it — but they do successfully hurt Minnesota's recreational fishermen and resorts," he said.

"We too, south of the border, share Ontario's concern over the depletion of walleyed pike from border lakes," Durenberger said. He noted that the State of Minnesota has imposed a single limit for walleye in those lakes, so a fisherman can no longer take is limit from Canadian waters and then take another limit from the Minnesota side.

"But we agree that more can be done. If Ontario is not interested in addressing the biggest threat to border walleyes, namely Canaian commercial fishermen, we are offering to do it for them," he said.

"Our aim is not to place an economic hardship on Ontario's commercial fisheries, but merely to bring U.S. regulations into philosophical conformity with those in Canada."

District Band Will March In Legion Parade

Minnesota's Ninth District American Legion band is the only one of its kind. The band will march with others at 7 p.m. Friday at the Ninth District Legion convention parade in Detroit Lakes.

The district band is now the only one left in the United States as a district unit. Roy Sauer of Detroit Lakes has been with it for 43 years. He is a World War II navy veteran, and when he started playing his snare drum in the band, it was made up mainly of World War I veterans.

The biggest convention in which the band took part was in St. Louis when 100,000 Legionnaires were in a parade that started at 8 a.m. and was still going at 8 p.m. Other national conventions in which the Ninth District band appeared were at Miami, Honolulu, Boston and Seattle — the last named being in 1963.

Sharing the parade in Detroit Lakes Friday will be the senior high school band, a Shrine club marching unit, color guards and others. Wally Salmonson of East Grand Forks is director of the band for the convention. President of the unit is Robert Eng, also of East Grand Forks, and Herschel Lysaker of Crookston is manager.

The parade is part of the two-day district convention. Overall head of the event is district commander Willard Lee of Fertile. Activities include a memorial service at 11 a.m. Friday. A tribute to gold star parents, it will be held in Detroit Lakes new junior high school building. Sixty-six American Legion Posts of the Ninth District are invited to the convention.

Task Force Is Concerned For Education Role

According to a recent "Newsweek" poll, Americans now see education as the second most important issue in this election year. It ranks just behind unemployment and before U.S. relations with the Soviet Union.

For years there have been scattered, but continuing reports about problems in the schools: lower SATs, business reports of employees who couldn't read or write, the creation of college level remedial courses and teachers' strikes. It took a major recession, combined with reports from more than a dozen commissions, task forces, foundations and independent scholars to alert Americans to the depth — and the implications — of this educational crisis.

The report card on our public schools wasn't good. To cite just a sample of problems the reports found: Too many of our schools set low expectations and standards for students, teach inappropriate or outdated curricula, fail to upgrade instruction, and lack effective leadership at the administrative level. These findings were pretty well summarized in newspaper and magazine headlines from coast to coast that proclaimed: "Failure in the Schoolhouse," "America's Troubled Schools," "Education: Another National Disaster?" or "American's Schools Place the Nation at Risk."

However, along with the bad news, the reports also offered us hope. Hope that we can improve the schools — through a stronger core curriculum, higher standards for students, clearer goals, better pay and working conditions for teachers, improved use of technology, and more effective school leadership, among other things.

Education is everyone's business, and everyone has an important role to play. Up until now, we've said, let the schools do it; it's their problem. Or let the federal government fix it. But the schools can't do it and we can no longer expect the federal government to fix everything. All of us have what is called an "enlightened self-interest" in better schools.

As the education commission of the states' task force on education for economic growth report "Action for Excellence" explained: "It's time — not to leave education to the educators, job training to business, and unemployment worries to labor unions — but to bring all of these people together to design programs that are realistic in an educational atmosphere and effective in an economic atmosphere. It's time to stop talking about education."

Our national economy depends on it. We live in a highly technological society, and to be successful and able to compete in a global economy business and industry will need increasing numbers of skilled workers.

The strength of our democracy depends on education, for it depends on an enlightened public. That's particularly true today when we're asked as citizens to make judgments on highly complex public issues. Whether it's nuclear power or nuclear disarmament, all of us need to be able to participate effectively in the national debate.

An inadequate education is a dead end for students. There are few jobs these days for unskilled labor. We can't afford to lose the talents and potential of an entire generation of young people because we've educated them poorly.

Certainly, federal, state and local governments have one important role to play if we are to prevent disaster. As the ECS Task Force put it: "Important national commitments, in our judgment, do not only trickle down; they also bubble up. The federal government has a strong role to play in improving education. But so do states and local communities." If we are to revitalize America's schools, we're going to have to build new partnerships that draw upon government resources, plus those of business and industry, parents and individual citizens.

State legislatures are already acting. To date, 48 states have embarked on major efforts to upgrade education in their areas. And they are backing up this commitment with money. Pierre S. du Pont, Governor of Delaware, recently asked the legislature for an eight per cent, $21 million increase for education. That increase will go toward raising teacher salaries, improving the quality of instruction, introducing better professional development programs, and shaping a strong curriculum. Similar financial increases for better schools are being passed by state legislatures across the country.

Business and industry are noticeably increasing their involvement in education renewal. Says teacher college dean, Michael Timpane, in a recent article, "Of all the recent changes in the landscape of American education, none has been more dramatic and swift than the reappearance of the business sector." Business and industry are lending a helping hand to the schools in a wide variety of ways: loanings or donating equipment, helping with school management problems, funding special programs in science and the liberal arts, providing internship programs for school personnel, and helping to train teachers in the latest technology.

Yet in the final analysis, the most effective and critical actions to improve our schools can only come from the local community and individual commitment to education. Local support can mean the difference between poor and high quality education in your community. It's tempting to vote against local school bond issues or increased property taxes that help pay for schools. But we're shortchanging ourselves and mortgaging the future of our young people.

And, of course, parents and citizens offer the most important support of all to the schools. Whether it's helping to get local school bond issues passed or mustering congressional support for education or serving as a school volunteer, personal involvement makes a difference in the quality of a community's education.

Each of us belongs to one or another of these groups. Each of us is in a position to do something. Now is the time to act, to be a part of renewing America's most important institution — the school. In the years ahead, we'll be counting on the schools to keep the nation strong and healthy; right now the schools are counting on us for their survival. If we're serious about our commitment to a revitalized educational system, today, as the ECS task force's public service campaign says: "It's Time to Stop Talking About Education" and start doing something about it.

WELCOMING a new restaurant, the Magic Dragon, to Thief River Falls, Chamber Ambassadors JoAnn White and Dave Strong extended congratulations and a first dollar of clear profit to owner Loren McCullough. Located on Highway 59 South, the restaurant employs about 23 people in the preparation and serving of fine American and Chinese cuisine.

Library Films Begin Monday

Northwest regional library will begin its summer Monday movie festival for children at 2 p.m. June 4. Movies will be shown for approximately 40 to 60 minutes in the library's meeting room every Monday during the summer.

Listing of the films to be shown each Monday is available at the library. Films to be shown June 4 will be "Winnie the Pooh and Tigger, Too" and "Shades of Puffing Billy". Both are light-hearted children's stories.

Right To Work Group Upset By Boschwitz Vote

U.S. Sen. Rudy Boschwitz of Minnesota voted against an amendment to reform campaign spending, reversing his vote on an identical measure two years ago, and drew criticism from the national right to work committee.

The amendment, introduced by U.S. Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina, would outlaw the use of compulsory union dues for political and ideological purposes. It would implement the recent Supreme Court Ellis-Falls decision in which the court placed clear restrictions on the use of forced union dues for nonbargaining activity, such as politics. The measure failed 65-32.

Boschwitz voted in favor of the same reforms in 1982, but reversed his position this time, siding with organized labor and drawing heavy fire from right to work supporters.

National right to work committee president Reed Larson charged Boschwitz with "flip-flopping on this vital amendment and sacrificing his credibility with the voters for big labor's dubious political payoffs."

The national right to work committee, a citizens' coalition with 1.7 million numbers opposed to compulsory unionism, has been the driving force behind the Helms amendment to outlaw the use of union dues for political spending.

In addition to supporting the Helms reforms, the committee is waging an independent investigation of organized labor's political spending in an effort to expose and eradicate the misuse of forced union dues to promote candidates and causes opposed by many compulsory agency fee payors.

The committee last week formally charged union officials with more than 10 counts of federal election law violations stemming from the expenditure of union treasury funds to promote Walter Mondale's presidential bid.

Larson said the Helms amendment is a vital element of the committee's battle against forced-dues politicking, and he charged Boschwitz with backing down on his commitment to assist in that battle.

Larson termed the Senator's vote "A dramatic reversal carefully crafted to ingratiate himself to the union hierarchy at the expense of working Americans."

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

A Statute of Limitations on Statues

In virtually every industrialized nation students begin their public school education at age 6. Sweden is the exception. There, students wait until they are 7 years of age before entering school. Why is this? Have the progressive Swedes examined reams of sociological studies and determined that age 7 is scientifically-better than 6 or 8: Are we in the United States somehow behind the times in remaining with 6 as the age for entering school?

No, to both questions. The reason Swedish students begin their education at age 7 dates back to the 1800s. You see, when public education was first introduced in Sweden, it was felt that a child should be at least 7 years old before he could walk to and from school. Children younger than that were not safe from the wolves. Yes, wolves.

Now, to my knowledge, wolves no longer traverse the highways and byways of Stockholm, yet the hundred-year old law remains unchanged.

It is perhaps unfair to single out the Swedes for keeping outdated and counterproductive laws on the books. Here in America, we have plenty of examples of laws and spending programs that perhaps made sense 10, 20 or 100 years ago but have long outlived their usefulness.

Take our nation's antitrust laws as an example. They were enacted in the 1800s when international trade was a small percentage of our gross national product. Transportation costs were high and it was not considered relevant to count foreign producers of steel or consumer goods as part of the competitive picture. Today, however, foreign producers of steel, autos and every imaginable product and service certainly do compete with domestic producers. Yet, the antitrust laws remain unaffected by the changes in economic reality. The antitrust laws have not adapted to changes in economies of scale or to the real and potential competition from overseas.

The Rural Electrification Administration (REA) is another example. The REA was originally established in 1935 to bring electricity to rural areas. At the time only 11.6 per cent of rural areas had electricity. Despite the fact that by 1964, 98 per cent of all farms were being serviced with electric power, the program continued to subsidize rural electricity. It continues today as a multi-billion dollar subsidized loan program by the federal government.

We can all point to particular laws that were enacted to address some specific problem or temporary crisis — laws that have remained in the books. A temporary tax on phone usage to finance World War II continues to this day. And the withholding of the federal income tax, which was an emergency measure to finance that war, is still with us.

We know from experience that a federal spending program develops a life of its own. Its beneficiaries become adept at lobbying for the continuation and expansion of the program. Similarly, laws once placed on the books are likely to remain there. Inertia is not simply a physical law, but a political axiom as well.

The time has come to place a statute of limitations on statutes. No program should be enacted without a specific expiration date. Then, if the need remains, the program can be continued — but only by a direct vote of Congress and action by the President. We cannot allow any more "entitlement" programs to develop, programs that do not submit themselves to congressional review and the necessity of positive action to continue.

During the 1970s there was a great deal of discussion about "sunset laws," which would call for the periodic review of federal, state and local programs. Unfortunately, those states which passed each sunset legislation exempted many laws and programs from review, and only a few minor commissions were allowed to disappear.

Today, with thousands of pages of laws and regulations affecting virtually all aspects of our lives, we cannot continue to add to this morass without some way of pruning back the deadwood. New laws and regulations and spending programs should be enacted only if they are accompanied by specific expiration dates. And old laws and regulations and programs should come up for termination on a regular basis.

We cannot move into the future hamstrung by laws and programs tailored for a different age, which act as unfriendly hands reaching out of the past, holding us back from the future.

I have a bone to pick with the Founding Fathers. These geniuses, who penned the Constitution, foresaw many threats to our liberties. Wisely, they wrote in guarantees to protect us against government encroachment in our lives. But they missed one trick.

National elections were set for the first Tuesday in November. What the Founding Fathers didn't see coming was a constitutional amendment allowing for an income tax. And Income Tax Day, April 15, was set — by no coincidence — about as far away from Election Day as possible.

Thus, while we buy into a new Congress and president in Novemenber, we don't settle the bill for their spending habits until April 15. This allows us almost seven months to calm down before we are asked to vote for the same spenders again.

What if Election Day and Income Tax Day were one and the same? I would venture to guess that if Americans stayed up late finishing their income tax returns on Election Eve, we would be in no mood to return the big tax-and-spend politicians to Washington the next morning.

Indeed, it is a safe bet that both Congress and our taxes would look radically different if we voted on April 15. Our taxes would be lower, and much of the present Congress would be out pounding the pavement looking for work.

Try this as an approximation of merging Tax Day and Election Day. Take a moment when you are making out your 1040 statement and call your representative and senators. Ask each of these three how they voted on the 1981 tax cut. Ask them how they voted on the 1982 tax increase. Ask them if they intend to vote for income tax increases this year. Ask them if they agree with columnist George Will and others, who believe that the American worker is undertaxed.

If they intend to raise your taxes, then get out your calendar and mark down their names with a notation to vote for their opponents on November 6, 1984. If they stand with the American worker in opposing higher taxes, then mark their names down on the calendar as definite "keepers."

It is too easy for politicians to speak in the abstract about "increasing revenues," "broadening the tax base," and putting in a "revenue plug." When you speak to these politicians, keep your 1040 statement right in front of you and don't let them bamboozle you into thinking that they can raise taxes on everyone else but you. You can rest assured that this is what they tell your neighbors. For when it comes to taxes, we all pay.

Another alternative is to take your income tax return with you into the polling booth on November 6, 1984. Remember how your congressmen voted on higher taxes. Then look at your income tax return. Remember how angry you were on April 15. Take a deep breath. Then vote.

The Coercive Utopians Unmasked

Walk into the woods and find a medium-sized rock. Turn it over. Immediately you see a subterranean culture of crawling, creeping little creatures scurrying for cover. They cannot stand the exposure to sunlight and quickly disappear back into the earth.

Replace the rock and these creatures will return.

Rael Jean and Erich Isaac have just released a book, "The Coercive Utopians", which rips off the mask of a host of so-called "public interest" groups. What we see exposed in the pages of the Isaacs' penetrating analysis is no prettier than the underside of the above-mentedion rock.

In 312 pages of excrutiatingly well-documented research, the Isaacs expose the hidden agenda of organizations and individuals who claim to speak on behalf of such Mom-and-Apple-Pie issues as "Peace", "Environmentalism", "Consumer Rights", and "Economic Democracy".

Readers of "The Coercive Utopians" will discover that even money given in good faith to some American churches can be traced to the coffers of terrorist organizations and their support groups and to communist nations with explicit policies of persecuting churches and synagogues. Certain "peace" groups are examined and found to direct all their energies and rhetoric against American and Western alliance with nary an unkind word about Soviet imperialism or genocide in Cambodia. (The Gulag? What Gulag?) And some environmental groups are found to oppose not simply "unsafe" energy sources but also increases in energy production, new technologies, and indeed the very concept of increasing the standard of living.

One writer in a "Friends of the Earth" manual wrote, "The only really good technology is no technology at all." Others point to the agrarian economy of a century ago or to the economies of scarcity in Vietnam, Cuba and China as worthy models for America.

Do the donors to such organizations who wear pacemakers, or the younger members who were spared the ravages of polio and German Measles due to American science and technology, really understand the implications of these Luddite schemes? I sincerely doubt it.

Indeed, throughout the book, the Isaacs point out that the leaders of such "public interest" groups know full well that they do not represent or reflect the views of a majority of Americans or even their members and contributors.

Heather Booth, an activist who trains young Americans at the Midwest Academy to push this radical agenda, warns her students that "you may have to waffle and be less clear on certain positions". Derek Shearer, who is a founder of the movement for "economic democracy" popularized by Tom Hayden and Jane Fonda, admits that the very phrase "economic democracy" is, in his words, "the great euphemism" for socialism:

"While we can't use the 'S' word (socialism) too effectively in American politics, we have found that in the greatest tradition of American advertising the word 'economic democracy' sells. So I commend it to you, for those who are willing to compromise on the use of the 'S' word."

The coercive utopians who wish to restructure American society along the lines of the centralized economies and closed societies of other nations have found that the American people will not knowingly buy what they are selling. The pages of this book are replete with examples of these utopians advising their activists to disguise their goals and objectives and to use the courts and regulatory processes rather than elections to promote their hidden agenda.

The Isaacs have done us a great service by exposing the true goals behind much of what passes as "public interest" lobbying in the United States today. Everyone interested in the formulation of public policy should read this book.

For too long we have taken many of these organizations at face value. We believe the rhetoric and glib slogans they hid behind. But once exposed, I doubt that these individuals and groups can successfully push policies of economic stagnation under the guise of "environmentalism", of American surrender beneath the banner of "peace", and of socialism behind the cant of "economic democracy".

LEGAL BRIEFS

Disadvantaged Of Society Must Have Legal Representation

By David S. Shrager
President
Association of Trial Lawyers of America

Federal and state laws have been enacted for years to protect the rights of vulnerable groups in our society — the elderly, children, the mentally and physically disabled. These laws — which sought to combat decades of apathy and neglect by society — promised that every individual would enjoy fair access to a full cross-section of the opportunities available in an affluent society, to achieve a level of success equal with their capabilities, all without reference to age, mental or physical status.

But there remain huge gaps between the legal promises and their fulfillment.

David S. Shrager

Statutory legal pledges to our citizens have too often been weakened in enforcement by government bureaucracies and our legal system. There is a clear and present need for additional statutory reform to aid those who fall through the seams of a fair measure of justice.

It is the duty of the trial lawyer to assist the disabled in reclaiming their right to work — and to live — to their fullest potential, not as an act of charity but as a vested right right of American citizenship.

Children are the most vulnerable of the disadvantaged groups. They have been physically and mentally abused, sexually assaulted and exploited, or traumatized as victims of child snatching.

Lawyers must work with professionals in medicine, psychiatry, and social work to ensure that these young people are better insulated from abusive situations and, with competent legal representation, are assisted through the maze of juvenile laws and resettled in healthy environments.

The fastest growing of the disadvantaged groups is the elderly. Although many laws for senior citizens have been enacted, the thrust and effect of them are often over-protection, deprivation of personal rights and civil liberties, and a loss of independence. Dignity, a sense of independence, and a feeling of pride are the special needs and entitlements of senior citizens.

Trial lawyers who invoke the humanity of the common law in support of the injured victims of society have a special responsibility to provide a fair measure of their time and skill in support of the weak and disadvantaged of society.

cancer answers

"Cancer Answers" is a weekly column sponsored by the Red River Valley Medical society, the Red River Valley unit of the American Cancer society and the Thief River Falls Times. Questions may be mailed to the editor, Thief River Falls Times. All questions will be answered, and those of a general interest will be published in "Cancer Answers."

Q: I heard somewhere that smoking isn't as dangerous for women as it is for men. The percentage of women who die of smoking-related diseases is lower than for men. Is that true?

A: Smoking is just as dangerous for women as it is for men. The tragic proof is only now catching up with women statistically. This year for the first time more women are likely to die of lung cancer than will die of breast cancer. By the end of the decade women may equal men in the annual number of lung cancer deaths.

The reason that women until now have had a lower death rate from smoking-related diseases is that most of these diseases take "years" to develop. Women have not been heavy smokers as long as men. Smoking became popular among men following World War I. It wasn't until World War II that smoking became socially acceptable for women.

Consequently, cardiovascular diseases, emphysema and cancer, all of which may take 20-30 years to develop, have only started taking their toll on women smokers.

Q: I'm a nurse in a community hospital. We're starting an "I Can Cope" class for several cancer patients and families in our area. Can you suggest a source for pamphlets we could use for teaching? We will cover what cancer is, how it's treated and its psychosocial impact on patients and families.

A: The Cancer Information Service can provide a variety of pamphlets of these topics. They have brochures on each of the common types of cancer. There are several on chemotherapy, radiation therapy, surgery and treatment in general.

Eating Hints is a free cookbook that gives practical advice on how to maintain good nutrition during cancer treatment. Taking Time is a booklet that explains patient and family emotional responses to the threat of cancer and suggests how to cope with resulting stress.

These titles and more than 50 others are listed in an annotated bibliography the Cancer Information Service will send on request. You can order up to 25 copies of most pamphlets and receive them within a week. For orders larger than 25 you should allow a month for delivery.

Call the CIS toll-free, 1-800-4-CANCER to ask for a copy of the bibliography or to order materials.

Q: My husband has lung cancer. He's having chemotherapy now, and it upsets his digestive system. I've been reading up on nutrition, and I'm wondering if natural foods might be better for him than regular grocery store food. Some things I've read say natural foods are healthier and additives in regular food cause cancer.

A: You are wise to be concerned that your husband should have good nutrition while he's being treated for cancer. Eating well can be very difficult for people who have nausea, diarrhea or other digestive problems during chemotherapy.

As to whether natural foods would be better for him, the answer is probably not. There is no scientific evidence that natural or organic foods provide more or better nutrients than regular foods.

There also is no evidence that people eating regular foods have a higher risk for developing cancer than people who eat only natural or organic food. People had cancer centuries ago when all food was natural.

You should encourage your husband to eat nutritionally balanced meals. If there are some foods he cannot tolerate, try substituting others that are nutritionally similar. He may tolerate smaller, more frequent meals better than the usual three meals per day.

The clinic or hospital where your husband is treated probably has a dietician who could help you plan some menus and recipes. Ask your husband's doctor to help you schedule a visit with the dietician.

The Cancer Information Service can send you a free booklet called Eating Hints, Recipes and Tips for Better Nutrition During Cancer Treatment. You can call the Cancer Information Service toll free, 1-800-4-CANCER.

To: Interested persons, Providers, Families and Public Officials.

Subject: Fergus Falls State Hospital.

Announcing: Fergus Falls Regional State Hospital Task Force Meeting.

When: June 7, 1984; 10:00 a.m.

Where: Fergus Falls State Hospital Auditorium.

Agenda:
- a. Incorporation
- b. Election of Officers, Board of Directors, Incorporators, etc.,
- c. Discussion of paid or unpaid staff representative,
- d. Updated old business,
- e. Discussion of the provisions of the State Hospital Study and Plan as enacted by the 1984 Minnesota Legislature,
- f. Miscellaneous business.

On May 26, at the Fergus Falls State Hospital, the Regional Task Force met with six representatives from the Minnesota State Planning Agency, headed by Tom Triplet, Agency Director. I am extremely pleased to report the time clock has been turned back to December 16 and we now have an opportunity to provide meaningful input on how employees, communities and hospital residents would be affected if State Hospitals were to shift to more community base services for mentally retarded. A seven part study will also be headed by this agency. This study will stress local input. I have pledged to the State Planning Agency they will find the imput from our Regional Task Force to be timely, thorough and we will not let them down. I am proud of the large number of people that have provided positive and productive contributions throughout the 17 county areas. Collectively these efforts have made the difference.

At our next Task Force meeting we will discuss a summary of the provisions of the State Hospital Study and Plan. The seven-part study is a copy of our committee structure and is extremely compatable.

I would be remiss if I did not thank all of the local representatives and interested persons that have contributed thus far and most notably Senator Collin Peterson who has really delivered. The guidance he provided during our most traumatic moments has now become the guidelines that all parties must abide by. It is nice to know that State Government can respond in such a positive manner.

I've sent this and addition enclosures to the approximately 400 people on our mailing list. If any reader desires any updated information you may call Larry Krohn, Otter Tail County Coordinator at 736-2271. The next meeting is extremely crucial to our fundamental organizational structure. Please make your views known to your local representatives and if possible, attend yourself. This study must be concluded and submitted to the legislature by January 31, 1985. Implementation requires legislative action. I am encouaged that this comprehensive study will eliminate the arbitrary and brush fire approach in decision making regarding our State Hospital system. It will provide us with a reliable secure plan for the next ten years. Tax payers, employees, communities and most importantly the patients deserve no less.

Sincerely,
Van R. Ellig, Chair Person
Larry Krohn, Otter Tail Co. Coordinator
Rolly Winterfeldt, Otter Tail Co. Social Services Director.

Nutrition Labeling

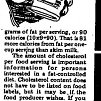
Next time you are shopping for groceries, read the nutrition labels. Compare nutrients and calories in one food to those in another product. You may be surprised. The foods you have been purchasing may not contain the nutrients you thought they did. On the other hand, you may find you are a "nutrition wise" shopper.

U.S. government regulations require that all enriched or fortified food, and food for which a nutrition claim is made, include nutrition information on the label. Fresh meats, fruits and vegetables usually are not labeled.

Information on the label is divided into two categories: Nutritional Information per Serving (serving size, servings per container, calories per serving, and protein, carbohydrate and fat in grams per serving) and Percentage of the U.S. Recommended Daily Allowances (U.S. RDA). Most people will get an adequate amount of protein, vitamins and minerals if the food they eat meets the U.S. RDA standards. Special U.S. RDA's are used for food for infants and young children.

The number of calories per serving must be listed on the label. Calories depend on the amount of fat, protein and carbohydrate in the food. Fat, which has the most calories, supplies nine calories per gram. Protein and carbohydrate each supply four calories per gram. By multiplying the grams per serving by the calories per gram, you get the total calories per serving.

Reading food labels is especially helpful if you are on a fat-controlled diet. For example, by comparing the contents of skim milk and whole milk, you'll discover that whole milk contains 10 grams of fat per serving, or 90 calories (10x9=90). That is 81 more calories from fat per one-cup serving than skim milk.



The amount of cholesterol per food serving is important information for persons interested in a fat-controlled diet. Cholesterol content does not have to be listed on food labels, but it may be, if the food producer wishes. If you want additional information on fats and cholesterol, call your local American Heart Association.

Best of luck to the Thief River Falls athletes competing later this week in the Region 8AA high school track meet and the North Sub-Region 8AA high school baseball tournament.

Both events will be held in Moorhead. The baseball games will be played Thursday and the track meet will be held Saturday. Post-season competition for the Prowlers has already included the North Sub-Region 8AA track meet, the Sub-Section 8 tennis tournament and the Region 8AA golf meets for both the boys and girls.

Its been a busy school year trying to keep up with the high school sports teams from Thief River Falls and the surrounding communities of Goodridge, Plummer, Oklee, Newfolden, Grygla and Middle River, plus the community college teams at Northland. A summer schedule featuring American Legion baseball, golf and softball leagues will be a nice change of pace.

A special thanks to all the coaches who take the time to report their results. Sometimes that isn't the easiest thing to do, but the effort you put in is greatly appreciated by both the newspaper and the readers. Teams and leagues with lots of coverage are invariably those who have people who deligently report their results. If the results aren't in the paper, they weren't called in. If they're reported, they're printed.

TRF Meets Bemidji In Semifinals

Thief River Falls coach Charlie Cornell figures his Prowlers have just as good a shot as the other three teams on the eve of the 1984 Sub-Region 8AA high school baseball semifinals and finals, scheduled to be held Thursday in Moorhead.

Semifinals will feature Fergus Falls vs. Moorhead at 10 a.m. and Thief River Falls vs. Bemidji at 12-noon. Winners will meet in the 3 p.m. championship game. The North Sub-Region 8AA winner will host the South Sub-Region 8AA champion in the 1984 state tournament-qualifying Region 8AA finals on Wednesday, June 6. Cornell and the Prowlers would like to be the host team for that one.

Actually, any of the four remaining teams have a legitimate shot at the North Sub-Region 8AA title. Moorhead is the tournament's top seeded team, having finished 6-1 against North Sub-Region 8AA opponents during the regular season. Bemidji is seeded No. 2 with a 4-1 mark. Thief River Falls, despite a 1-3 record within the region, played those top two teams tough this spring and was seeded No. 3 while Fergus Falls was seeded No. 4 with a 3-2 mark. Detroit Lakes, 2-4, and Park Rapids, 0-5, were seeded No. 5 and No. 6, respectively, and were eliminated in the first round playoffs Tuesday as Thief River Falls beat the Panthers 12-1 and Fergus Falls doubled the Lakers 12-6, a team the Otters lost to earlier this spring 7-1.

Moorhead's only loss to a North Sub-Region 8AA opponent this spring was a 4-2 setback to Thief River Falls, a loss the Spuds avenged with a 4-0 win over the Prowlers in the first round of the four-team Moorhead Invitational at mid-season. That game was actually much closer than the score might indicate as the Spuds broke open a scoreless duel with a four-run sixth inning. They later beat Grand Rapids in the finals, the only loss the Indians have suffered all spring.

Meanwhile, Moorhead has also beaten Bemidji 16-6 in a windstorm and edged Fergus Falls 6-5 by scoring two runs in the bottom of the seventh inning.

Bemidji, on the other hand, owns a pair of one-run wins over Thief River Falls — 5-4 in eight innings and 6-5 when the Lumberjacks pulled it out in the bottom of the seventh.

Thief River Falls will be trying to end a string of eight straight losses at the hands of Bemidji when the two long-time rivals meet Thursday.

Miscellaneous

+Middle River school board has received coaching resignations from Tom Neibauer, who served as head basketball coach for the girls and head baseball coach; Julie Helgeson, who served as head volleyball coach; and Steve Holmes, who served as assistant football and basketball coach.

CAUGHT IN A run-down between home and third, Thief River Falls runner Brian Johnston was tagged out by Park Rapids catcher Phil Verbrugghen in the first inning of Tuesday's North Sub-Region 8AA high school baseball tournament game played on the fairgrounds diamond. It was the second out of the inning as Johnston broke for the plate on a ground ball to second by Tim Nyland, and couldn't retrace his steps as the runner behind him occupied third. However, Thief River Falls scored five times in the top of the first and six more in the second — including a home run by Johnston — en route to a 12-1 victory over the visiting Panthers. Thief River Falls faces Bemidji Thursday at 12-noon in the tournament semifinals at Moorhead, with the championship game scheduled at 3 that same afternoon. Fergus Falls and Moorhead play in the other semifinal game at 10 a.m.

Prowlers Handle Panthers 12-1 In Sub-Region 8AA Baseball Play

First inning set the tone for the rest of the game Tuesday as Thief River Falls hosted Park Rapids in the first round of the 1984 North Sub-Region 8AA high school baseball tournament.

Park Rapids loaded the bases with one out in the top of the first, but failed to score. Thief River Falls, on the other hand, also had the bases loaded with one out in the bottom of the inning, but the Prowlers scored five times and went on to bury the Panthers 12-1 in a 4½-inning game played before a good turn-out of fans at the fairgrounds diamond.

That puts the No. 3-seeded Prowlers against No. 2-seeded Bemidji in Thursday's North Sub-Region 8AA semifinals at 12-noon at Moorhead. In the 10 a.m. semifinal doubleheader that day at the same site, No. 4-seeded Fergus Falls will challenge No. 1-seeded Moorhead. The Otters eliminated Detroit Lakes 12-6 in Tuesday's other opening round game of the six-team tournament, that one played at Fergus Falls.

Two walks and a single put Park Rapids in great position to open the scoring in yesterday's game here, but Thief River Falls pitcher Tim Nyland, a righthanded junior, got out of the jam with back-to-back strike-outs, ending the threat by fanning No. 6 batter Bill Paulson on a 3-2 pitch.

Then in the bottom of the first, eight of the first nine Thief River Falls batters reached base, and five of them scored despite the fact the Prowlers had just one base hit in there. Rick Spong was hit by a pitch to start it, and Bob Huot drew a walk. Park Rapids sophomore pitcher Bill Magnusson struck out the Prowlers' Tim Bottem, but then proceeded to walk Todd Ortloff, Ryan Bakke, Joe Blankenfeld and Brian Johnston before being removed by coach Carlton Anderson. Bakke, Blankenfeld and Johnston got easy RBI's out of that, and Gary Cornell greeted new pitcher Mark Kaufenberg with a fly ball double that fell into the left-corner field gap for two more runs and a 5-0 headstart.

Thief River Falls really broke it open in the second inning when six hits, two Park Rapids errors and two wild pitches accounted for six more runs and an 11-0 bulge. There was a bloop double into left field by Bottem to start it, and he eventually scored on a wild pitch. A two-out single by Bakke fell into short left field before Blankenfeld and Johnston hit back-to-back home runs. Blankenfeld's two-run shot was a high fly ball over the left field fence and Johnston followed with his solo shot that was a line-drive over the center field fence. Cornell then reached base on an error, moved to second on a wild pitch and scored on a solid single to right by Nyland. A single by Spong moved Nyland to second, and he scored on an error.

Park Rapids scored in the third on a one-out bunt single by Paul Anderson, one of 11 sophomores or freshmen on the 16-man Park Rapids roster. He scored on a hard-hit RBI double into the right-center field gap by Joel Jindra, a freshman.

Thief River Falls answered with a final run in the fourth as pinch hitter Kevin Nelson drew a lead-off walk, went to third on a single by Spong and scored on an infield error.

Park Rapids, the tournament's No. 6-seeded team, ended its season at 7-10. Thief River Falls will take a 9-6 record into the semifinals.

It wasn't a playoff classic, but Thief River Falls coach Charlie Cornell had plenty of reasons to be satisfied. First, of course, was the fact the Prowlers won, something they haven't done in post-season play in three years; they were playing at home, thus saving a two-hour bus trip; and the fact that 17 of the 18 players on the roster got into the game.

"We had some big hits when we needed them," mentioned Cornell. "We had some line shots for outs, but we had some bloopers for hits."

Eight hits collected by the Prowlers were spread among eight different players.

Nyland wasn't overly sharp, acknowledged Cornell, but he got the job done, particularly in getting out of that first inning job. And in using Nyland yesterday, Cornell can call on senior Brian Johnston and junior lefthander Ryan Drees tomorrow.

North Sub-Region 8AA winner will host the South Sub-Region 8AA champion in the 1984 state tournament-qualifying Region 8AA title game on Wednesday, June 6.

Semifinals Set Tonight In No. Sub-Region 8A

North Sub-Region 8A high school baseball tournament is scheduled to move into its semifinal round tonight (Wednesday) with two games at Red Lake Falls.

Long-time athletic rivals Warroad and Roseau are matched in the 5 p.m. doubleheader opener, with Tri-County playing Lake of the Woods at 7.

Championship game will be played Friday at 7 p.m. at Red Lake Falls, but both semifinal winners will be assured of berths in the 1984 Region 8A tournament June 5-6 at Red Lake Falls, joining the two South Sub-Region 8A qualifiers.

North Sub-Region 8A play began Friday with a single first round game as Greenbush eliminated Humboldt-St. Vincent-Lancaster-Pembina 6-2 at Greenbush.

Four quarterfinals games were played Monday at various sites, with the home team coming out the winner each time as Lake of the Woods blanked Middle River-Marshall County Central 3-0 at Baudette, Tri-County edged Kennedy-Hallock 4-3 at Karlstad, Warroad shut out Greenbush 8-0 and Roseau handled Red Lake Falls 10-2.

It was a frustratingly close season-ending loss for a youthful Middle River-Marshall County Central team, reported head coach Tom Neibauer. The winners collected only three hits off Dean Hjelle, but the losers had just one off Wayne Chapman. Hjelle, the only senior on the Middle River-Marshall County Central roster, struck out eight. Chapman struck out 12.

It was a scoreless tie going into the fifth inning when the breaks went against Middle River-Marshall County Central. There was a walk, an error and a sacrifice that led to a pair of squeeze bunt attempts by the Bears. The first one down the line was ruled to be a fair ball as the Skippers tried to bat it foul and the second one resulted in an error when the throw struck the runner going to first, allowing two runs to score.

That was it for the offense for the day, although Middle River-Marshall County Central had numerous runners in scoring position throughout the game, but failed to come up with the needed base hits.

Middle River-Marshall County Central finished the 1984 season 6-10 overall, but Neibauer was more than satisfied with the progress his team made this spring. "The kids were a lot better at the end of the year then they were at the beginning," he acknowledged.

South Sub-Region 8A quarterfinals were scheduled Tuesday at Bemidji State University with No. 3-seeded Laporte vs. No. 6 Redlake; No. 2-seeded Crookston vs. No. 7 Cass Lake; No. 1-seeded Blackduck vs. No. 8 Ada; and No. 4-seeded Bagley vs. No. 5 Akeley.

Four winners return Thursday for the semifinals at 12-noon and 2 p.m., with the two semifinal winners collecting Region 8A berths. The South Sub-Region 8A championship game will be played Friday at 1 p.m. at Bemidji.

TRF Backcourt Club Will Meet

Thief River Falls Backcourt Club will meet Saturday at 9 a.m. in the back room at the Rex Cafe in downtown Thief River Falls.

Bemidji Wins 8AA Golf Meet

In a week's time span, Bemidji and Thief River Falls golfers traded places at the Brainerd Golf & Country Club. Unfortunately for the Prowlers, it was the Lumberjacks who got the better deal out of the swap as they won the 1984 Region 8AA high school golf tournament Tuesday.

A week earlier Thief River Falls' finest outing of the spring schedule on the same course gave the Prowlers a championship finish in the Brainerd Invitational which included the same 13 teams who gathered for the Region 8AA meet. Bemidji, after a season-long string of high finishes, was a disappointing 11th in the regular season finale.

However, yesterday it was Bemidji finishing first and Thief River Falls slumping to 11th. Fergus Falls, meanwhile, remained in second place.

Bemidji won the coveted Region 8AA title with a four-player 312 — nine strokes better than a week earlier. Fergus Falls was second at 314. The previous Tuesday the Otters finished in a first place tie with Thief River Falls at 316, but lost the title in a playoff.

Alexandria was third in the Region 8AA standings, one stroke behind Fergus Falls at 315, followed by Melrose at 321, Detroit Lakes 322, Park Rapids 324, Little Falls 325, Rocori 326, St. Cloud Tech and Moorhead 329, Thief River Falls 330, Brainerd 335 and St. Cloud Apollo 338.

Meet medalist was Ted Damen of Bemidji with a 74. Ed Grasso of Little Falls and Dan Whemerscherson of Park Rapids shot 75 while John Greenagle of Fergus Falls, Chris Staab of Little Falls, Dan Demuth of Apollo and Ted Braggleman of Melrose all had 76.

Championship team and top five medalists earn spots in the 1984 Class AA state golf meet June 6-7 at Majestic Oaks in Ham Lake.

Senior Jim Geatz shot a 78 yesterday to lead coach Jack Boyer's Prowlers. He was meet medalist at the Brainerd Invitational with a 72.

TRF Girls Close Out 1984 Golf Season Today

Thief River Falls girls put the official finishing touches to their 1984 high school golf season this morning (Wednesday) with their annual post-season team breakfast at the Best Western Inn.

"We had a good season," reported Thief River Falls coach Ruth Onkka, who presented letters to seniors Denise Anderson, Missy Bondy, Kirsten Pollick, Kathy Reuter and Karen Wennberg; juniors Kari Jorde, Michelle Olson, Jenny Spencer and Heidi Tangquist; and freshman Gayle Borchert.

Door prizes this morning (golf balls) were won by Jorde, Tangquist, Anderson, Cindy Kain, Kirsten Freeman and Karen Schmitz.

TRF Youth Baseball Registration Is Set

Registration for the 1984 Thief River Falls summer youth baseball program will be held Friday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the lobby of the sports arena. Registration fee is $5.

Thief River Falls' youth baseball program will feature several levels of competition this summer, with the program divided into the 7-8-year-olds, 9-year-olds, 10-year-olds, 11-12-year-olds and the 13-15-year-olds.

To be eligible to participate in the 7-8-year-old program, a child must be 7 years of age before August 1. The 7-8-year-olds will meet every Monday and Wednesday from 1 to 2:30 p.m. Their first practice will be on Monday, June 4, at 1 p.m.

All 9-year-olds, plus any 8-year-olds who will be 9 before August 1, will meet Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 3 p.m. However, their first practice season on Monday, June 4, will start at 2:15 p.m. instead of 3 o'clock.

Ten-year-old group includes any 9-year-old who will be 10 before August 1. This group will meet for their first practice on Monday, June 4, at 4 p.m.

Those 11-12-year-olds who did not play baseball in Thief River Falls last summer will meet with the 10-year-old group for their first practice on Monday, June 4 at 4 p.m. Any 12-year-old in this group who will be 13 before August 1 must practice with the 13-year-olds.

For the 11-12-year-olds who played baseball in Thief River Falls last year, which includes any 10-year-old who will be 11 before August 1, their first practice is scheduled Tuesday, June 5, at 1 p.m.

Players in the 13-to-15-year-old group, which includes 12-year-olds who will be 13 before August 1, will have registration June 1, and their first practice session will be announced at that time.

Anyone unable to register Friday may pre-register at any time at the Thief River Falls Park and Recreation Department.

Questions about the program should be directed to program director Myron Peterson, telephone 681-2798.

ROUNDING THIRD base on his home run trot, Thief River Falls' Joe Blankenfeld was applauded by coach Charlie Cornell after his high two-run shot cleared the left field fence in the second inning of Tuesday's North Sub-Region 8AA high school baseball tournament game against Park Rapids. Moments later teammate Brian Johnston cleared the center field fence with a solo line drive home run as the Prowlers pulled away to a 12-1 victory over the Panthers.

20 Prowlers To Compete In 8AA Meet Saturday

Twenty Thief River Falls athletes — 13 girls and seven boys — will compete Saturday in the 1984 Region 8AA high school track meet at the Irv Christianson track on the campus of Concordia College in Moorhead.

Competition will get underway at 11 a.m., with an awards ceremony planned when the final race is completed at approximately 5 p.m. Top two finishers in each event, including the relays, will qualify for the Class AA state meet June 8-9 at Bloomington.

Region 8AA qualifiers include the top eight individuals, plus the top four relay teams, from the North and South Sub-Region 8AA meets held last week. The Region 8AA field will include athletes from Thief River Falls, Bemidji, Park Rapids, Detroit Lakes, Fergus Falls and Moorhead in the North, plus Brainerd, Sauk Rapids, St. Cloud Apollo, St. Cloud Tech, Rocori, Melrose, Alexandria and Little Falls in the South.

Thief River Falls boys qualifying for the Region 8AA meet include seniors Kevin Kezar, 800 meters; Randy Swanson, 110 meter high hurdles, 300 meter intermediate hurdles; and Jeff Langan, 300 meter intermediate hurdles; juniors Jeff Johnson, shot, discus; Shannon Kezar, shot; and Scott Fowler, 400 meters; plus sophomore Dave Gobeil, shot.

Thief River Falls girls qualifying for the Region 8AA meet include seniors Sherry Sabo, 100 meter hurdles, 200 meter hurdles; and Paula Wilkens, 1600 meters; 3200 meter relay; juniors Stacie Kruta, 100 meter hurdles, 200 meter hurdles, 1600 meter relay; Tricia Armstrong, 100 meters, long jump, 800 meter relay; Julie Finstad, 3200 meters; and Georgia Howard, 3200 meter relay; sophomore Michelle Puetz, 400 meters, 800 meter relay, 1600 meter relay; freshmen Vikki Weigand, 800 meter relay; and Bobbi Thompson, 800 meter relay; plus eighth graders Peggy Cruz, 800 meters, 1600 meter relay, 3200 meter relay; Jackie Smith, 3200 meters; Cindy Kruta, 400 meters, 1600 meter relay, 3200 meter relay; and Edna Johnson, 1600 meter relay.

Moorhead won both the boys and girls titles in the North Sub-Region 8AA meets held last Thursday in Bemidji. Moorhead boys finished with 125½ points, followed by Park Rapids with 122, Detroit Lakes 99, Bemidji 97, Fergus Falls 59½ and Thief River Falls 21. Moorhead girls finished with 156 1-3points, followed by Detroit Lakes with 97 1-3, Fergus Falls 75 1-3, Park Rapids 57 and Thief River Falls 45.

Individual standout in the boys' portion of the meet was Detroit Lakes' Jay Jorgenson, who won the 100 meter high hurdles in 14.74 seconds, the 300 meter intermediate hurdles in a meet-record 38.9, the high jump at 6-2 and the triple jump at 41-6¼.

Sprinter Rob Nielson of Moorhead and distance runner Steve Lumbar of Bemidji were double-event winners. Nielson ran a meet-record 22.58 in the 200 meters and ran an 11.18 in the 100 meters. Lumbar ran a 4:23.01 in the 1600 meters and a meet-record 9:22.95 in the 3200 meters — finishing just ahead of Park Rapids standout Mark Lingle in both races.

Rest of the winners were Fergus Falls' Scott Groho, 21-0 in the long jump; Detroit Lakes' John Ehlers, 11-6 in the pole vault on a windy afternoon; Bemidji's Tim Smith, 45-3 in the shot put; Park Rapids' Bernie Garthner 2:03.10 in the 800 meters; Park Rapids' Chris Pike, 139-9 in the discus; Moorhead's Mike Larson, 50.3 in the 400 meters; Park Rapids' sprint medley relay team in 3:38.92; Moorhead's 400 meter relay team in a meet-record 43.58; and Moorhead's 1600 meter relay team in a meet-record 3:27.20.

Among the girls, Allyson Grohnke of Moorhead and Linda Pachel of Park Rapids were double-event winners. Grohnke had a 15.37 in the 100 meter hurdles and a 5-0 effort in the high jump. Pachel ran a 12.11 in the 100 meters and a 25.72 in the 200 meters.

Other winners for the Spuds, who had eight of them in all, were Teresa Greenwood, 11:33.86 in the 3200 meters; Brenda Braun, a meet-record 30.12 in the 200 meter hurdles; Heather Doyle, a meet record 5:20.48 in the 1600 meters; Tracy Molick, 38-2½ in the shot put; the 400 meter relay team in a meet-record 50.35; and the 1600 meter relay team in a meet-record 4:09.86.

Detroit Lakes had winners in Michelle Mallow, 1:00.86 in the 400 meters; and Brenda Schmitz, 16-7 in the long jump; Fergus Falls' 800 meter relay team was a winner in 1:49.49; and Bemidji had winners in Tina Erickson, a meet-record 118-2 in the discus; Kathy Lundberg, 2:24.89 in the 800 meters; and the 3200 meter relay team in a meet-record 10:12.64.

Men's Slow Pitch

Don Grabowska hit four home runs Tuesday, including three in four trips to the plate in the second game, as unbeaten American Legion-Miller Beer swept a doubleheader in Thief River Falls men's slow pitch softball league play.

American Legion-Miller Beer built an 11-1 lead, but watched as Hamms-Pizza Hut closed the gap to 11-9 before Tim Olson hit a two-run seventh inning homer to wrap up a 13-9 first-game victory that was followed by an 18-6 second-game win over the Grygla Merchants.

Elsewhere last night, TG Sporting Goods edged the Grygla Merchants 5-3, Best Western beat Nichols Beauty Nook-Paint & Glass 16-6, Norwest Insurance got by Nelson Implement 7-5 and Pepsi Bottling beat Falls Clinic 12-8.

No scores were reported on the Division II games played Tuesday, and scores were missing yet from last Wednesday. Division II standings can not be published until those results are turned into league president Dennis Bendickson.

'84 Waterfowl Opener Will Be September 29

Wildlife officials at the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources say they expect few changes from recent years in waterfowl hunting regulations to be announced this fall by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

This coming season will be the fifth year in a five year study being conducted by the federal government to determine the effects of stabilized hunting regulations on the nation's waterfowl population.

Season framework for the Mississippi Flyway, which includes Minnesota, will be from the Saturday nearest Oct. 1 to Jan. 20. As in past years, Minnesota and other states in the Mississippi Flyway will be offered a certain number of days of hunting within those dates.

Minnesota has announced Saturday, September 29 as the opening date. Minnesota has always selected as early an opening date as possible to give hunters a chance to bag early migrating species such as teal and wood duck.

Shooting hours will again be from one-half hour before sunrise to sunset. However, Minnesota does not permit hunting until noon on the first day of the season and for several years has closed shooting hours at 4 p.m. until late in October.

Both restrictions are designed to ease hunting pressure on locally hatched ducks.

— Men's Fast Pitch —

Five-team Thief River Falls men's fast pitch softball league will open its 1984 season schedule tonight (Wednesday) with a doubleheader on the fairgrounds fast pitch diamond.

This year's league line-up features Glass Hamms-Coors, Popplers, Melvies, United Satellite Systems and Schmidts-Coke.

Tonight's games will find Glass Hamms-Coors playing Popplers at 7:30 p.m. and Schmidts-Coke vs. Melvies at 9.

Another league doubleheader is scheduled Friday when Melvies plays United Satellite Systems at 7:30 p.m. and Schmidts-Coke plays Glass Hamms-Coors at 9.

AMONG THE fish boated over the Memorial Day holiday weekend on Lake of the Woods was this 28-pound sturgeon caught and released by Glenna Wefald-Moen of Thief River Falls. The fish was hooked on a jig. Her party was fishing out of Rocky Point.

Softball For Girls To Start Wed., June 4

Thief River Falls Park and Recreation Department will again sponsor a summer softball program for girls ages 9-16 each Wednesday, beginning June 6.

Girls interested in participating in the program should come to the Eastside Park diamond Wednesday, June 6, at 10 a.m. or 1 p.m. There is a $5 registration fee.

Park and Recreation Department will furnish all the equipment except gloves. There will be two playground directors on hand to supervise and umpire the games.

Director of the 10-week program is Ruth Ostby, telephone 681-2234.

DIVING BACK TO the bag, Thief River Falls runner Ryan Bakke made it back before a pick-off throw from Park Rapids pitcher Mark Kaufenberg arrived during the third inning of Tuesday's North Sub-Region 8AA high school baseball tournament game played in Thief River Falls. Park Rapids first baseman Bill Paulson awaited the throw. The Prowlers eliminated the Panthers 12-1 in a 10-run rule first round game to move into Thursday's semifinals against Bemidji in Moorhead.

Wildlife Art Show

One of the country's largest wildlife art exhibits, featuring nearly 1,000 paintings, sculptures and woodcarvings by 60 Minnesota artists, will be at Dayton's in downtown Minneapolis from July 28 through August 1. The show is open to the public with free admission.

Minnesota Wildlife Heritage Foundation, sponsor of the show, is a non-profit organization whose main purpose is habitat aquisition. The organization conducts fundraisers to support this effort through donations (money, land, etc.) and other activities.

Foundation receives a portion of every sale of art and also generates income by selling a full-color book, "Wildlife Art," featuring illustrations of current pieces of art and a biographical sketch of each artist in the show. Copies of "Wildlife Art," are available at the show and by mail order.

Beribboned Blackbirds

Residents of Minnesota and other states in the Upper Mississippi River Valley are being asked to report sightings of red-winged blackbirds with small plastic ribbons attached to their legs.

Ribbons were placed on the birds by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife service as part of a study aimed at reducing damage to sunflower crops in the Dakotas and western Minnesota.

Reports of sightings will help researchers define migration routes and wintering and breeding areas.

Anyone observing the marked birds is asked to write a note giving the dates, ribbon color and location of the sightings to: John Cummings, research biologist, Denver Wildlife Research Center, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Building 16, DFC, Denver, CO 80225.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

Recently there has been news about how Senators Durenberger and Boschwitz have introduced bills in the US Congress that would place a $3 per pound tariff on all walleye imported from Canada into the United States. Under the name of conserving fish resources this bill will reportedly force Ontario to curtail their commercial net fisheries, but yet give Minnesota resorts on Lake of the Woods free access to Canadian waters. The Senators are claiming that American resorts only catch four per cent of the walleye taken out of Ontario Lake of the Woods.

A little bit of checking has shown that the Senators' data is unsubstantiated. The Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources (MNR) will no longer give out the official poundage figures for the "American based anglers" until their biological study is completed later this year, but they will say that the four per cent figure is very low. The Ontario resorts have used data supplied by the MNR to come up with a figure of 530,000 pounds of walleye taken from Ontario by the "Minnesota based angler."

If you compare this figure to the estimated 600,000 pounds taken by the Ontario based angler and 230,000 pounds taken by the Ontario commercial net fishermen, the Minnesota based angler actually takes 40 per cent rather than four per cent. If the Minnesota resorts are only taking the small amount of walleyes that the Senators claim, why are the resorts so upset?

If our Senators would have taken the time to look at all the biological data, they would have found out that Lake of the Woods fishing is as good or better then it has ever been, and as good or better than any other big lake in Minnesota. The only people who seem to be having such a hard time catching fish on Lake of the Woods are the constantly complaining Minnesota resorts. I suggest that any vacationers coming up to Lake of the Woods looking to catch fish should bring their own boat or find a resort that can catch fish.

If the Senators would get their way and pass the $3 per pound tariff, thousands of commercial net fishermen would lose their jobs all across Canada, thousands of support jobs would be lost both in Canada and US, and all fresh water fish would be removed from the marketplace. What happened to our Senators' concern for jobs and consumer rights? It is hard to believe that our US Senators can be advocating such an asinine plan.

Thomas Melin Promoted In 'U'M Extension

Thomas Melin

Thomas Melin, county extension agent, 4-H, in Norman county at Ada, has been promoted from assistant professor to associate professor in the University of Minnesota's agricultural extension service. The promotion becomes effective July 1, 1984.

Melin has been employed by the Minnesota agricultural extension service for nine and one-half years. He is a 1968 graduate of Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Melin of rural Thief River wfalls.

Tom is presently the county extension agent for 4-H youth development in Norman county. He and his wife, Valerie, have three children, Jason, 9; Tracy, 6; and Tara Jo, 2, and live in Ada.

According to Norman A. Brown, dean and director of the agricultural extension service, the promotion recognizes Melin's professional growth and achievement as an extension educator in the county.

"I am delighted to announce this promotion," Brown said. "Although it does not change Tom's responsibilities, assignment or future contributions to the county, it is a mark of distinction for him as a university faculty member."

How To Avoid The Pain Of Cancer

The outlook for cancer patients is much brighter. The American Cancer Society points to improved drugs, treatment methods and, especially, increased involvement by the public in their own health care, as the primary factors.

There are seven basic steps each of us can take, the Society says, that could make the picture even better. They include:

- Reduce, and ultimately eliminate smoking to avoid cancer in lungs and several other key areas.
- If you are over 40, make a proctoscopic examination of the colon-rectum area part of your regular annual checkup.
- Breast self-examination should be a monthly habit for women.
- A Pap test to detect cervical cancer should be routine for all adult women, especially those in high risk categories.
- Avoid excessive exposure to the sun to reduce skin cancer.
- Regular examination of the mouth to detect usually painless (in the early stages) oral cancer.
- Make a regular physical examination part of your annual routine as an overall basic precaution.

A regular physical checkup is the basic step to reducing cancer statistics.

Many families of cancer patients are discovering a concept that makes their care less painful. These programs are called Hospice Home Care. Many are supported by the Mary Fund, established in memory of a young woman who died of cancer at 27. The Mary Fund numbers some 2,000 members all over the world who have so far raised $250,000 for hospice care of the terminally ill. This special program helps patients live and be with their families while receiving the service and medication that would be offered in a hospital.

Many Americans, realizing that cancer can strike anyone, are making tax-free donations to the program. This can be done by writing to: The Mary Fund, 31 Rock Ridge Avenue, Greenwich, CT 06830.

Time Change and Potluck Dinner

Sunday, June 10 worship services at Oak Ridge will be changed to 10:45 a.m. During the service there will be reception of new members and the vacation Bible schoolers will present their program, after which a potluck picnic dinner will be held. Anyone is invited to attend. A special offering will be taken to help defray the expenses of the VBS study materials.

ALCW Meeting

Oak Ridge ALCW will meet Thursday, June 14 at 1:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Leonard (Carol) Waswick. Mrs. Jessie Aaseby will be the assisting hostess. Ardith Olson will lead Bible study and Eleanor Bradley will give devotions. All women of the church and their guests are welcome.

Keith Moen and Dana Nelson of Sanders were Sunday morning visitors at the Russ Lane home. That afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Lane, together with Ivadelle Hoppe, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fitzgerald, and Delores Sorterberg and Crystal, attended a picnic at the Dr. Donald Douglas home in Thief River.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Panek and Garrett of Silverton and Mrs. Ludwig Peterson of Thief River brought turkey dinner to Mr. and Mrs. Burt Lane on Memorial day Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Gres Bruggeman arrived Thursday from Williston, N.D., at the home of their daughter and husband, the Danny Olsons, and were guests until the following Tuesday. Sunday the foursome spent the day fishing at Crystal Lake.

Mrs. Richard Ayers and Crystal attended graduation ceremonies at Northland college Friday afternoon and were later among the guests at the home of graduate Tracy Lord.

Mrs. Dale Warne, Nicolas and Christopher, were among those attending the graduation of her brother, Dean Hjelle, at Newfolden Friday evening and later were guests at the James Hjelle home.

Mr. and Mrs. Gary Hoglo, Jackie and Garrett were Memorial day Monday dinner guests at the Ross Walseth home in Rocksbury.

Mr. and Mrs. Burt Lane visited Wednesday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gibson and Ila Yeschick of Grand Rapids at the campgrounds in Thief River.

Mrs. Marvin Moen and Cory attended the confirmation of Kyle Tanner at the Emmanuel church at Holt Sunday and the dinner which followed. Later they visited at the open house held at the Gary Tanner home. Also that afternoon they were among the guests at the Luvern Sorter home at Middle River for the open house for high school graduate Tammy Sorter.

Mr. and Mrs. Gary Hamness, Janelle, Jarilyn and Jeffrey spent Sunday fishing at Rocky Point, and enroute home visited at the Roger Erickson trailer at Zipple Bay.

Dale Nelson of Sanders was a Friday morning coffee guest at the Burt Lane home. Charles Ellingson was a brief Sunday morning caller and Selmer Dimmen of Thief River called briefly Monday evening.

Jim Skogland of Thief River and Tim Lewis were Tuesday and Wednesday evening coffee guests at the Daryl Lewis home.

Mrs. Marvin Moen, Keith and Cory were Monday afternoon visitors at the Russell Lane home.

Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Helgenset, Hans and Leah, together with Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Helgenset and Ordell Adkins, spent Saturday and Sunday at Red Lake.

Birthday

Mrs. Gary Hamness was a Tuesday dinner guest at the Don Hermanson home in Thief River and a late afternoon coffee guest at the Roger Erickson home. That evening Mrs. Hermanson entertained at a party in honor of Mrs. Hamness' birthday anniversary. Guests besides the honored guest were Mrs. Jerry Nelson, Del Otteson and Mrs. Bruno Beiswenger.

Mrs. Gary Ellingson, Daniel, Andy and Matthew of Thief River were Monday afternoon and supper guests at the Roy Blomker home.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Moen, Keith and Cory, were Friday evening guests at the graduation of Jammie Moen at Oklee. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Moen. Later they were guests at the Richard Moen home at Newfolden for Lee's graduation.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Srnsky, Kristy and Kathy were Sunday evening supper guests at the Curt Halvorson home.

Mr. and Mrs. Gary Hoglo, Jackie and Garrett were Sunday dinner and supper guests at the Bob Hoglo home in St. Hilaire.

Llewellyn Lane of Thief River was a Tuesday afternoon visitor at the Burt Lane home, along with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gibson and Ila Yeschick of Grand Rapids. Mrs. Lane also visited at the home of her mother, Mrs. Ludwig Peterson, in Thief River Falls during that afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Guessford of St. Paul were a week ago Saturday through Monday house guests at her parental Donald Olson home. Saturday evening they were all joined for supper by Mr. and Mrs. Lance Erickson, Oliver and Andrew. Sunday morning Mrs. Tilda Nelson and Jack of Thief River were coffee guests at the Olson home and that afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Scholin of Thief River and Jerry and Valerie Halvorson and Christopher of Fargo visited with the Guessfords there.

Tuesday afternoon coffee guests at the Daryl Lewis home were Mr. and Mrs. Martin Solseng, Jerry Altendorf and Mrs. Rick Ayers and Crystal. Debbie and Crystal were also supper guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Pete Solem, Andrew and Rebekka of Steiner were a week ago Monday evening visitors at the Roger Solem home.

Bonnie Delage Awarded $500 Soo Line Grant

Bonnie J. Delage, senior at Lincoln high school, is among 10 sons and daughters of Soo Line railroad employees who will be awarded $500 scholarships this fall and eligible to receive an additional $1,500 in grants during a four-year educational plan.

Bonnie is the daughter of Soo brakeman Harvey J. and Mrs. Rose Anne Delage of Thief River Falls.

Ten $500 distinguished and five $100 honorary scholarship winners were chosen from more than 33 dependents of railroad employees who applied for the grants. Selection was determined by assessment of community and personal achievements as well as scholastic abilities exhibited by the students. Review of all applications and selection of winners was performed by an independent committee of judges.

Each year, the Soo Line railroad awards scholarships to dependents of its employees in an effort to promote continued education and seeks to support community and individual growth through funding of local and national benefit programs.

NMLS Officers Names May 16 After Election

Keith L. Miller, a Moorhead attorney, has been elected president of the board of directors of Northwest Minnesota Legal Services, Inc., a non-profit corporation which provides free legal services to low-income and senior citizens in 22 counties in northwestern Minnesota.

Election was held at the annual joint meeting of the NMLS board of directors and advisory committee, May 16, in Moorhead.

Other officers elected were Bill Brummer, of Tri-Valley Opportunity Council in Crookston, vice president; Dennis Heitkamp, of Clay-Wilkin Opportunity Council in Moorhead, secretary; and Ed Shimeta, client representative from Battle Lake, treasurer.

Minn. On Stage Set At Roseau Museum Sat.

"Minnesota On Stage," a free Chautauqua program featuring scenes and monologues from seven recently produced plays about Minnesota, will be performed at the Roseau Museum library assembly room at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, June 9.

Actor-playwright Lance Belville and actress-singer Ruth Mackenzie will perform scenes and music including highlights from "Plain Hearts", about lives of Minnesota farm women from the 1890's to the 1920's, "Johnny Is My Darling and a Union Volunteer", about Minnesota in the civil war, and others.

Funding for the program has been made possible by a grant to the Minnesota Association of Library Friends from the Minnesota Humanities Commission in cooperation with the national endowment to the humanities.

A restricted farm license issued to 15-year-olds is for use within 20 miles of the parents' home during daylight hours only.

Rundell Says Soil Erosion Is Personal

"The last weeks have been windy and we are seeing more wind erosion taking place. I talked with a local farmer and pointed out that much of the soil we were seeing in the air was local soil, not North Dakota soil as he had indicated," states SCS technician Ralph Rundell.

"There was a report I read recently that talked about the interesting feeling about soil erosion. I call it the 'other guy' syndrome. The report said that most landusers agree and realize that there is a wind and water erosion hazard. The odd part is that a majority of these same people feel they do not have a problem but the 'other guy' does.

"This is contradictory as erosion is everybody's problem and the most unprotected soil has some degree of erosion hazard," Rundell added. "It will vary with soil texture, slope, organic matter, surface cover and land use. The texture and slope are not controlled by the landuser but the length of slope can be controlled. Organic matter content, soil structure and surface cover can be changed by the landuser. Wind erosion can be controlled to an acceptable level with planned farming methods.

"Take a look at your soil," Rundell suggested. "Are you sure you don't have erosion taking place that you can control? Is it the 'other guy' or is it each of us that uses the soil? Are we all doing our part to protect our soils or do we expect someone else to do the job? Take a look at your farmland after the winds we have had, then look in the mirror and ask what you can do! If we don't protect our soils the legislators may rule that we must do the job. Let's do it on our own," he added.

Call 294-6144 or stop in to visit about land protection methods and alternatives.

Contest Set At Erskine For Fiddlers

Erskine area community club's 10th annual amateur fiddlers contest is scheduled for Saturday, June 2 at the Erskine high school. Registration will begin at 6 p.m. with the contest starting at 8 p.m.

Rules of the Red River Valley fiddlers association will prevail. Three qualified judges will be judging the event. After the contest a dance will be held with the contestants playing the music. Cash prizes will be given in three categories: Junior — under age 35; middle, 35 to 64; and senior, 65 and over.

CORRECTION

The State Of Public Safety Good In 1983

State of public safety was very good in 1983 with declines in crime, fire deaths and traffic fatalities, according to Minnesota department of public safety commissioner Paul Tschida.

Tschida made the remarks as he greeted the county civil defense directors at their semi-annual seminar in St. Paul.

Tschida stated that fire deaths in Minnesota dropped to 67 in 1983. This compares to a 15-year average of 94 per year. "The 1983 statistics would have been even better if we had not had 19 fire deaths in December," Tschida said. He noted that 13 of the December deaths were related to wood burning stoves in eight fires.

In the area of crime Tschida said the total number dropped 9.2 per cent in 1983 compared to the previous year. However, he said crime is still a major problem in Minnesota and has increased more than 22 per cent since 1973. Drug sales and use continues to be a primary concern. He said the state is experiencing a change in the kind of drugs used from marijuana to more cocaine.

Tschida also said that while sexual exploitation and molestation of children has been around for years, people are more aware of it now. Because of the statewide problem, better training and communication will be necessary in future years to prosecute the guilty and protect the innocent.

Traffic deaths in Minnesota dropped to a level of nearly 40 years ago. "While 557 traffic deaths are far too many, reducing the annual toll by almost half from a high of 1,060 traffic deaths in 1968 is encouraging," Tschida said. He credited the 55 mile per hour speed limit and better DWI (driving while intoxicated) laws and enforcement for the decline. He said DWI laws are especially effective now that drivers are becoming convinced that the certainty of penalty in Minnesota is high and that the severity of the penalty is sufficient.

He cited a survey indicating drivers believed the loss of a driver's license was very important in discouraging drivers from driving if they had been drinking. Weather also plays an important role in traffic accidents and fatalities, he said.

"While accidents increased as winter weather moved into the state in mid-November and throughout December, fatalities dropped because vehicles traveled slower and collisions were less severe," he said. "It's kind of a strange phenomenon in a department such as ours that severe weather helps by reducing traffic fatalities and crime but increases the potential of fire deaths and the need for emergency services."

While the state of Minnesota has a high level of weather activity each year, Tschida said, 1983 was exceptional. Tornadoes numbered 20, three higher than average. The tornado that hit July 3 in east-central Minnesota had an extremely high wind velocity. Severe summer storms, not including the tornadoes, claimed three lives and injured 60 in the state. Heavy rains and standing water took a heavy toll on the state's agri-business. The encephalitis threat in western Minnesota required mosquito spraying in all communities over 200 population in 40 counties.

"There is always room for improvement," Tschida concluded. "A continuing problem for safety of Minnesotans is use of seat belts. Studies have shown the value of buckling up in saving lives and preventing serious injury, and yet only 14 per cent of our citizens are using seat belts. This is an area where we hope to see improvement in the future.

But we are very encouraged by our traffic fatality rate of 1.86 per 100 million miles of travel which may be the best in the nation in 1983; by the fire death toll which was half of the 134 recorded in 1976; by the decline in crime in rural and urban Minnesota. Also by the low injury and death rates from weather and other areas in which our emergency services division and local civil defense groups are involved."

Ladies Like The Look Of Linen

A spot on linen should have immediate attention...blot but don't rub. Either wash or dryclean.

With designers returning to natural fabrics — thanks to consumers' demand for comfort plus wearability — linen is enjoying a new resurgence in popularity.

Linen has long been a traditional summer fabric not only for its ability to "breathe," leaving the wearer in cool comfort, but also for its crisp, good looks.

Sometimes, linen has gotten a bad name because people think it wrinkles easily and is difficult to care for. Designers have tried to answer these situations with linens that have a crinkled look. However, many chic women prefer their linen with a smooth, crisp finish.

Linen does take some special care to look its best, according to experts at the International Fabricare Institute. For instance:

- Use a high temperature to press linen and use moisture in the form of a spray mist or damp pressing cloth. (Linens that have been treated with wrinkle-resistant finish may scorch easily and need a lower setting.)
- Although linen is washable, it can shrink considerably unless it's preshrunk in manufacture. Unless the label says "preshrunk," play it safe. Wash the garment in warm water, on a short, gentle cycle, and hang to dry. If the garment is heavy, place in dryer for about ten minutes to give it a head start.
- Another option is to have linen clothing drycleaned and professionally pressed. This gives results difficult to achieve in home care. Lined garments such as jackets should be drycleaned anyway to avoid disproportionate shrinkage of lining versus body.
- Have all pieces of a suit drycleaned at once to avoid color discrepancies.
- Look into linen blended with synthetics for a combination of comfort and ease in care while retaining the "natural" linen look.

NEWFOLDEN . . .

On Sunday, the 20th Lester and Lois Sorenson drove down to the Twin Cities for a couple of days and were house guests at the Harlan Knouf home there. On Tuesday morning the Knouf's treated Lester and Lois to a brunch in observance of Lois' birthday the 22nd. They arrived home that evening.

This past Wednesday Mr. and Mrs. Ray Jorgenson of Warren enjoyed a nice afternoon visit and coffee with Mr. and Mrs. Roy Roppe.

Evening visitors and coffee guests of Barb Skadsem on Monday, the 21st were Ruby and Carvel Gillund and Ronnie Benke.

Remember to put license tabs on your R.V. when pulling it out of storage.

Develop New Saw Chain To Cut Kickback

People with older model chain saws can now have a new safety tool in the form of the low-kick chain to reduce the risks of injury from chain saw kickback.

According to the U.S. consumer product safety commission, kickback is the sudden and potential violent rearward and-or upward movement of the chain saw often caused by interference with the chain moving around the tip of the guide bar. This sudden and unexpected kickback can propel the moving chain saw into contact with the operator, often with serious results.

Government safety experts say that recent improvements in the design of saw chains have brought about the "low kickback consumer replacement chain." CPSC advised owners of older model chain saws to take their saws to dealers and have them equipped with the new low kickback consumer replacement chains now on the market. The cost is comparable to that of conventional chains.

CPSC said some 120,000 persons need medical attention each year for chain saw related injuries; of these, some 60,000 receive emergency treatment at the hospital. Chain saw kickback was associated with one in five of these injuries.

The government safety agency offered the following tips to improve operator safety and to reduce the chances of an accident while using the chain saw:

— Always operate the saw with both hands gripping the handles.

— Avoid situations that could cause chain saw kickback. Do not allow the tip of the guide bar to touch any object during chain saw operation.

— Refer to the owner's manual for the proper grip of the saw; check for the proper placement of the thumb and fingers on the forward handle.

— Start all cuts at full throttle and cut at top speed until the cut is complete. Keep the body clear of the natural path the saw will take after completion of the cut.

— If necessary, adjust the throttle speed so that the chain does not move when the engine idles. If efforts at adjustment do not stop the chain from moving, the saw should not be used until it has been repaired by the dealer.

— Carry the saw carefully: the engine stopped. . . guide bar and chain pointed behind you. . . the muffler away from the body.

— Keep all safety features (chain brake, tip guard, etc.) operational at all times. Keep the chain sharpened and under proper tension.

— Refer to the owner's manual for recommendations covering the use, maintenance and storage of the chain saw.

Consumers wanting detailed information from the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission on chain saw safety should write Saws, Washington, D.C. 20207.

The first workers' compensation agreement was between Captain Kidd, the pirate, and his crew, according to "Labor Firsts in America," published by the U.S. Department of Labor. It said: "If any man should loose a Leg or Arm in ye said service, he should six hundred pieces of Eight, or six able slaves."

Seedlings are growing six times faster than the normal rate in a special chamber operated by a Minnesota reforestation project, reports National Wildlife magazine. By placing paper birch and white spruce seedlings under 1,000-watt arc lamps, the state project produces six-inch trees in about four months, compared to two years required in a nursery.

Knowledge Is Not Wisdom

Copyright 1984 Keister Advertising Service and Williams Newspaper Features Syndicate Inc. P.O. Box 8024, Charlottesville, Virginia 22906

- Saturday Acts 8:4-25
- Sunday 1 Peter 3:1-7
- Monday John 14:15-31
- Tuesday Acts 10:44-48
- Wednesday 1 John 4:7-21
- Thursday John 15:1-17
- Friday Revelation 21:9-22:5

They have worked hard for this moment, these graduates, and we're proud of them. They are starting life equipped with a vast store of knowledge that will help them in their chosen profession.

But the greatest school in the world cannot teach wisdom. Often, wisdom comes only through painful experience as the years pass. To some it never comes at all.

Life's ups and downs can break the spirit. . .unless one has an inner core of courage and an inner certainty of the presence and love of God. Church membership and Church teachings can help you gain these invaluable blessings and help you achieve a greater wisdom.

Low-Calorie Foods For Summer

As swimsuit weather arrives, you may want to lose a little weight. Often it is difficult to select foods low in calories, especially if you are eating in a restaurant or from a vending machine.

You don't have to be a slave to calorie tables. Instead, you can get clues about the number of calories in an item from the flavor and texture that sugar, fat, fiber and water give to foods.

If a food has one of the following characteristics, then it is relatively low in calories:

- Thin, watery or dilute
- Bulky, fibrous or coarse
- Watery-crisp, not greasy-crisp

If a food has one of the following characteristics, then it is relatively high in calories:

- Creamy-thick, oily or greasy-crisp
- Slick, smooth or gooey
- Sweet or sticky
- Compact or concentrated

Help your heart! As part of your low-calorie diet, buy chicken, turkey, fish, veal and other lean meats. For dessert, eat fresh fruits. You may want to top your fruit with low-fat, plain yogurt. Cubed melons are another summer treat. Of course, no packaged "convenience" food can equal an apple for true convenience.

try fresh vegetables as snacks try fresh fruit as desert
try chicken or turkey

Raw vegetables make excellent low-calorie snacks. Arranged in groups on a platter, serve asparagus spears, broccoli and cauliflower florets, carrot and green pepper strips, zucchini and celery sticks, and cherry tomatoes. You may want to serve your vegetables with a low-fat cottage cheese dip. Recipes for the dip and other low-calorie, low-fat dishes are in the American Heart Association Cookbook, which you may find at a local library or bookstore.

CREATIVE COOKING-THE BEST FOR LESS

With prices rising higher each day, it's no wonder that keeping within a budget and, at the same time, creating interesting meals becomes more of a challenge each week.

Why not perk up this week's menu with Saucy Chick'N Rice. It's not only delicious and simple to prepare, but also economical: only 61¢ per serving!

This appetizing dish owes its terrific taste to new Lipton Rice & Sauce-Chicken Flavor. Rice & Sauce combines a rich, creamy sauce with firm, yet fluffy rice and vermicelli. Simply add cut-up cooked chicken, peas and cheese. . .and in minutes. . .in just one saucepan. . .you can create this culinary delight — all for pennies a serving!

For another twist to your meals, try Lipton Noodles & Sauce. These great tasting side dishes are easy to prepare and contain superbly seasoned sauces with golden egg noodles.

If you'd like to learn how to create more delicious, budget pleasing recipes, request a copy of "Easy Economical Meals." Simply send a post card with your name, address, zip code to Easy Economical Meals-Noodles & Sauce, P.O. Box 4093-MR, Clifton, NJ 07012.

SAUCY CHICK'N RICE

2 cups water
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 pouch Lipton* Rice & Sauce-Chicken Flavor
2 cups cut-up cooked chicken
1 cup cooked peas
2 slices American cheese, cut up

In large saucepan, bring water, butter and rice & chicken flavor sauce to a boil. Simmer uncovered, stirring occasionally, 5 minutes. Stir in chicken and peas and cook an additional 5 minutes or until rice is tender. Stir in cheese until melted. Makes about 4 servings.

THE SUBJECT ISN'T HAIL. IT'S RISK.

Maybe insurance isn't on the top of your list of priorities. But "risk" should be. Years ago, many farmers and ranchers could self-insure themselves. But today their investments are too great. They have too much at stake.

Farming has become capital-intensive. And because it is, insurance has become a very sophisticated subject. "What can I afford to put at risk?" is a much more pressing question to ask your insurance counselor than, "How much does hail insurance cost?" What's at stake is so much more than your sweat equity and a chunk of your savings. Today it's more often business equity and credit payments.

So who can help you measure your risk? At Production Credit, we're qualified to help. We serve farmers exclusively, and we have the financial and agricultural know-how to assist you.

How much hail insurance is right for your operation? At Production Credit, we'll give you competitive rates and straight answers. Call us today about hail insurance. Ask us questions, and we'll ask a few of our own. We think our expertise can help.

Now you have three ways and up to three times as long to get your best return from wild oat control.

This year, more than ever, Carbyne® 2EC herbicide gives you the best return on investment from wild oat control. Because this year there are two new tank-mixes with Carbyne. These combinations cut your cost of wild oat control and open the application window clear up to the four- or five-leaf stage of wild oat.

Take a close look at your wild oat control options this season:

Carbyne 2EC herbicide or Carbyne tank-mixes cut costs and give returns you can take to the bank.

Use Carbyne at the two-leaf stage. This is your best choice for lowest cost wild oat control. This is the treatment that can return you up to twice as much as other post-emergence treatments (chart) for every $1 you invest in wild oat control in wheat. And your initial application cost is up to $6 less than other single post-emerge herbicides, too.

Tank mix Carbyne with Hoelon. Where you have heavy wild oat infestations with multiple flushes — or where weather keeps you out of the field at the two-leaf stage — you can still get excellent wild oat control at a cost-effective price. Tank mix Carbyne with Hoelon (see the label for recommended rates) and you can control wild oat from the 1½-leaf stage clear through the 4-leaf stage.

You'll still save. Cost for this brand new tank-mix treatment is up to $3 less than Hoelon applied alone, and the wild oat control is equally good.

Tank mix Carbyne with Avenge. If you're looking for control of heavy wild oat infestations in barley, winter wheat and many spring wheat varieties, this is the ideal tank-mix. It is up to $3 lower in cost than Avenge alone, yet you don't sacrifice wild oat control.

Carbyne plus Avenge provides the largest window of application against wild oat — from the 1½-leaf stage to the 5-leaf stage.

Pick the Carbyne program that fits your needs. Now you have the choices you need to beat wild oat — at a price that pays off. Pick the cost you want. Pick the application window that meets your needs. See your herbicide supplier for all the details on the Carbyne 2EC program that's right for you.

OSHA At It Again

Following editorial is from the Grafton (ND) Record:

The federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration has handed down some new guidelines for country elevators. The guidelines will mean added costs.

Cecil Jahraus discussed OSHA in a recent commentary in the Emmons County Record in Linton. His thoughts follow.

The federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration, much maligned a few years ago for its high-handed ways of imposing rules, is getting a lot of criticism again.

It's an old hand at being the subject of verbal attack by now, so you can expect OSHA will be tough to move from its newly-announced position aimed at grain elevators.

Grain dust has always been a nemesis in country grain houses, being the cause of most elevator fires. That kind of dust promotes spontaneous combustion. Another cause is ignition from live electrical current in a grain dust atmosphere.

Whether small or large explosions burn them or topple them, elevator fires are spectacular. We have watched several go up like tinder boxes.

And yet, OSHA uses very poor judgment. This is perhaps the worst possible year it could have chosen to put more financial burden on rural elevators, many of which are teetering between solvency and bankruptcy.

The elevator people to whom we've talked look at the new OSHA thrust as something that is apt to push many of their kind out of existence.

OSHA is calling for new regulations relating to dust control. That seems reasonable; but, as anybody knows who has spent time around a grain elevator, it's like making a ruling that there will be no more dirt clouding the water for the fish in the Oahe Reservoir. Most elevator managers see it as impossible.

Maybe, because they've lived with it most of their lives, they take it for granted.

Of course, the OSHA people are advocating the installation of dust removal systems. Other proposed regulations would relate to safety features with respect to handling equipment.

For the average elevator, that might be an investment of $100,000 to $200,000. And for many of those who are on the brink of oblivion, that requirement will mean going out of business.

Elevators see a greater need for a good fire insurance policy than a dust removal facility. But, then, OSHA probably sees dust as something like bird and rodent droppings, as a contaminant as well as a fire hazard.

Yet, if that's the case, OSHA is trespassing on Food and Drug Administration grounds.

The big terminal companies will welcome the upgrading of grain, because they will have to do somewhat less work in getting it ready for export or for food processing.

Somehow, we must throw out all the standards of the past century of handling grain in order to upgrade a staple food source.

I like my bread, toast and rolls now. Will it taste better and will I be better off when OSHA finishes this project?

Questions On Courts

The Fergus Falls Daily Journal carried two editorials recently on the topic of courts. The first, dealing with the World Court, was as follows:

There has been much moralistic moaning and groaning about how bad it is that the United States has refused to be bound by the jurisdiction of the International Court of Justice (known as the World Court). The standard line of righteous thought is that this country is losing the high moral ground by ducking a ruling by the tribunal on U.S. actions in Nicaragua.

Without getting into the question of whether the mining of Nicaraguan harbors is right or wrong, there is ample reason why the Reagan administration chose to avoid this court, which is not as lofty and awe-inspiring as its name suggests.

Certainly it does not make good sense for the United States to allow itself to be bound by a decision of a body of international jurists — which included judges from the Soviet Union, Poland and Syria. Also, this is a time when the U.S., UNESCO, and other international organizations are caldrons of anti-Americanism.

The Reagan administration has the obligation, we believe, to protect the United States' historic right of sovereignty. No foreign group should make decisions that bind us.

Closer to home, the situation involving suspension of district or county court judges by the state supreme court rated the following editorial comments in the Journal:

Now, again, the Minnesota Supreme Court has drawn unwelcome attention to itself. Since 1971, Minnesota has had a law requiring that judges be disqualified — with full pay — from carrying out their official duties while a recommendation for their removal or retirement is pending before the Supreme Court. The court receives such recommendations from the Board on Judicial Standards.

Last November, the board recommended removal of Hennepin County District Judge Crane Winton, and in March the board recommended removal of Ramsey County Judge John J. Kirby (the reasons are not important for our purposes here). Both judges have continued to handle their full duties. The law was called to the attention of the Supreme Court by a reporter for the Minneapolis Star and Tribune. In response, Chief Justice Douglas Amdahl said it's the Supreme Court's responsibility to carry out the law. He said if the law had been pointed out to the court earlier, "there would probably be a couple of judges suspended." Why, one is tempted to wonder, should laws that apply to the court have to be brought to its attention?

Milk And Cholesterol

The following comments are provided by Janet Herman, director of nutrition education for the Dairy, Food and Nutrition Council of Minnesota. The council is supported by Minnesota dairy farmers and responsible for nutrition education and research:

A recent study by the National Heart, Lung and Blood institute has sparked new concerns about cholesterol. Minnesota dairy products are again being linked to high levels of cholesterol and heart disease, not by the actual finding of the study, but unfortunately, by some of the misinterpretations that are being made.

First and foremost, the study on the relationship between blood cholesterol and heart disease was not a diet study. It was research on the effects of a drug called cholestyramine.

Despite this specific scope of the study, numerous media reports have interpreted the results to implicate not only diet in general, but also individual foods. Somehow the success of the drug cholestyramine on men with high cholesterol levels has been turned into blanket recommendations on diet to the general population. Dairy products especially have been wronged and it's time to set the record straight.

Products like whole milk and cheese are not high-cholesterol foods, as so often reported. According to the U.S. department of agriculture, a one-cup serving of milk (whole, two per cent, skim) or a 1-ounce serving of cheddar cheese, has less cholesterol than a three-ounce serving of fish or chicken, two foods normally included in a low-cholesterol diet.

Cutting out one particular food or group of foods is not the cure-all for heart disease, and it is wrong for anyone to convey this false sense of hope. It ignores other factors like genetics, obesity, smoking, high blood pressure and lack of exercise — all risk factors for heart disease.

Nor nearly 70 years, the National Dairy Council and its local units, like Dairy, Food and Nutrition Council of Minnesota, have recommended a balanced diet. It may seem old-fashioned, but it still holds true today; the key to good health through nutrition depends on variety and moderation. What you include in your overall diet is far more important than the cholesterol content of any single food.

Borrowed Nonsense:

The Texas couple was vacationing in Hawaii. While the man slept on the beach, his wife went wading in the surf. He awakened to find a noisy crowd and went to investigate. In the center of the crowd were his wife and a lifeguard.

"What are you doing?" he demanded. "This lady nearly drowned," the lifeguard said. "I'm giving her artificial respiration."

"Artificial," howled the Texan. "Give her the real thing! I can pay for it!"

REPORT

From The

Minnesota House of Representatives

by Rep. Wallace Sparby
District 1B

The 1984 legislative session was one of irony and contrast.

For instance, throughout the session, both in the media and in the legislature, there was bitter debate over the state's tax and business climate. Yet when it came time to vote on the House tax bill — including $355 million in tax relief — it passed unanimously. This was the first time in anyone's memory that a tax bill had passed without dissent.

Tax relief, indeed, dominated most other issues during the short, seven-week session.

Among the series of tax relief measures were a repeal of the 10 per cent income tax surcharge retroactive to Jan. 1, 1984; property tax reductions on the first $60,000 of commercial or industrial property; a reduction of the sales tax from six per cent to four per cent for businesses purchasing new machinery, logging equipment and special tools; and property tax relief for farmers and homeowners whose property tax bills go up more than 20 per cent in one year.

Under the property tax relief plan for farmers and homeowners, the state will pay 10 per cent of any property tax increases in 1984 and 1985 which exceed 20 per cent of the previous year's taxes. In 1986 and 1987, the state will pay 50 per cent of any increase above 12 and one-half per cent.

Many of the tax relief programs were made possible by a projected $900 million surplus. The budget surplus provided a sharp contrast to the previous four years in which the state accumulated nearly $1.2 billion budget shortfalls and pared state programs to the bone.

Suddenly, Minnesota found its financial house in order, and was able to cut taxes and restore funding to programs badly hurt by the severe recession.

One area that benefitted from restored funding was education. The education bill raised school aids from $1,475 to $1,585 per pupil unit. It also established new programs geared toward excellence in our schools and reinstated summer school.

Despite the prominence of tax relief, there were a number of other issues addressed by the 1984 legislature.

One of these was gambling. You probably read a lot about some gambling bills being considered by the legislature.

A proposal to establish a state lottery by putting the question to voters in November election was defeated, although it is likely to be back for consideration next year.

We did, however, pass legislation to protect charitable institutions and the players who take part in their games. Regulation will be done consistently on a statewide basis, rather than by local governments.

On the other hand, local governments will be the key players in a soil conservation bill adopted by the legislature this session. Under this plan, counties will develop and enforce a soil conservation ordinance based on a model state ordinance; enforcement will begin in 1989.

In other areas, state highway construction and public transit benefitted from a measure which directs the transfer of motor vehicle excise taxes from the state general fund to a fund dedicated to transportation needs.

Public transit was also affected by the creation of a regional transit board to oversee long range planning for public transit needs in the metropolitan area, particularly for the suburban areas. The new regional board was created over the current Metropolitan Transit commission (MTC), and the scope of the MTC will be narrowed to operation only.

Another transportation proposal — making the use of seat belts mandatory — was defeated.

Other action of the 1984 session included passage of a major pension bill known as "the rule of 85." Essentially, this bill allows public employees to retire early, thus opening their positions to younger members of the work force who would draw lower salaries.

This is only a brief rundown of what was accomplished this year. The real significant accomplishment of this session, and the 1983 session, was a series of programs which returned financial stability to state government, restored our credit rating, improved education and the environment, and put Minnesotans back to work.

As Governor Perpich said in his summary of the 1983-84 legislature: "We have completed a two-year legislative cycle which will go down as one of the most remarkable in history."

Endearing terms, indeed—especially if you happen to be the next in line for the shower!

Shower after shower and hour after hour, you'll get hot water fast with today's new high efficiency gas water heaters.

Did you know that your water heater is the second largest energy-consuming appliance in your home? Stop and think; how many times each day do you use hot water?

Did you know that gas hot water heaters have a higher recovery rate than electric models do? A 40-gallon gas water heater will provide more hot water than a 52-gallon electric water heater. Naturally, family size, the temperature of incoming water supply and other variables are factors in determining overall recovery rates as well as overall operating costs. But on the average when you have a gas hot water heater, you can save as much as $10 to $12 each month.

Talk about endearing terms! With the money you save you can take in a movie and still have a little left over for popcorn!

So, the next time you're in hot water—because there isn't any—think of natural gas. Check the Yellow Pages for the name of the dealer nearest you who offers High Efficiency gas water heaters. Compare, and see for yourself why natural gas is the most economical way to keep you in hot water.

| Efficiency | Gas Water Heater *Therms/Annual Cost | Electric Water Heater Kilowatt Hrs./Annual Cost | Annual Savings Gas vs Electric |
|---|---|---|---|
| Low Efficiency | 438/yr. $274.19 | 7,916/yr. $405.30 | $131.11 |
| High Efficiency | 277/yr. $173.40 | 5,268/yr. $269.72 | $96.32 |

Last Sunday, the 20th Curt and Elaine Thompson drove into Thief River Falls where they spent a lovely afternoon with Lisa Wilson, Jeremy, Jayme and Amber. Curt treated them all to take out supper from McDonald's and enjoyed it at Lisa's home.

Monday afternoon company and coffee guests of Ellen Hjelle were Mr. and Mrs. Zak Hamberg of St. Paul, who had come up for the funeral services for Ole Farstad.

Victor Notes Birthday

Victor Ekman was honored on his 80th birthday which was May 18th. Those coming throughout the week with gifts, wishes and goodies to help him celebrate were Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Waldrons of Minneapolis, who were overnight guests Saturday evening. They brought a lovely large birthday cake baked and decorated "80 years dad". Others were an oldest granddaughter, Mrs. Dan (Marge) Gilbert of Minneapolis, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Knutson and Kelsie of Colorado. (This is the first time the Ekmans had seen their great-granddaughter Kelsi). Also Mr. and Mrs. Norma Ueland, Ellen Hjelle, Torkel Forland, and Grace Hjelle. A delicious krum kaka was sent over from Alice Ueland who was not able to be there. Victor enjoyed the many guests, gifts, lunch and visits from everyone.

Ron and Lorna Hanson and girls of Thief River Falls and Howard and Donna Peterson brought early Mother's day greetings and gifts to Mabel Hanson Saturday evening. Then Mabel and the Hansons attended the Life Line Christian center that evening and enjoyed the Jorden River band.

Leslie Folden stopped in for coffee on Tuesday evening at the Basil Elseth home.

Birthday

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Roppe were guests to a lovely birthday supper on Thursday evening at the Orlin Roppe home of Winger in honor of their granddaughter, Gretchen, who was four years old. They also enjoyed a birthday cake. The honor guest enjoyed her cards and gifts.

STRAIGHT TALK

Albert D. Hattis, Associate Professor of Business and Holder of the Schwan Endowed Chair for Free Enterprise, Southwest State University, Marshall

I travelled 150 miles through a thick fog to an airport to catch a plane. Once at the airport, I found that I was still "fogged in." With lots of time, while waiting, I walked around. At the terminal entrance were four Continental Airlines pilots picketing with signs that read, "Now Continental Airlines flies damaged planes. A union pilot can say no!" I didn't understand that, so I asked what it meant. I got some smiles but no answers because no pilot will take off in a defective plane with his own life on the line.

I also asked these pickets why they struck. They didn't appreciate Continental going bankqupt and cancelling their attractive union contract with its high wages and benefits. They claimed Continental had gone bankrupt to break their union. They did not know that an impartial judge had determined that the company was running out of money and had to act. Without that bankruptcy, the labor cost would have continued to exceed 40 per cent of the costs (almost double the profitable competition), and the airline would have been out of business.

These pilots did not realize that their airline was sinking, and their jobs were sinking, too. They want a return to the good old days of high unearned wages and benefits, ticket prices that no one can afford, and empty planes.

These pilots are not alone. In Lorain, Ohio, the president of the local shipyard workers union was notified that his shipyard had lost 30 million dollars over the last five years. To be able to compete and survive, the company asked its workers to take a $2.50 per hour cut to $7.50 per hour. The company also needed changes in work rules that had slowed production and increased costs.

The local union president in Lorain thought that a cut in pay and work rule modifications to eliminate shipyard losses was a bargaining ploy. His answer, "You're ridiculous." The employer responded by closing the shipyard. There are now 1,500 unemployed shipyard workers, primarily because they did not understand the business "facts of life."

Those Continental pilots and the Lorain shipyard workers didn't realize that we live in a competitive world. They did not realize that when our wages and productivity make our costs higher than those of others, we can not sell our products. When we can not sell what we make, our jobs, benefits and security disappear. It's that simple!

Yet, as I travel, I find steel workers, auto workers, miners and many others who are adopting a motto, "Restore in '84", an effort to force wages and benefits back to the levels that brought on the current disaster. Labor costs were going up about 11 per cent each year in the "good old days" versus just 2.4 per cent last year. Since we increased our ability to produce by more than 2.4 per cent, that wasn't inflationary and did not make us less competitive.

Whether you are a Ronald Reagan fan or not, you have to respect his political courage since no president in the last three decades has had the guts to face up to this issue. Being competitive is a necessity for our national survival. Getting raises that our economy could not afford meant that each of us contributed our share to skyrocketing inflation and the most recent recession. You can be sure that any "Restore in '84" effort will bring back inflation, a recession and more unemployment.

No, we don't make long term progress over many years and permanently acquire a right to higher wages and benefits. We make progress on a daily basis, having to earn those wages and benefits. If they aren't earned and we don't remain competitive, they will disappear.

That's the most important class lesson we need to learn in our schools!

Driving home through the fog, two thoughts occurred to me. First, in this political year there's lots of fog being generated by politicians who will promise anything for a vote, but this fog should not obliterate the fact that we must earn our way. Second, I passed an interesting sign, "Some people grow up. Some just grow old." I hope that those Continental pilots, Lorain shipyard workers, and all of us are growing up and not just getting older.

That's Straight Talk!

AMERICA'S LEADERS

The outstanding scientists honored this year are (from left to right) Dr. LaSalle D. Leffall, Jr., chairman of the department of surgery at the Howard University College of Medicine; Dr. Reatha Clark King, president of Metropolitan State University in Minneapolis; and Dr. Walter E. Massey, director of the Argonne National Laboratory and professor of physics and vice president for research at the University of Chicago.

An internationally recognized cancer surgeon, a college president, and a leading science administrator have been selected for the 1984 Exceptional Black Scientists Poster Series.

Honored for their outstanding achievements in science are Dr. LaSalle D. Leffall, Jr., Dr. Reatha Clark King, and Dr. Walter E. Massey.

The posters are distributed nationally by CIBA-GEIGY Corporation to educational and community organizations. The posters are made from portraits done by artist and illustrator Ernest Crichlow.

The Exceptional Black Scientists Poster Program was introduced in 1980 to help acquaint the general public with the accomplishments of some outstanding scientists and to encourage more minority students to pursue careers in science and medicine.

The large, color portraits are appropriate for science fairs, black history exhibits, and classroom displays. Copies of the 1984 posters may be obtained by writing to: Corporate Relations Department, CIBA-GEIGY Corporation, Ardsley, N.Y. 10502.

Study Club Enjoys

The study club celebrated 25 years of affiliation with the General Federation of Women's clubs Saturday with a silver tea at the Newfolden community center. President Irene Eveland was in charge of a short program which included a history of the club and letters from former members read by Lucille Tunheim and musical selections by Kathy Rokke, Delores Bakke and Vernette Stokke. A former member Mrs. Wayne Ulferts of Warren reminisced about early years in the organization. Members of the club took part in a skit about club members hats. Guest speaker of the afternoon was Mrs. Warren Saetre of Thief River Falls, who is president-elect of the Minnesota Federation of Women's club. Pat Ueland introduced past presidents that were present, Marge Busch, Jeannie Ulferts, Lucille Tunheim, Irene Eveland, Pat Ueland, Mary Anderson and Crystal Green. She also noted that Marge Busch is also past president of the Seventh District of the NFWC and is also state division chairman for Family Living in the home life department at the close of the program. Mrs. Eveland conducted installation of new officers: president Lucille Tunheim, vice president Mary Anderson, and secretary-treasurer Kathy Rokke. Former members attending from a distance were: Mrs. Charles (Opal) Fisher, Annandale, Mrs. Dennis (Florence) Borman of Montevideo, Mrs. Curtis (Donna) Tonneson, Minot, N.D. and Mrs. Eddie (Marilyn) Mounger of Hawley.

Gregg Nelson was one of the three confirmands who was confirmed on Sunday, 20th at the 10:30 worship services at the Westaker Free Lutheran church. Following the services his parents, Gary and Karen Nelson had as their dinner guests his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Nels C. Nelson and Gregg's godparents Mr. and Mrs. William Olson. An open house was held in his honor from 2 to 5 p.m. with many relatives and friends in attendance.

Reminder

The pre-teen Bible camp at the Galilee camp at Lake Bronson will begin on June 5 to 10, 1984 and will close on Sunday noon. There will be evening services every night at 8 o'clock with Pastor Verle Dean. There will also be a dinner served after the Sunday morning services and this is open for the public with a free will offering.

Sunday evening Mr. and Mrs. Morris Moen were among those who were invited to the Richard Moen home after the baccalaureate services at the MCC high school. For evening luncheon Mrs. Richard Moen had baked and decorated a lovely book cake with the names of six of the graduates on, namely Lee Moen, Donald Sourdif, Shanna Brodersen, Bradley Laidley, Stacey Gonshorowski, and Pam Pederson.

Shelly Hodne brought over a pizza for Lisa Wilson, Jeremy, Jayme and Amber on Tuesday and spent the afternoon and part of the evening there, having a lovely visit with them.

The Wesley Bring family were among many who attended open house honoring Elmer Carlson on his 80th birthday at the Bethania Free Lutheran church.

Della Elseth enjoyed a nice visit over a cup of coffee with grandpa and grandma the Ben Elseths on Thursday afternoon.

Spending a lovely day on the farm with grandpa and grandma the Morris Moens on Tuesday was granddaughter Kim Austad, Abby and Alissa of Thief River Falls.

Legislative Reports Are Given

STATE LEGISLATORS spoke and answered questions at a legislative report session for the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce Thursday noon at the Best Western inn. Sen. LeRoy Stumpf (left) of Plummer and Rep. Wally Sparby (right) of Thief River Falls carried the program in the absence of Mark Dayton, commissioner of energy and economic development. Dayton had been scheduled to appear but was unable to be present.

Sen. LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer and Rep. Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls reported on the recently completed Minnesota legislative session Thursday noon at a legislative report luncheon sponsored by the legislative affairs committee of the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce. The luncheon was held in the Best Western inn.

Mark Dayton, Minnesota commissioner of energy and economic development had been scheduled to speak at the meeting but was unable to attend. Jerry Wigness served as master of ceremonies for the program.

Both legislators commented on what they considered to be success of the 1984 legislative session and answered questions on several matters from the group in attendance.

Sen. Stumpf noted the $15 million allocation to the railroad rehabilitation fund and added that $12 million is needed for rehabilitation of the Burlington Northern line between Red Lake Falls and Warroad. He also commented on a change in structure which will provide for license fees being used for work on roads and highways.

He said that a $400,000 increase was made in the funding which counties will receive from consolidated conservation lands, located primarily in Roseau, Marshall and Beltrami counties. And he said further attention is being paid to the Winger dam project, a potential effort to create a water control and recreational area in a valley near Winger.

In response to questions, Rep. Sparby reemphasized his opposition to reduction of the size of the legislature as had been proposed at the 1984 session. He said he didn't believe size reduction would reduce costs since such efforts have not proved cost effective in states such as California.

Rep. Sparby also reacted to Gov. Perpich's recent comments on the lack of need for annual legislative sessions. "I got so mad I called him up," Sparby said. "I firmly believe that a business operation the size of the state of Minnesota's deserves and needs annual sessions and annual budgets."

He also responded to a question on hazardous waste activity — or the lack thereof — by stating that emphasis is being placed on reduction, recycling and incineration, as well as development of disposal sites outside of Minnesota. He said that Texas has identified 17 sites which have no groundwater problems and could possibly handle hazardous waste disposal from other states.

NW Counties To Share $854,515 Jobs Program

Seven northwestern Minnesota counties have received an additional $854,515 as part of a $30 million increase in Minnesota's emergency jobs program, according to Joe Samargian, program coordinator.

Minnesota department of economic security has received the funds for Kittson, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau counties.

The new statewide appropriation was added by the 1984 Minnesota legislature to an original 1983 appropriation of $70 million for creation of jobs under the Minnesota emergency employment development (MEED) act.

Samargia said that the additional funds will allow the jobs program to place another 6,000 people in six-month jobs by May 31, 1985, when the period for accepting new enrollments ends. The new appropriation allows the MEED program to continue operations through Dec. 31, 1985.

The program began in July of 1983 with an enrollment target of between 12,500 and 14,000 people. As of May 18, 1984, MEED had placed 13,300 people in jobs. A total of 67,839 applicants were found to be eligible.

Private sector jobs accounted for 44.6 per cent of the placements since the program began, surpassing the original goal of a 40 per cent placement rate in the private sector. A total of 1,948 participants had acquired full-time unsubsidized jobs as of May 18.

The current goal is for private sector jobs to account for 60 per cent of the placements made with the additional appropriation, Samargia said.

Of those currently enrolled, 52.3 per cent are employed in the private sector. For each person in the program, the state subsidizes up to $4 an hour in wages and up to $1 an hour in fringe benefits, for up to 1,040 hours over 26 weeks. The time can extend to 52 weeks for workers also enrolled in a job-training program.

Legislators To Explain System Of Property Tax

(Editor's Note: Because of the concern and importance of property tax levels in northwest Minnesota, area legislators Jim Tunheim of Kennedy and Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls prepared a two-part series on the issue which they are presenting jointly to citizens throughout District 1. This week the first part of the series outlines the history of property taxes from their inception to 1984. Next week the local lawmakers will give their explanation of the 1984 property tax provisions passed by the legislature.)

The phrase "property tax relief" usually prompts a lot of questions about how the system works and what the state's involvement is.

Let us emphasize that the state is not in the business of collecting property taxes. That is the function of local governments. The state receives no revenue from property tax collections. The state, in fact, funds many programs intended to keep the lid on property taxes. Those programs worked well during the 1970s but were put on hold, in some instances, during the recent recession when state revenue collections declined.

Originally, property taxes were the only source of revenue for government, starting back before Minnesota became a state. At that time, and up until about 1920, property taxes remained the only means of funding government services. Then the legislature began to enact laws to provide other bases for revenue. . . In 1920 the motor vehicle license; in 1925 the gasoline tax; in 1933 the individual and corporate income tax; and in 1967 the sales tax.

During the decade of the 1960s, inflationary effects on property values escalated property taxes to the point where farmers and homeowners were hard-pressed to pay them. Some senior citizens and others on fixed incomes were even in danger of losing their homes or having to sell them.

Believing property taxes to be one of the most regressive of all taxes, the legislature made the policy decision to step in to alleviate the problem. That decision was based on the premise that state revenue resources, such as income and sales taxes, are much more widely based and are in many instances, such as income tax, related to ability to pay.

That is to say, when a family's income goes down, so does its income tax. But that same family's property taxes stay the same or may even increase, despite income level.

A rather complex system of state funding developed. It involved changes in the school aids formula and dramatic increases in that aid. At the same time, restrictions were placed on the levying power of local governments and state aids to counties, cities and towns increased. In addition, the legislature had initiated such programs as homestead credit, agriculture credit and property tax refunds based on each family's income level and the size of their property tax bill.

By 1980, property taxes in Minnesota accounted for only 30 per cent of the revenues received by local governments.

Today, 75 per cent of all taxes collected by the state, mainly from income and sales taxes, are given back to local communities in the form of property tax relief to individuals, aids to schools and local governments, and other transfer payments.

However, two things happened in the late 1970s and early 1980s to reverse this shift away from property taxes. The state elected a governor in 1978 who stated publicly that property taxes were too low and that more of the burden of paying for government services should be put back on the property tax and taken off the income tax. His tax programs, enacted in 1979, incorporated this philosophy.

On top of income tax cuts made that year, the recession substantially reduced the amount of sales and income taxes collected by the state, making it necessary to drastically cut the amount of money sent back to school districts, cities and counties for property tax relief.

However, the 1984 tax bill holds out significant promise for the future of Minnesota taxpayers. After years of very moderate growth, property taxes in the last year jumped alarmingly because of the factors mentioned. In order to correct this situation, the 1984 legislature substantially in-

Bethlehem To Dedicate New Wing This Sun.

Bethlehem Lutheran church in Newfolden will be dedicating their new sanctuary and office wing with a festive worship service at 10:30 a.m. Sunday, June 10. Addition and remodeling project was approved by vote of the congregation in 1981.

Bishop Gilbert Lee, Northern Minnesota District, American Lutheran Church, will preside over the dedication and give the sermon. Bethlehem's pastor, Rev. Stephen J. Estrem will lead the congregation in worship. Special music will be provided by three choirs and the men's group, in addition to congregational singing. A special banner with the theme, "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God" will be displayed.

Following the service a dinner will be served by the Alma Lutheran church women and greetings from previous pastors will be read.

New addition includes a sanctuary, large narthex, library, pastor's office, secretary's office, new washrooms and a mechanical room. Remodeling makes the building accessible to the handicapped and provides the congregation with a new fellowship hall, kitchen and nine Sunday school rooms.

MCC Students Win Marshall SWCD Contest

Cyndi Ness and Karla Hanson of Marshall County Central school in Newfolden took first and second place, respectively, in senior division of the annual essay contest conducted by Marshall soil and water conservation district on the theme "Save Our Farmland."

Students from five schools participated in this year's Marshall SWCD contest.

Winners were presented with potted Black Hills spruce.

Bd. Of Review To Meet Wed.

Local Woman Dies In Crash Sunday Night

Mrs. Ray (Christine) Hedlund, 45, general manager of the Credit Bureau of Thief River Falls, was declared dead at the scene following two-car accident reported to the Minnesota highway patrol at approximately 10:20 p.m.

According to the highway patrol, Mrs. Hedlund was alone, driving north on highway 59, approximately 10 miles south of Thief River Falls, when she apparently lost control of the 1984 Oldsmobile four-door and skidded broadside in front of a southbound 1975 Dodge two-door, driven by Carl Flaten, 59, Oklee.

As a result of the collision, both vehicles were total losses. Hedlund was declared dead at the scene, and Palmer Sistad, 69, St. Hilaire, a passenger in the Flaten vehicle, was taken to Northwestern hospital for observation of a leg injury. Flaten was uninjured.

Funeral services for Christine Hedlund are pending at the Belmont Funeral home.

School Board Meets Tonight

Jean Petterson presented her with a gift during the evening program.

DON HERMANSON, left, auto mechanics instructor at the Thief River Falls area vocational technical institute for 14 years, was honored by the Thief River Falls education association at its annual teacher appreciation dinner at the American Legion club rooms. Hermanson was presented with a gift during the evening program by Norm Halsa.

DOLORES BAKKE, right, cosmetology instructor at Thief River Falls area vocational technical institute for 19 years, was among the retiring teachers recognized by Thief River Falls education association at its annual teacher appreciation dinner in the American Legion club rooms. Presenting her with a gift was Edith Etter.

Program for the conference on emerging groundwater issues in northwest Minnesota to be conducted June 13 at Northland community college in Thief River Falls has been announced by the sponsoring Agassiz Environmental Education council.

Registration will be conducted from 8:30 to 9 a.m., followed by an introducton and welcome by Larry Seymour, director of the division of waters for the Minnesota department of natural resources. First session from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. will consider the "Basics of Groundwater" with Daniel Gillies, supervisory hydrologist with the U.S. Geological survey, as speaker.

"How Do the Basics Apply to the Red River Valley?" will be discussed by Sarah Tufford, hydrology administrator with the DNR division of waters. After a noon lunch, the 1 p.m. topic of "Emerging Groundwater Policy Issues" will be discussed by Dr. Joseph Rossillon, executive director of the Freshwater Foundation.

"How Does Groundwater Get Contaminated?" will be the topic examined at 1:30 p.m. by Mike Hansel, supervisor of the superfund unit of the Minnesota pollution control agency. "Abandoned Wells and Well Protection" will be aired from 2 to 2:30 p.m. by Ron Thompson, senior hydrologist with the Minnesota department of health.

Discussion at 2:45 p.m. will be on the "Effects of Groundwater Pollutants on Human Health." Small group sessions will be conducted from 3:30 until adjournment at 4 p.m.

Prepaid registration of $10 is required for attendance at the conference and must be sent by June 6 to the Northwest Regional Development Commission, 425 Woodland, Crookston, MN 56716. Checks should be made payable to Friends of MEEB. Registration information should include the registrant's name, address, home and work phone numbers and occupation or interest area.

Co-sponsors of the conference are the counties of Kittson, Roseau, Polk, Marshall, Norman and Pennington, Agassiz environmental education council, department of natural resources, Minnesota association of soil and water conservation districts, Minnesota Groundwater association and the Northwest regional development commission.

Groundwater is the source of drinking water for two-thirds of the state's residents — approximately 2.6 million people. While quality of groundwater is becoming an increasingly important issue, few people know much about it. Ten per cent of the municipal water wells tested by the Minnesota department

STRAIGHT TALK

— by —

Albert D. Hattis, Associate Professor of Business and Holder of the Schwan Endowed Chair for Free Enterprise, Southwest State University, Marshall

Bureaucracy is defined as government by officials who are rigid and arbitrary. It is symptomatic of governments, big and small. It can drive people crazy.

A young high school student had a part-time summer job typing mailing labels. She worked a few hours each day for the minimum wage. Upon receiving her first pay check, she noticed state and federal income tax deductions based on the assumption that she was a full-time full-year employee. She asked her employer how she could avoid having to file a tax return for a refund. She signed the form he prepared.

Six months after she was off her summer job, she received a six page letter from the Internal Revenue service, impossible for her to understand except where it mentioned a $500 assessment. There was a contact name and long distance phone number. She tried calling and got a recorded message indicating that no one ever answers the phone, but messages are routinely received and handled at the convenience of the IRS during the day. As a full-time student, she was at school when the IRS is at work.

The young lady turned this matter over to her Dad, who then called the IRS, leaving a name, phone number, and times when he would be available for calls. He didn't get a response but his daughter did get a second threatening letter.

In a large city, I had a bid that I wanted to hand carry. The proposal requester was on an upper floor of a skyscraper. I boarded the elevator, one of many in the lobby. A man entered with me. When the elevator stopped at the floor I wanted, I got out. After my delivery I found the elevator still there, with the other occupant tightening the frame where he had just inserted a renewal inspection certificate. We started down to the lobby.

Somewhere between the second and third floor, as the elevator declined, it stopped. The power was still on. The ventilating system was working. The elevator wasn't! After a few minutes of emergency button pushing (which merely operated an alarm bell no one appeared to hear), we introduced ourselves. My companion was one of the city elevator inspectors. Each day he received a pack of continuous form inspection certificates, already prepared, to be signed and installed after he had personally been a rider in the elevator. The certificate piles were high, so that he had a lot of visits every day. He assured me that we had nothing to worry about, even though no one responded to the emergency signal, because the city code required an emergency telephone in each elevator.

With no response to the alarm, he opened the telephone compartment door. It was obvious that there was no telephone, and never had been. Staring at the approved inspection certificates stuffed into the frame, we both observed the pile of certificates verifying that the building code, requiring an emergency telephone, had been checked out.

A long time government agent visited a company for a compliance review. There were some questions that he left, expecting answers to be provided by phone, so that he could complete his report. Each time the company official tried calling, there was no response in an office with hundreds of employees. A few weeks later this government agent phoned the company to get the information he needed. When asked why it had been impossible to get through on the telephone, he pointed out that his supervisor had been asked to cut costs. The supervisor had noticed that the telephones had both lights and bells to indicate there were incoming calls. He cut out the noisy bells, leaving only the lights to show that a caller was on the line. There was one problem; all initial answering at this agency was done by disabled employees who were blind. They could hear bells, but they could not see lights!

A car was being driven on a highway. A tropper stopped the car claiming it was going 59 miles per hour. This was a government vehicle where the cruise control had been set at 53 miles per hour, and the speedometer had reflected an actual speed of from 50 to 53 miles per hour. Because of the number of traffic violations, the driver found that trying to defend himself from the charge would have been costly, since you could sit in court for a day or more waiting for your case to come to trial. Furthermore, he found that there was a presumption that you were guilty, so that conversation or explanations were meaningless.

These are just a sampling of incidents that make me feel that government has gotten too big and is too distant from its citizens. The bureaucracy has become to rigid and arbitrary, and many of our "employees" seem to forget that they work for us, we don't work for them.

That's Straight Talk!

Legislators Explain Tax On Property

creased the amount of money for the agriculture credit.

It also caps the percentage of increase that homeowners and homesteading farmers will face, in addition to providing more relief for small businesses.

We are both sorry the legislature could not do more this year, but there just was not enough money to go further and still lift the 10 per cent surtax, give businesses some tax relief, and keep a budget reserve to protect our state's fiscal stability. We anticipate more will be done with property tax relief next year if the economy continues to flourish.

Next week, we will take a more detailed look at what the legislature did this year to curb rising property taxes, including increasing the ag credit, local government aids, improved assessment ratios and increased targeting.

Your input and attention on this issue is most welcome.

Persons attending the conference will hear about where groundwater is found, how it moves, where it goes, how groundwater and surface water interact and how groundwater becomes contaminated.

The Thief River Falls conference is the second to be carried out by the co-sponsors. The first was held April 3 in Brainerd and attracted over 250 people.

PBS To Show Merton Film

"Merton: A Film Biography of Thomas Merton" will premiere nationwide on the public broadcasting system on Tuesday at 10 p.m.

During his 27 years as a Trappist monk, Thomas Merton became known as a spiritual writer and mystic as well as an outspoken social critic. In the course of his 53 years, Merton wrote some 60 books and hundreds of articles, essays and letters on a wide range of subjects.

Correction

An article carried in the Wednesday edition of the Times, dealing with summer programming at Northwest regional library, apparently was interpreted by some people as saying that sponsorship of children's storytime was being discontinued for the year.

This is not the case. Northland community college will be operating the program at the library for the summer. The library intends to resume operation of the program in September.

JUST A BLUR, this poodle, brought to visit residents of Oakland Park nursing home during "Pet Day" by Mary Numedahl, director of nursing, just couldn't stand still as long as anyone had her ball. She kept Clardina Terrian busy throwing her toy, rushing among the wheel chairs to fetch it, to the delight of other residents such as Alice Jeame (in background).

Index Of Farm Prices Remains Unchanged

The mid-May index of prices received by Minnesota farmers at 147 was unchanged from the April index but nine per cent higher than the index a year ago, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service. Prices showed gains for all crops except oats, which held steady.

Prices dropped for livestock commodities except lambs and wool, which were higher. Prices received by farmers for corn were the highest since November of 1974; soybeans, since June of 1977; barley, since June of 1981; wool, since February of 1982. The sunflower price was the highest since monthly estimates began in October of 1979.

The crops index rose three per cent to 156 during the month. This was 21 per cent above the index a year earlier. The mid-May prices and the changes from last month are: All wheat, $3.94 per bushel, up eight cents from the revised April estimate; corn, $3.21 per bushel, up six cents; oats, $1.70 per bushel, unchanged; barley, $2.49 per bushel, up four cents; soybeans, $8.13 per bushel, up 39 cents; flaxseed, $7.10 per bushel, up 20 cents.

Potatoes averaged $6.10 per hundredweight for all grades, up 10 cents. All hay was up $2 per ton to $70; alfalfa hay, $74 per ton, was steady and other hay at $59 per ton was up $4. All sunflowers at $18.90 per hundredweight were up $3.30 from the revised April price. Dry edible beans were up 90 cents to $17.50 per hundredweight.

The meat animal index at 140 was one per cent below last month and one per cent below a year ago. Beef cattle averaged $50.30 per hundredweight, down $1.40. Calves were down $1.30 to $56.60 per hundredweight. Sheep brought $12.10 per hundredweight, down $2.50. Lambs were up $1.60 to $63.70 per hundredweight.

The dairy index fell one per cent during the month to 142. This was three per cent below the index last year. The preliminary milk price at $12.50 per hundredweight was down seven cents from the revised April price.

The poultry and egg index at 128 was down 16 per cent from last month but was 24 per cent above a year ago. Turkeys were 41 cents per pound liveweight, down three cents from a month earlier. Table market eggs brought 57 cents per dozen for all grades in mid-May, down 22 cents from mid-April but nine cents above a year earlier.

Farmers Sell Small Grains At Record Pace

Spurred by the most favorable crop prices in four years or more, Minnesota farmers continued marketings of grain and oilseeds at a record pace for the fourth straight month, with April terminal elevator receipts up by 31 per cent and shipments 34 per cent higher than a year ago, according to Agriculture Commissioner Jim Nichols.

Area farmers have grossed an estimated $790 million from crop marketings through Minnesota terminal and rural unit train sub terminals during the first four months of 1984. That is an estimated 36 per cent gain in cash flow from crop sales compared to the same period of 1983.

More than 108 million bushels exported left Minnesota by rail, 35 per cent more than in 1983. Terminal elevators accounted for more than 178.2 million bushels and rural sub-terminals for more than 33 million bushels of the four month total of more than 211.2 million bushels of farm crops moved into export marketing channels.

Corn is scoring the highest gains in this year's farm marketing traffic, with the 74.2 million bushels moved through April, an 83 per cent increase, and the gross farm value of $230.2 million a 125 per cent gain compared to a year ago.

Soybeans, barley and oats also posted sharp increases in volume and gross farm cash flow for the period. Wheat and rye traffic and farm value dropped from levels of last year.

But wheat still accounted for the biggest share of the gross value, $270.5 million for the 71.8 million bushels received by the terminal elevators. Compared to a year ago, that volume was six per cent lower, cash receipts only one per cent less.

Soybean farmers grossed an estimated $177.2 million from terminal and rural unit train movement of 23.9 million bushels. Compared to a year ago that volume was up by 35 per cent and the value by 77 per cent.

Terminal barley movement exceeded 19 million grossing farmers $45.5 million, respective increases from a year ago by 33 per cent and 72 per cent.

All time high market prices for scarce sunflower seed attracted farm sales of 10.9 million bushels, five per cent less than a year ago, but the gross value of $42.6 million represented a 48 per cent gain from 1983 sunflower marketings through April.

Urge Dairymen To Apply For Certification

Minnesota dairy farmers producing and marketing manufacturing grade milk are urged by Agriculture Commissioner Jim Nichols to apply for inspection and certification of their milk facilities as soon as possible.

He expressed disappointment and concern that thus far only about 300 of the manufacturing grade dairy farms have requested the inspection required by the 1983 state law enacted to protect Minnesota's access to domestic and export markets for manufactured dairy products.

That means an estimated 13,000 Minnesota dairy farms selling manufacturing grade milk will need to be inspected and certified if they are to remain in business after the July 1, 1985, deadline. Annual inspections are required by the new law.

"With our present staffing it is possible to inspect about 1,000 dairy farms per month, and as of this date, we need to complete that many inspections every month. If too many dairy farmers wait until next year to apply for state inspection, it will be difficult if not impossible to meet the July 1, 1985 deadline.

"Dairy farmers who have not yet applied for the inspection are reminded that all manufacturing farms must be certified by July 1, 1985, in order to continue marketing their milk," Commissioner Nichols emphasized.

All that dairy farmers need to do to insure their future access to milk markets is to contact their local dairy plant representative for details about any necessary changes in their farming practices or dairy facilities required by the new law, the to sign the form requesting state inspection.

Commissioner Nichols said that Minnesota dairy plant field personnel are familiar with the new manufacturing grade milk quality standards and can advise farmers how to comply with the new law and regulatory rules.

Shade Tree Diagnostic Service Open

Minnesota department of agriculture has activated its shade tree diagnostic service for the 19th season, offering state residents free laboratory analysis of samples from trees showing symptons of the two major shade tree diseases, Dutch elm and oak wilt, Agriculture Commissioner Jim Nichols has announced.

Early confirmation of these diseases in elm and oak trees, followed by prompt removal and proper disposal of the diseased trees, remains a major control effort to present the spread of these diseases to other healthy and valuable shade trees.

Commissioner Nichols also advised that the plant disease clinic in the department of plant pathology at the University of Minnesota will accept and diagnose samples of distress problems in other types of trees of plants.

Wilting branches are a symptom of disease problems in elm and oak trees that have not been injured by adverse weather conditions.

Samples should be cut from these freshly wilted branches. At least four, preferably five samples, six to eight inches in length and from one quarter inch to a half inch in diameter, should be cut from each tree and submitted for the free tests. A separate batch of samples should be submitted and location identified for each disease-suspect tree.

The samples should be wrapped in common kitchen plastic wrap to conserve natural moisture, packaged with the citizen's name, address and telephone number, and mailed to: Plant Industry Laboratory, Minnesota Department of Agriculture, 90 W. Plato Boulevard, St. Paul, MN 55107.

Diagnostic test results will be available to sample submitters within two weeks. Citizens who need assistance in collecting proper samples from trees suspected of disease problems may contact their local parks, forestry or public works department.

Water Heater Control Units May Be Hazard

U.S. Consumer Product Safety commission has announced that Robertshaw Controls company has offered to pay $150 to consumers who replace certain old liquid propane gas water-heating systems with new LP gas water-heating units.

Robertshaw indicated that critical parts of the safety control on some older systems can ultimately wear out, leading to a potentially dangerous condition.

Robertshaw is engaging in this program in an effort to remove the controls from service. Consumers will have to replace the entire water heater in order to be compensated.

Known as the Unitrol A-1 series, the safety controls were manufactured between 1946 and 1955 and last distributed in 1960. The firm reports that 475,000 LP-type controls were produced. The company has records of 24 incidents involving 33 injuries and seven deaths occurring during the 38-year period from 1946 to the present.

The Unitrol A-1 series was produced in several styles. Most feature two dials and may carry the name "Unitrol" and "Robertshaw-Grayson", or the name "RUDD". They are approximately three inches wide, three inches deep and five-and-a-half inches long. The dials may vary in shape and size and may be painted, chrome-plated, or a combination of these. They can be seen from outside the water heater and should be easily identified by users or LP suppliers.

Because replacement controls are no longer availab,e Robertshaw is reimbursing consumers presently using these controls $150 to help defray the cost of purchasing a new water-heating system.

Robertshaw also is undertaking a consumer and trade advertising program to further assist owners in the identification of affected valves.

Consumers who find that they are using one of these controls should have a new water-heating system installed immediately by their LP gas distributor, dealer or other authorized representative.

Elsie Stoltman Funeral Held On Wednesday

Funeral services for Mrs. Max (Elsie) Stoltman, 79, of Thief River Falls, were held Wednesday at 2:00 p.m., at the Belmont Funeral home. Mrs. Stoltman died Sunday morning, May 27, at the CNC unit at Northwestern hospital where she had resided for several years.

Rev. Berton Hushagen, pastor at Trinity Lutheran church, officiated at the services. Dorothy Larson was the organist and LeRoy Aasland, the soloist. Interment was in Greenwood cemetery.

Pallbearers were John Olson, Charles Olson, Rory Anderson and Terry Timm.

Mrs. Stoltman, the former Elsie Timm, was born April 11, 1905 at Miltona to Edward and Emelie Zinter Timm. She attended school and grew to womanhood at Miltona.

She was married to Victor Swanson in Parkers Prairie. She lived in the Miltona area until the early 1940's, when, following her divorce from Swanson, she moved to Thief River Falls. She was employed here as a cook at the Mint Cafe.

In 1952, she was married to Max Stoltman in Grand Forks, N.D. The couple made their home in Argyle until September of 1977, when she became a resident of the CNC unit at Northwestern hospital.

She is survived by her husband, who resides in Grand Forks, N.D., three grandchildren, three brothers: Herman Timm, Myrtle Creek, Ore.; Edward, Brooksville, Fla.; and Fred, Thief River Falls; two sisters: Mrs. Rose Olson, Oconomowoc, Wis., and Mrs. Clara Olson, Thief River Falls; three step-daughters: Mrs. Leonard (Lillian) McGrath, Emarado, N.D.,: Mrs. Katherine Bergerson, Argyle; and Mrs. Robert (Steffie) Benton, Grand Forks, N.D.; a son-in-law, Owen Peterson, Lakeville; and several nieces and nephews.

In addition to her parents, she was preceded in death by a daughter, Mildred, one grandson, six brothers and three sisters.

Now... a funeral with meaning and purpose

Life Appreciation Services are an enlightened alternative for those whose lives could be best remembered through a service that may not be entirely traditional. A Life Appreciation Service is one whose form is dedicated by what is meaningful to the family and friends of the deceased.

No Free Lunch

We read an interesting salute to gradutes in a North Dakota newspaper that went something like this. It has a lot of good thoughts: Some years ago, in a southeastern state, a legislator proposed establishing pi, or 3.14159, at the figure 3.00000. His reasoning was simple and one would be inclined to think practical, especially in that day before the pocket calculator. "If everyone pretended it was an even 'three' it would work," he reasoned. "Also, it would make things easier for high school math students." A few years later a newsman was interviewing people in a line waiting to be processed for unemployment compensation. "What's so good about a country where you can't get a job?" one man asked. He was told "help wanted" signs were hung in seven different businesses. But, the caller was told, that was for only the minimum wage. The man waiting in line said that the government should guarantee a man enough money to raise a family in comfort. Later he added, "Nobody is going to make me keep a job I don't like." The time these remarks were made was after a war; not the Vietnam, nor even the Korean, but World War II, when we of retirement age are likely to think, all people had different ideas than many currently expressed today. Why should these points be made in an editorial salute to the graduates of the classes of 1984? A number of reasons exist. In the matter of 3.00000 for pi, and its utter impracticality, we see again the reminder that no easy solutions exist, and not even a handy pocket calculator even with the right brand of batteries will always afford all the right answers. They must be determined after careful thought, in matters of any importance. From another point of view the grads of today, and their elders, should be reminded that the world has always contained people after a quick and easy buck, and that the reality of life decrees that no such thing exists. We likely have told our children, and our grandchildren, that after that War of the Forties all the servicemen were so glad to be home they would literally scrub floors to get an education or a start in life. We personally know some who did, because they were so grateful to be home relatively unscathed, and treasured an education to that point. But, then as well as today, we have those who think the world owes them a living. We need to be reminded again that no easy solutions exist for anything that is really worthwhile. . . And now we extend our congratulations to all area graduates as they start out on the "journey of being on their own."

Inflation Still Controlled

Economist Walter W. Heller of the University of Minnesota continues his optimism regarding the taming of economic inflation in the United States. Here is what he has to say on the topic in a recent column:

Since late 1981, I've been a confirmed optimist on inflation. And in spite of Milton Friedman's forecast of seven to 10 per cent inflation by December and double-digit inflation next year, and in spite of strong recovery and some price flurries, I'm still an optimist for the rest of 1984. Why?

First, with limited exceptions, production is not in or near that inflationary danger zone where it pushes against capacity limits.

Second, special factors like the worldwide oil glut continue to work for us. Further, with the dollar remaining strong, the sobering effect of import competition continues to curb price increases. And food prices are behaving better than expected in the face of drought or freeze.

Third, though the so-called sensitive commodity prices have jumped 15 per cent in the past year, the broader industrial commodity segment of the Producer Price Index has risen at only a three per cent rate in the past six months and isn't likely to go over 4.5 per cent for this year.

Fourth, the most basically, the hard-core inflation rate anchored in wage costs continues to behave remarkably well. In the past four quarters, hourly compensation has been rising at only a 4.5 per cent rate. Last year's negotiated wage settlements were the lowest in 16 years. And, under the force of foreign competition, deregulations, the recent deep recession and still-high unemployment, wage costs will continue to rise moderately this year. Autoworkers, to be sure, are loaded for bear, but given the moderate wage-price environment, the results are not likely to be too grisly.

For the first time in over 15 years, the stair-step advance of unit labor cost to a higher plateau after each recession seems to have been broken. A new and lower wage norm seems to be in the making.

I'm not suggesting that there is nothing but sunny weather ahead. There are thunderheads in the distance. Our hard-won gains could be destroyed if we fail to tame the federal deficits. They could be undermined by a falling dollar and rising import prices. They could be eroded by a slowdown in growth of the labor force and productivity.

But near-term, there is no danger of double-digit inflation. Something like five per cent is a good bet for many months to come.

Reagan Soaks The Rich

Following editorial is from the Morris Tribune:

Do tax rates affect incentives? What happens to revenue collections if tax rates are cut?

As the 1980s began such questions were the focus of a heated debate, one which centered on President Reagan's plan for a three-year 25 per cent tax cut.

Mr. Reagan's supporters maintained that lower tax rates would provide an incentive for people to invest in productive, job-creating enterprises that are subject to the income tax. They claimed that high tax rates were causing people to move to less productive investments that offered favorable tax consequences.

Opponents of the tax cut argued that it would (1) favor the rich at the expense of the poor, or (2) cause a higher rate of inflation.

Obviously, the inflation argument did not hold water. Three years after Mr. Reagan's tax cuts were enacted, the inflation rate has dropped significantly.

But it is only recently that we have learned more about what the tax cut did to the distribution of the tax burden among different income groups. The results are interesting.

Between 1981 and 1982, the share of the tax burden borne by those with incomes under $20,000 dropped from 17.1 per cent to 15.5 per cent. The share paid by those with incomes of $20,000 to $50,000 dropped from 50 per cent to 49.1 per cent. The tax burden borne by those with incomes in excess of $50,000 rose from 32.9 per cent to 35.4 per cent.

Bracket creep is responsible for a small part of this trend, but the greatest single factor appears to be the shift away from tax shelters and toward investments that produce taxable income.

The most dramatic results were seen in the income groups that had the biggest tax cuts.

Between 1981 and 1982, the top tax rate was slashed from 70 per cent to 50 per cent, a 29 per cent cut in the tax rate. The results: tax revenues from those with incomes of $100,000 or more increased 13.2 per cent. And the tax burden of those earning more than $1 million increased by more than 40 per cent!

Small wonder that Congress is considering two bills that would lower the top tax rate again. The Bradley-Gephardt bill would slash the top rate to 30 per cent; the Kemp-Kasten bill would cut it in half, to 25 per cent.

The 1981 tax cut has proved that lower tax rates can shift the tax burden toward those with higher incomes. And the tax cut has served to remind economists that people do indeed respond to incentives.

Borrowed Nonsense:

The father was objecting to his son's girl friend, insisting that the young man should be a little more particular about the appearance of those he dated. "I hate to disappoint you, dad," the son replied, "but she's the best girl I can get with the car that we've got."

Here are some answers to unfinished Biblical, historical and folklore statements given by junior high school students in a test:

"The pen is mightier than. . . . the pencil."

"A rolling stone. . . . plays guitar."

"Spare the rod. . . . and throw in the reel."

"Half a loaf is better than. . . . vegetables."

"Early to bed and early to rise. . . . makes a man not watch TV."

"Cleanliness is next to . . . . impossible."

---

The toast at a feminist banquet was to be printed in the program as stating: "Woman — without her, man would be a savage." But the mischievous male secretary typing up the program altered the punctuation so the toast read: "Woman, without her man, would be a savage."

"SUCH BIG EARS!" commented Signe Evenson as she got aquainted with a little baby goat which was brought to visit Oakland Park nursing home residents by Betty Rantanen during "Pet Day" recently. The little fellow seemed to take it as a compliment, however, snuggling up and welcoming all of the attention he could get.

Crookston Girls End Title Drought

A victory by the Crookston girls in the Region 8A track meet held Saturday in Walker avoided a championship shutout for the Pirates and East Grand Forks, who many figured would collect a trophy case full of athletic awards during the just-completed 1983-84 school year following their much-publicized drop from Class AA to Class A status within the Minnesota State High School.

Many of the smaller Class A schools in the area feared the two former Class AA members would step right in and immediately dominate Region 8A competition in everything from volleyball to basketball to golf to track. But that certainly didn't happen this year. The only Region 8A team title they won was that first place finish in track by the Crookston girls.

That's not to demean the athletes from Crookston and East Grand Forks, but rather to give credit to the athletes from the smaller communities who met the challenge presented by the Pirates and Green Wave. It still may be just a matter of time before those two schools begin to dominate the area Class A sports scene, but the smaller schools have proved they won't give up without a fight.

Basketball Camp Has Openings

Openings remain in the Jim Dutcher Perfect Form two-day basketball camp that will be held in Thief River Falls July 11-12, and all area boys ages 9-18 are invited to contact Thief River Falls head basketball coach Tom Hunt if you are interested in taking part in the event.

University of Minnesota assistant coach Steve Brown, plus former Gophers Jim Petersen, a 6-11 forward-center, and Darryl Mitchell, a 6-4 guard, will be the instructors for the camp, which will include two full days of basketball drills designed to improve shooting and ballhanding. Brown has an impressive list of credentials as a high school and college basketball player and as a coach; Petersen is a former Mr. Minnesota Basketball and a captain of the Gophers; and Mitchell is a former All-Big Ten Conference player.

Camp sessions here will be held in the Franklin Middle School gym, with drills offered from 9 a.m. to 12-noon, 1 to 4 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. both days. Cost of the camp is $50, which includes awards, certificates and T-shirts.

Area players interested in participating in the camp should contact Hunt, who lives in Crookston, as 281-5510, as soon as possible.

It's a unique opportunity for area players to receive instructions locally from knowledgeable basketball people, and players from throughout northwestern Minnesota are invited to participate.

Miscellaneous

+ Northwestern Minnesota may not be included in the 1984-85 television coverage of the Minnesota North Stars games following the announcement of a change in stations airing the National Hockey League team's games. Locally, Sjoberg's Cable TV carries KMSP-TV out of the Twin Cities, the station that has aired the North Stars' games for the past six years. But the team has now accepted a bid from KITN-TV in the metropolitan area for its broadcast rights the next three years.

+ With the conclusion of the 1984-85 school year and the sports programs at Lincoln High School and Northland Community College, it'll be a couple of months now before the Prowlers, Northmen and Northwomen once again begin to appear regularly in the headlines. Football, volleyball, cross country and tennis will resume once again in late August and early September. Two new football coaches, of course, will be making their Thief River Falls debuts this fall when Russ Henegar takes of the Prowlers and Rick Nelson, who formerly coached the Grygla-Goodridge cooperative team, takes over the Northmen. Interestingly, both out-going coaches — John Schmitz at Lincoln and John Helley at Northland — both began their head football coaching duties in 1980 before stepping down at the end of the 1983 season.

Prowlers Reach Sub-Region 8AA Baseball Finals

Thief River Falls was 1-for-2 Thursday, but batting .500 wasn't quite good enough as the Prowlers' 1984 high school baseball season came to an end in the finals of the North Sub-Region 8AA tournament at Matson Field at Moorhead.

A satisfying 7-3 win over No. 2-seeded Bemidji in the semifinals played just prior to the finals put No. 3-seeded Thief River Falls into the championship game opposite No. 1-seeded Moorhead, a big 15-5 semifinal winner over No. 4-seeded Fergus Falls that morning.

And the hot-hitting Spuds' offense continued to operate at peak proficiency as Moorhead out-scored Thief River Falls 14-7 in the title game.

That enables Moorhead out-scored Thief River Falls 14-7 in the title game.

That enables Moorhead to serve as the host team Wednesday for the Region 8AA championship game vs. The South Sub-Region 8AA qualifier, while Thief River Falls ends the year at 10-7 overall.

"We played good ball," said Thief River Falls coach Charlie Cornell in describing the Prowlers' first game victory over the Lumberjacks, who had pulled out two one-run regular season wins over Thief River Falls. "The heat got to us in the second game. It was 14-7, but it was a strange game. We could have been right in it with a hit or two."

But Thief River Falls stranded 11 runners and twice left the bases loaded. All eight of the Prowlers' hits were singles. Moorhead, on the other hand, had seven of 13 hits go for extra bases, including three home runs to go along with the four the Spuds had in a come-from-behind victory over Fergus Falls. The Otters had a 3-0 lead in the fourth inning in that one before the bottom fell out on them.

"They got the base hits when they needed them, and we didn't," explained Cornell.

It was disappointing to see the season come to an end, but the Prowlers did put in a game effort, according to Cornell.

First round games were played two days earlier as Thief River Falls eliminated No. 5-seeded Park Rapids 12-1 and Fergus Falls ousted No. 8-seeded Detroit Lakes 12-6, with the home team winning both times.

No. Sub-Region 8AA Semifinals . . .

TRF Upsets Bemidji 7-3

In two regular season one-run losses to Bemidji, Thief River Falls became increasingly frustrated in letting the Lumberjacks off the hook twice in 5-4 and 6-5 setbacks. The first one went eight innings, and the second one was decided in the bottom of the seventh.

Thursday, however, Thief River Falls led from start to finish in recording a 7-3 North Sub-Region 8AA baseball tournament semifinal win over Bemidji, a team that won 16 of the previous 18 regular season and playoff games between the two long-time athletic rivals.

And after watching Bemidji pull within 3-2 in the fifth inning, it was Thief River Falls putting this one away on a three-run home run by Tim Bottem that ended the Lumberjacks' season at 10-6.

Thief River Falls had struck for single runs in the first three innings. In the bottom of the first, Rick Spong drew a lead-off walk, stole second, moved to third on a single by Ryan Bakke and scored on a single by Brian Johnston. In the second, Joe Blankenfeld walked, moved up on a sacrifice by Gary Cornell and a ground-out, then scored on an error. In the third, Spong reached base on an error, then watched the first inning repeat itself as Bakke and Johnston again came up with singles to move him around the bases.

Bemidji answered the runs in the second and fourth innings, but Bottem's homer in the second half of the fourth wrapped it up for the Prowlers. Spong, who was hit by a pitch, and Bakke, who walked, preceded the home run. Two more walks and two more hit-batsmen accounted for another run, with Bob Huot earning an RBI when he was hit by a pitch with the bases loaded.

Junior lefthander Ryan Drees was the winning pitcher, giving up just four hits and two earned runs in his route-going seven-inning performance at Matson Field in Moorhead.

Thief River Falls Rally Falls Short . . .

Spuds Win Title Game

A first inning grand slam home run by Moorhead's Don Thompson put Thief River Falls in an early hole the Prowlers were never able to climb out of as the host Spuds muscled their way to a 14-7 North Sub-Region 8AA high school baseball tournament championship game victory Thursday at Matson Field.

It started with a pair of walks. A collision at second base erased a possible double play for the Prowlers, and the third walk of the inning loaded the bases for Thompson, who then hit the first of his two home runs for the game. It was 5-0 before the inning ended.

Thief River Falls came back to score twice in the second inning as Brian Johnston, Joe Blankenfeld and Gary Cornell all drew walks, Tim Nyland had a sacrifice fly for an RBI, Bill Benedict drew the Prowlers' fourth walk of the inning to again load the bases and Rick Spong followed with an RBI single. That made it 5-2, but the Prowlers left the bases loaded.

And Moorhead promptly answered those runs with a two-run home run by Tim Hill in the bottom of the inning.

Moorhead built a 10-2 lead through five innings before Thief River Falls made a run at the Spuds with a five-run sixth that cut the deficit to just 10-7. Tim Bottem had an RBI single to get it going, then with two out, Brian Dormady loaded the bases with a base hit and Blankenfeld, Steve Solheim and Ryan Drees had successive RBI singles.

But again, the Prowlers left runners in scoring position, and Moorhead rebuilt its lead with two walks, two doubles and an error in a four-run burst in the bottom of the sixth.

That gave the Spuds a series edge over the Prowlers this year after they had split a pair of regular season encounters. Thief River Falls won a 4-2 early season game here in early May, with Moorhead winning a 4-0 game by scoring four times in the sixth inning of a Moorhead Invitational tournament semifinal game May 12. That's the only loss the Spuds had at the hands of a North Sub-Region 8AA opponent this spring, finishing 8-1 against the six-team field.

Region 8A Baseball Games Set At RLF

Roseau and Blackduck were North and South Sub-Region 8A high school baseball tournament winners last week, and will be joined by runner-up finishers Lake of the Woods and Laporte in the 1984 Region 8A tournament semifinals Tuesday at Red Lake Falls.

In the North Sub-Region 8A tournament completed Friday at Red Lake Falls, Roseau was an easy 13-4 winner over Lake of the Woods. Both teams were assured of Region 8A berths, however, after Wednesday night semifinal wins as Lake of the Woods eliminated Tri-County 4-0 and Roseau handled Warroad 10-0.

South Sub-Region 8A tournament games were played at Bemidji State University, with Blackduck beating Laporte 8-5 in the Friday afternoon finals. In the Region 8A-qualifying semifinals Thursday, Laporte ousted Cass Lake 13-3 and Blackduck edged Bagley 6-4.

Region 8A semifinal doubleheader Tuesday at Red Lake Falls will feature Blackduck vs. Lake of the Woods at 5 p.m. and Laporte vs. Roseau at 7. Finals will be held Wednesday.

In opening round South Sub-Region 8A games played last Tuesday, Laporte beat Redlake 6-3, No. 7-seeded Cass Lake upset No. 2-seeded Crookston 4-2, Blackduck outlasted Ada 8-7 and Bagley downed Akeley 7-3.

Results of the first round of North Sub-Region 8A games were announced earlier. In an elimination game to get down to the eight-team quarterfinals, Greenbush defeated Humboldt-St. Vincent-Lancaster-Pembina 6-2. In the quarterfinals last Monday, Lake of the Woods blanked Middle River-Marshall County Central 3-0, Tri-County stopped Kennedy-Hallock 4-3, Warroad shut out Greenbush 8-0 and Roseau handled Red Lake Falls 10-2.

AFTER A DAY full of baseball at Matson Field in Moorhead, seven Lincoln High School seniors were rushed back to Thief River Falls Thursday in time for graduation ceremonies that night thanks to an airplane flight provided by Doug Dehnert of United Satellite Systems of Thief River Falls. The flight, which took 29 minutes, included, left to right, pilot Jerry Parnham, Rayn Bakke, Todd Ortloff, Tim Bottem, Bill Benedict, Brian Johnston, Gary Cornell and Rick Spong. It was a flight figured to cost $6 per minute. The plane was the only way the seniors would have made it back in time, though, since the Prowlers, after beating Bemidji 7-3 in the North Sub-Region 8AA tournament semifinals earlier in the day, got involved in a high-scoring championship game with host Moorhead in a contest won by the Spuds 14-7.

Father's Day Golf Meet Is Set June 17

Annual Father's Day shortstop golf tournament will be held Sunday, June 17, at the Thief River Country Club.

Championship flight, open to 36 golfers, will feature 27 holes of medal play and will have an 8 a.m. tee-off time, with a $15 registration fee.

Pre-registration is required for all other flights, open to 64 golfers who will compete on a match play basis. They will tee-off following the championship flight. Registration fee is $10.

Merchandise prizes will be awarded.

To register, or for more information, contact the Thief River Country Club, Box 481, Thief River Falls, MN 56701; telephone 681-2955.

St. Cloud Tech Is Section 8 Tennis Winner

Crookston's Jay and Jeff Claassen will be the only area representatives at the 1984 Minnesota state high school tennis tournament, scheduled to begin on Tuesday in Bloomington.

A champion in the Sub-Section 8 tournament played in Thief River Falls the week before, Jay and Jeff Claassen defeated Alexandria's Doug Holm and Todd Hocum 6-3, 6-1 in the state tournament-qualifying third place doubles match during the individual portion of the Section 8 tournament played Wednesday at Brainerd. Top three singles players and top three doubles teams earned state meet berths.

East Grand Forks' Del Nelson, the Sub-Section 8 singles champion here, failed in his bid to gain a state tournament berth as he lost to Brent Juntunen of Osakis 7-6, 6-2 in the Section 8 singles third place match.

Defending state champion St. Cloud Tech, the No. 1-rated team in the state, dominated the Section 8 tournament. The Tigers won the Section 8 team title last Tuesday, beating Sub-Section 8 champion Crookston 5-0 in the process, and Tech entries placed 1-2 in both singles and doubles during Wednesday's individual portion of the tournament.

John Lauerman and Pat Dunn were 1-2 in singles, while the teams of Shawn Potter-Todd Schlorf and Jay Schlorf-Eric Wolfe were 1-2 in doubles.

Volleyball At Family Bowl Is Being Formed

Organizational meetings will be held this week for the summer volleyball program at the Family Bowl.

Women's league meeting will be held Tuesday, men's league on Wednesday and mixed league on Thursday. Each meeting will start at 8 p.m. at the Family Bowl.

League play is scheduled to start June 18.

Tennis Lessons Registration Is Set Wednesday

Free tennis lessons for youngsters and adults will be offered this summer through the Thief River Falls Park and Recreation Department.

Lessons for boys and girls, men and women are being offered to all players ranging from beginner to intermediate.

Registration will be held Wednesday at the Northland Community College courts. Youngsters up to age 13 should meet at 12:30 p.m.; and those 14-and-over should meet at 2:30 p.m. Adults will meet at 7 that night.

For additional information call Mark Collins at 681-2380.

— Women's Slow Pitch —

There were a couple of lopsided scores Wednesday as the Thief River Falls women's slow pitch softball league began its 1984 season.

Paula Hanson and Kristie Lee homered as Pizza Hut routed Northland-Thomas 39-3; Peggy Peterson and Brenda Marben hit home runs as Hardees overwhelmed Kmart-Glass 31-3; and Shari Larson had a grand slam while Jody Bendickson also homered as American Legion blanked Northland-Thomas 15-0.

There were some close games, too, including a 14-14 tie involving the Health Hustlers and American Legion. Dee Larson of the Health Hustlers and LeAnn Paetznick of American Legion were home run hitters.

Five home runs were hit as Pizza Hut edged Russells-Kees 10-9. Coco Stokke, Kelly Storhaug and Carrie Budke homered for the winners, while Angie Sinn and Laurie Charbonneau homered for the losers.

Schmidt Stealers split a pair of games, beating Hutchinson-Sheldons 13-11 in the opener, but losing to the Health Hustlers 11-1 in the second game as Kristi Thompson and Bobbi Thompson homered for the winners.

Stephanie LeMoine had two home runs as Century 21 defeated Hutchinson-Sheldons 13-5.

League play resumes with four doubleheaders tonight (Monday) at four diamonds.

— Men's Slow Pitch —

Results remain hard to come by in the Thief River Falls men's slow pitch softball league.

Only a portion of the scores are being reported, particularly in Division II, where standings can not be published until all the results are known.

Instructions have been given to all managers that the winning team is responsible for getting the results to Bendickson by noon of the day following the game by calling league president Dennis Bendickson at 681-6922 (p.m.) or 681-2181 (a.m.).

No scores were reported Wednesday and only a portion of the results were turned in Thursday as the St. Hilaire Bears won a split doubleheader, beating Falls Clinic 9-8 and The Source-Wennberg's Welding 24-11. Hamms-Pizza Hut was a winner over Norwest Insurance, Big Johns-Meadowbrook beat Nichols Beauty Nook-Paint & Glass and Pepsi Bottling downed Big Johns-Meadowbrook in games without scores available.

TRF BMX Bike Track Meeting Slated Tonight

Adults and young riders interested in continuing the bicycle moto-cross (BMX) program in Thief River Falls this summer are asked to meet tonight (Monday) at 6:30 p.m. at the BMX track, located just off Oakland Park Road.

You are asked to bring rakes and mowers to make the track ready for the 1984 summer racing season.

Region 8AA Track Titles Won By Moorhead Teams

Moorhead boys and girls were team champions Saturday at the 1984 Region 8AA high school track meet held at Concordia College in Moorhead.

For the girls, Moorhead won with 88 points, followed by Rocori with 65, Park Rapids 50, Alexandria 46, Detroit Lakes 45 and one-third, St. Cloud Apollo 40, Brainerd 31, Bemidji 29, Fergus Falls 25, St. Cloud Tech 23 and two-thirds, Melrose 23, Thief River Falls 13, Little Falls 10 and Sauk Rapids 7.

Top two individuals in each event, plus the first place relay teams, earned berths in the Class AA state track and field meet, scheduled to be held June 8-9 at Bloomington.

Twenty Thief River Falls athletes, who advanced through last week's North Sub-Region 8AA competition, took part in the Region 8AA meet, but the Prowlers failed to qualify any of the 13 girls or seven boys for the state meet.

Sophomore Michelle Puetz came agonizingly close, though, in the 400-meter dash where she finished third, just a scant one-100th of a second behind second place Michelle Mallow of Detroit Lakes. Sue Faus of Rocori won the hotly contest race in 1:01.09, with Mallow clocking a 1:01.39 and Puetz 1:01.40. The runners were going into a stiff wind which kept them from breaking the 60-second mark.

"That was a super race," reported Tom Schafer, coach of the Thief River Falls girls. "We knew it was going to be close and it was. Puetz was right up there with the best of them, and there were a number of good 400 runners in the region this year."

While he acknowledged that it would have obviously been nice to have a bigger point total and to have state meet qualifiers, Schafer still said it was a good day for the Prowlers.

"For the most part we were real pleased with what we did," he said.

Moorhead boys were trophy winners with 94 points, followed by Little Falls with 60, Bemidji 50, Park Rapids 49, Brainerd and St. Cloud Tech 38, St. Cloud Apollo 36, Alexandria, Rocori, Detroit Lakes and Melrose all with 33, Fergus Falls 24, Thief River Falls 6 and Sauk Rapids 0.

Providing the points for the Thief River Falls boys were seniors Randy Swenson and Jeff Langan, who placed 4-5 in the 300 meter intermediate hurdles in their personal-best times of 40.49 and 41.39, respectively. Jay Jorgenson of Detroit Lakes won the race in 39.56.

"It was a good race," reported Tim Olson, coach of the Thief River Falls boys. "It was a real good meet."

Meanwhile, in Region 8A competition at Walker Saturday, Kevin Boe of Marshall County Central was a state meet qualifier in three events as the junior from Newfolden won the long jump with a leap of 21-8½; placed second in the high jump, where his 6-2 effort actually tied the winning mark by Bill Zeller of East Grand Forks; and was second in the triple jump with a 42-7 performance, just behind Waubun's Don Heisler, who beat Boe by just three-quarters of an inch.

Walker boys won the Region 8A team title with 89 points, with Twin Valley a distant second at 52 and Crookston third at 51 in a field of 24 point-scoring teams. East Grand Forks was third with 48 points, Norman County West fourth with 46 and Marshall County Central fifth with 40.

Crookston girls were also Region 8A winners with 81 points, followed by Roseau with 66, Hallock 48, Ada 44, and East Grand Forks 35 to round out the top five.

— DNR Hotline —

New Minnesota state park song, "Minnesota Melody" will be performed by songwriter and musician Douglas Wood this weekend at two state parks.

Two evening "Earthsongs" programs will be held on June 8 at Lake Carlos State Park and on June 9 at Itasca State Park. Both programs begin at 8 p.m.

In his hour-long "Earthsongs" program, Wood promotes environmental awareness through the magic medium of music. The programs are the first of a series of special guest presentations being offered throughout the state park system this summer. For a brochure on all statewide park programs, write to Minnsota DNR, Parks and Recreation, Box 39 Centennial Office Building, St. Paul, MN 55155.

In Northwestern Minnesota, camping reservations can be made by phone or in person at Itasca, Lake Bemidji and Lake Carlos State Parks.

Visitors are reminded that 50 per cent of all sites are still available on a first-come, first-serve basis. Parks accepting reservations set aside only 50 per cent of all camping sites for reservation. The other half is available on a first-come, first-serve basis.

Your chances are usually good for obtaining a site without a reservation. On Friday night of the Memorial Day weekend, although all available reservations were taken, there were still sites available on a first-come, first-serve basis at most parks.

— Men's Fast Pitch —

Hamms-Coors rallied for three runs in the bottom of the seventh inning to nip Popplers 4-3 Wednesday in the season opener for the 1984 Thief River Falls men's fast pitch softball league.

Popplers had broken a 1-1 tie on Jeff Walton's two-run inside-the-park home run in the top of the sixth, and with the bottom of the order coming up for Hamms-Coors in the seventh, a season-opening upset was in the making, reported league publicist Dick Bjerken.

But lead-off batter Al Erickson reached base on an error, and with one out, Scott Bengston drew a walk and Nick Neibauer singled to load the bases. Roger Cota beat out an infield hit to score a run; Cota was forced at second, with Bengston scoring on Mike Kvarnlov's grounder; and Bruce Johnson scored the winning run with a single to left.

In the second game that night, Schmidts - Coke broke open a 4-2 lead against Melvies by jumping on relief pitcher Erv Melvie for seven runs in the sixth inning for an 11-2 victory.

Losing pitcher Howard Dalager was backed by some shaky fielding over the first five innings before suffering an injury. Winning pitcher Mike Drury notched nine strike-outs, while he and Kevin Sanders each had three hits apiece to pace a 12-hit attack.

First game of a Friday doubleheader matching Melvies vs. United Satellite Systems was postponed, and with Bjerken out of town, no score was received on the second game that night matching Schmidts-Coke vs. Glass Hamms-Coors.

There are two league doubleheaders scheduled this week. On Tuesday, Popplers plays United Satellite Systems at 7:30 p.m. and Melvies goes against Popplers at 9. On Friday, Glass Hamms-Coors meets Melvies at 7:30 p.m. and United Satellite Systems plays Schmidts-Coke at 9.

National Fishing Week Is Observed June 4-10

"Gone fishin'."

Sound relaxing? More than 50 million Americans think so.

One of the country's greatest pastimes is being celebrated during National Fishing Week June 4-10, a time to appreciate all that fishing in America is — the tremendous variety of fish, the enjoyment and respect for nature, and the billions of dollars it generates. Everyone who packs a rod and reel and heads for a rippling stream or a quiet pond is one of the 42 million adults and 12 million youths who go fishing each year in the United States.

Those anglers take 750 million annual fishing trips, says the National Wildlife Federation, whose 4.1 million members and supporters include hundreds of thousands of men and women who fish.

Who are all these anglers?

+ Some 31 per cent are women, according to the NWF.

+ About 36 million Americans fish in fresh water. Of those 63 per cent fish in manmade lakes, ponds and reservoirs; 40 per cent fish in natural lakes and ponds; and 43 per cent fish in rivers and streams.

+ About 12 million Americans fish in salt water. Of those, 55 per cent fish "surf and shore," 37 per cent fish in the deep sea, and 43 per cent fish in saltwater sounds, bays and tidal inlets and streams.

+ About 2 million anglers a year go ice fishing. About 400,000 go spear fishing, 300,000 use a bow and arrow, and 1 million go "gigging" for frogs.

Not only are these millions of anglers having fun, but they're boosting local economies as well. Consider:

+ American men and women who fish spend $17.3 billion a year on the sport, including almost $4 billion for food and lodging, $3 billion for transportation, $2.5 billion for fishing equipment, $600 million for licenses and dues, $528 million for rental and other fees, $340 million for leasing and ownership fees, and $6.4 billion for special equipment such as boats and vans.

+ Freshwater anglers spend $7.8 billion a year.

+ Saltwater anglers spend $2.4 billion a year.

Despite these figures, not everything on the fishing front is rosy, accordig to the National Wildlife Federation.

"All of us who enjoy fishing must realize that the sport is threatened by many of our own environmental mistakes," said Jay D. Hair, NWF Executive Vice President, citing such problems as water contaminated by toxic wastes, agricultural runoff, overfishing and dam construction on fish spawning streams.

"One of the most grave threats is the loss of habitat such as wetlands, which is increasingly critical. Another is acid rain, which is already responsible for fish losses in 212 Adirondack lakes and ponds, and threatens hundreds of other bodies of water across the country," Hair said.

"If we as a nation of anglers wish to continue to enjoy fishing and protect our fishing-related economy, then we must protect, enhance and restore our valuable fishery habitat."

TRF Softball Program Starts On Wednesday

A 10-week softball program for girls ages 9-16, sponsored by the Thief River Falls Park and Recreation Department, will get underway Wednesday at the Eastside Park diamond.

Games will be played at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. The Park and Recreation Department will furnish equipment, and two playground directors will be on hand to supervise and umpire the games.

There is a $5 registration fee. For additional information contact program director Ruth Ostby at 681-2234.

State Tennis Meet To Open On Wednesday

Fifty-sixth annual MSHSL state boys tennis tournament begins a four-day run on Wednesday with two days of team competition and concludes Saturday afternoon, June 9, following two days of singles and doubles action at the 98th Street Racquet Club in Bloomington.

Team quarterfinal matches will begin at noon and 2 p.m. Wednesday. Team semifinal and championship matches are schedulled for 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. Thursday.

Defending state champion and No. 1-rated St. Cloud Tech and last year's state runner-up, Coon Rapids, are among the eight section team champions. In fact, St. Cloud Tech and Coon Rapids will meet at noon Wednesday in an opening round quarterfinal match this year.

Other quarterfinal upper bracket pairing will find Blue Earth meeting 12-time state champion Edina (includes championships by East and West High Schools of Edina in previous years). That match also begins at noon.

In the lower bracket Apple Valley and St. Paul Academy will oppose one another while Hibbing meets Blake in the other match. Both matches are scheduled to start at 2 p.m.

Singles and doubles action on Friday and Saturday will involve the top three singles players and top three doubles duos from among the eight section tournaments that were conducted leading to the state championships.

Singles play on Friday begins at 9 a.m. and will continue with second and third rounds throughout the afternoon until semifinalists are known. Saturday's play is devoted to semifinal and championship matches with starting times at 9 a.m. and noon. The doubles competition has the same starting time format as singles play with action taking place on various courts.

All three individuals who won gold medals a year ago have graduated — namely two-time state singles titlist Darryl Laddin, Hopkins, and doubles victors Shawn Bresnahan and Dave Nelson, St. Cloud Tech, reports Larry Larson of the MSHSL.

Top threats to capture the singles title in 1984 include two players who have reached the finals during the previous two years. Senior Tom Olmscheid, Coon Rapids, and freshman David Wheaton, Minnetonka, appear to be the odds-on favorites this season. Olmscheid lost to champion Laddin in last year's finals, while Wheaton succumbed to Laddin two years ago as a seventh grader. Olmscheid reached last year's championship match by way of 6-4, 6-2 verdicts over Wheaton.

Like last year's tournament, the event will be a one-class affair. Previous to 1983, the tournament was conducted in two classes — AA and A — for four consecutive years. A one-class format was used from 1929 through 1978. The event continues to be a one-class tournament because of the lack of schools — 46 — from among the Class A membership (499 or less students) that participate in boys tennis. Fifty or more schools are needed from among the "A" classification for the tournament to warrant two classes. In all some 151 high schools sponsored interscholastic boys tennis programs this season.

Races Planned At Hallock Aid Cancer Funds

Kittson County Unit of the American Cancer Society, Minnesota Division, will be hosting its second annual "Laura's Run" — a 10 kilometer race and 2-mile fun run — Saturday, June 16, at the Gilbert Olson Memorial Park in Hallock.

Proceeds from this event are for the Kittson County Unit of the American Cancer Society in honor of those who have lost their lives to cancer — and is dedicated to the elimination of this dread disease. Sponsor sheets are available locally.

Registration is from 8 to 8:30 a.m. for the 10K race, which begins at 8:30. Registration for the fun run is from 8:30 to 9:30 a.m., with run to begin at 9:30. Registration is $6.

DNR NEWS

Boat Access Maps

Maps showing boat access sites to state lakes are now available from the Department of Natural Resources for nearly all Minnesota counties.

Maps, which are free, show boaters and anglers and location of more than 1,900 sites where trailered boats may be launched into public waters.

A maximum of five maps may be ordered by calling the DNR. Those outside of the seven county metro area should call the toll free number 1-800-652-9747 and ask for "access maps."

An order form for the maps can be obtained from the same source. Maps can also be requested by writing: DNR Trails and Waterways, Box 52, Centennial Building, St. Paul, MN 55155.

Location of access sites within the seven county metro area are all included on one map. The map can be ordered in the manner stated above, and it is also available from county branch libraries in the seven counties and from city libraries in Minneapolis and St. Paul.

Funds to acquire and develop public access sites are available through the Legislative Commission on Minnesota Resources and marine fuel taxes. The LCMR monies are derived from a special tax on cigarettes.

Public Information Officer

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources, Division of Parks and Recreation, has announced the hiring of William Chiat to serve as Public Information Officer.

Chiat is former Associate Director of the Central Wisconsin Environmental Station and currently Regional Director of the Association of Interpretive Naturalists, Region V.

"He has an extensive background in natural resources and public information and also in the technological advances necessary for strategic management of the information system," said Don Davison, DNR Director of Parks and Recreation. "He will certainly be an asset to our Visitor Services program."

Davison said the Division has recently expanded its public information services through the establishment of an Outdoor Recreation Information Center with computerized information on state parks, trails and waterways.

"The new system enables park personnel to provide immediate access and referral of information on any of the resources, services and facilities. This system enhances vacation planning capabilities and response to information regarding state parks, trails and waterways or to stop by the Outdoor Recreation Information Center, located on the 2nd floor of the Space Center, 444 Lafayette, St. Paul.

River Cleanup

Mississippi River Revival is sponsoring a Twin City wide trash cleanup of the Mississippi on Saturday, July 14. A canoe flotilla and land crews are being organized to pick up trash along the river between Showboat Landing in Minneapolis and Navy Island in St. Paul.

Revival invites churches, neighborhood organizations, youth groups, businesses and anyone who is interested in a clean Mississippi to participate. The cleanup is part of a weekend of river related events that will culminate in the Revival's multi-cultural celebration of the river on Sunday, July 15, at St. Paul's Navy Island.

Mississippi River Revival is a non-profit, grassroots organization, most visible through its sponsoring of trash cleanups along the river and its presentation of festivals that celebrate the diverse traditions, cultures and art forms of the peoples who share the river.

Revival believes that as people come together during the planning and presentation of riverfront cleanups and festivals, they will find a common ground to collectively work to foster and preserve a clean Mississippi from Lake Itasca to New Orleans.

For more information call Bill Zachman at 874-8199, Barbara Gorrie at 647-9453 or Paul Eaves at 644-7168.

Aspen Usage Continues

Volume of aspen wood harvested in Minnesota grew significantly from 1982 to 1983, according to DNR forestry officials. Two years ago, 1,056,000 cords were harvested in the state; however, in 1983, that figure rose to 1,591,000 cords — an increase of over one-half million cords.

Officials say the increase is due to several factors. New waferboard plants are running at capacity; the paper and hardboard industry is producing at full capacity; and sizeable exports of aspen are being sent to Canadian mills at Thunder Bay.

Officials expect the trend to continue as long as the demand for waferboard and paper stays high.

UMC Wrestling Camp Will Be Held July 10-13

Second annual wrestling camp sponsored by the University of Minnesota-Crookston (UMC) is scheduled for the UMC Sports Center July 10-13 for any students entering at least fourth grade by fall 1984.

Paul Cyr, former head coach at Fertile-Beltrami and currently assistant coach at St. John's University, is the junior and senior high camp director. Rod Olson, head coach at Crookston, is the elementary director. Clinicians include: Brad Kerr, assistant coach at the University of North Dakota; Scott Knowlen, three-time All-American from UND and seventh in NCAA Division II Nationals; Lyle Clem, All American from North Dakota State University and second in NCAA Division II Nationals; Jeff Schumacher, four-time All-American from UND and third in NCAA Division II Nationals; and John Cyr, Minnesota state wrestling champion.

Cost for the camp is $37.50 for commuting wrestlers and $85 for wrestlers staying on campus. Those staying on campus will live in residence halls on the UMC campus and will eat in the dining hall.

Enrollment will be limited so early registration is encouraged. To register send $37.50 nonrefundable fee-deposit by June 8 to Marv Bachmeier, Athletic Director, University of Minnesota, Crookston, MN 56716. For more information, call Bachmeier at 281-6510, extension 415.

State Golf Meets Will Start Today

Minnesota State High School League-sponsored 1984 state golf tournaments for girls and boys that qualified through district and region tournaments will begin today (Monday) and conclude on Thursday, June 7. Golf courses in St. Cloud (Class A) and Ham Lake (Class AA) will be utilized to conduct the events, reports Larry Larson of the MSHSL.

Play started at noon today at the St. Cloud Country Club for the Class A tournament with 18 holes being contested and another 18 holes are scheduled for Tuesday beginning at 8 a.m. The Class AA tournament at Majestic Oaks Golf Course starts at noon on Wednesday and 8 a.m. Thursday. Like in Class A, team qualifiers and individual qualifiers will play 36 holes.

A total of 121 players have earned the right to play in the Class A golf tournament at the St. Cloud Country Club, site of the event for a third successive year. Sixty-one of those participants will vie for boys' team and individual medals, while 60 girls will try to win gold medals in team and individual competition.

Among the 40 boys who qualified for the individual competition (top five from each of eight regions), three players had qualifying scores of 72 and under and another who carded a 73 is considered the player to beat in this year's tournament. He's senior Kirk Vanstrum, Mahtomedi, who last year finished as the top underclassman in the Class AA tournament when finishing third. This year Mahtomedi is a Class A school and Vanstrum will be among a different field of players.

Expected to seriously challenge Vanstrum for the gold medal are Dave Bratland, St. Anthony Village, Brad Geer, Blake; and J.J. Cutting, Byron, among others. Bratland, a junior, had the low qualifying score, a 70, while Geer and Cutting recorded qualifying rounds of 72. Cutting, a senior, was a co-leader after the first round of last year's Class A state tournament, but faltered during the final 18 holes and finished in seventh place.

In the boys team competition, last year's Class AA state champion Mahtomedi, who returns two of its four team members, is the odds-on favorite to capture Class A laurels this year. Eveleth is the only returning school from the 1983 field. Other team qualifiers include Spring Valley, Elmore, Minneota, Blake, Morris and Roseau.

In the Class A girls tournament field a senior, Lynda Otness, Farmington, last year's state runner-up while a Class AA participant, leads the group of 40 individual qualifiers. Her sternest competition may come from senior Mark Kulhman, Montevideo, who finishes third in the Class A tournament a year ago and was only one stroke behind Otness' 80 qualifying score for the 1984 event. Another player to be watched is sophomore Kathy Ebert, Waconia, who had the lowest qualifying score, 79, among state qualifiers.

In girls team competition, Farmington has supplanted Le Sueur, the state champion the past two years as the Region 4A entry in the state tournament and is the odds-on favorite to win this year. The only returning school from the 1983 field back is Waconia. Other team entrants include Caledonia, Elmore, Montevideo, Sauk Centre, Hermantown and Mahnomen.

State golf tournament scene will switch to Majestic Oaks golf course in Ham Lake on Wednesday and Thursday, June 6 and 7, site of the Class AA event for boys and girls.

In the boys tournament two-time defending state champion Kyle Anderson of Duluth East has graduated and the top underclassman from last year's tournament, Kirk Vanstrum, Mahtomedi, competes in Class A this year, and as a result, the medalist honors appear up for grabs in 1984.

Among the boys performers expected to seriously challenge for the gold medal are senior Mike Scheller, Coon Rapids, fourth a year ago, and another player who finished in the top 10 in 1983, J.B. Lloyd, Mankato West. Lloyd, a senior, was ninth last June.

Other contenders could be Steve Hanson, a junior from International Falls, and Rick Kapsner, a senior from Princeton. Both had the low qualifying score — 71 — among the 40 state qualifiers.

In the boys team competition Mankato West, a third place state finisher a year ago, could improve on that finish as two players return from that team and three members of their four-player squad were among the top five players at the Region 2AA tournament.

Other Class AA team entrants include Hastings, the lone other returnee, and Winona, Blaine, Park Center, Richfield, International Falls and Bemidji.

Defending Class AA boys team titlist Mahtomedi is entered in Class A this season.

In the girls Class AA field defending state team champion Edina is once again expected to make a strong bid for title honors. Edina returns two of its four team members from last year's squad. They include the Ewald sisters, Michele and Jenny.

Among the other seven girls teams entered, Apple Valley and Hastings are repeat entrants while newcomers include Mankato West, Stillwater, Minneapolis Roosevelt, Grand Rapids and Rocori of Cold Spring.

Four of last year's top ten finishers in the individual competition have won their way back to the state tournament. Defending champion Sherry Greiner, Hibbing, has graduated and with the departure of last year's runner-up, Lynda Otness, Farmington, to the Class A field this season, medalist honors this campaign appear up for grabs.

Four players among the top 10 a year ago back include senior Lori Allen, Hutchinson, fourth in 1983; junior Kate Hughes, Park-Woodbury, seventh; and seniors Jenny Hyslop, Fergus Falls, and Jodi Krafka, Alexandria, who tied for ninth. Hughes was this year's low qualifier with a score of 76.

A total of 122 golfers, 62 boys and 60 girls, will participate in the Class AA state tournament.

Living up to its name, the "pack rat," the whitethroated wood rat has been known to cart off an array of objects to adorn his desert home — including eyeglasses, false teeth, even mousetraps — says the National Wildlife Federation's "Ranger Rick" magazine.

Public Notices

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Wilma Arnold one year ago June 3:

A year has gone so very fast
But a lifetime precious memories will forever last.
Those big brown eyes, that happy smile
She made everyone's day worthwhile.
Worked so hard everyone to please,
Tho heartache and pain seemed never to cease.
Faithful and kind to the very end,
Loved by everyone, was everyone's friend.

Composed & Written
Sadly missed by friend of many years,

Card of Thanks

We would like to thank everyone who was so thoughtful and helpful at the loss of our brother and uncle, Paul Anderson. We extend our special thanks to Green Funeral home for their kind help and to Pastor Anderson for his words of comfort at the prayer service and funeral. We also thank Jan Nordin and Ruth Mosbeck for the music at the funeral, the pallbearers, those who gave flowers and sent cards and memorials, and the ladies of Redeemer Lutheran church for providing the lunch. God bless you all.

Member Donna Graham introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption:

Resolution Relating to the Termination and Nonrenewal of the Teaching Contract of Paul Sharon, a Probationary Teacher

WHEREAS, Paul Sharon is a probationary teacher in Independent School District 441.

BE IT RESOLVED, by the School Board of Independent School District No. 441, that pursuant to Minnesota Statutes 125.12, Subdivision 3, that the teaching contract of Paul Sharon, a probationary teacher in Independent School District No. 441, is hereby terminated at the close of the current 1983-1984 school year.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that written notice be sent to said teacher regarding termination and non-renewal of his contract as provided by law, and that said notice shall be in substantially the following form:

AN OLD PROVERB states "A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush," but Willie Anderson, a resident of the Oakland Park nursing home, ended up with two birds in the hand when Betty Rantanen brought a pair of day old bantam chicks to visit during "Pet Day" at the home recently. Willie couldn't help laughing when she told him that he was more of a mother to the birds than the incubator that had hatched them.

Notice of Termination and Non-Renewal

You are hereby notified that at a regular meeting of the School Board of Independent School District No. 441 held on May 24, 1984, a resolution was adopted by a majority roll call vote to terminate your contract effective at the end of the current school year and not to renew your contract for the 1984-85 school year. Said action of the board is taken pursuant to M.S. 125.12, subd. 3.

You may officially request that the school board give its reasons for the non-renewal of your teaching contract. However, such request should be received within ten days after the receipt of this notice.

Yours very truly,
School Board of
Ind. School Dist. No. 441
Donna Graham
Clerk of the School Board

Public Notices

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Wilma Arnold one year ago June 3:
A year has gone so very fast
But a lifetime precious memories will forever last.
Those big brown eyes, that happy smile
She made everyone's day worthwhile.
Worked so hard everyone to please,
Tho heartache and pain seemed never to cease.
Faithful and kind to the very end,
Loved by everyone, was everyone's friend.

Sadly missed by friend of many years,

Card of Thanks

We would like to thank everyone who was so thoughtful and helpful at the loss of our brother and uncle, Paul Anderson. We extend our special thanks to Green Funeral home for their kind help and to Pastor Anderson for his words of comfort at the prayer service and funeral. We also thank Jan Nordin and Ruth Mosbeck for the music at the funeral, the pallbearers, those who gave flowers and sent cards and memorials, and the ladies of Redeemer Lutheran church for providing the lunch. God bless you all.

AN OLD PROVERB states "A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush," but Willie Anderson, a resident of the Oakland Park nursing home, ended up with two birds in the hand when Betty Rantanen brought a pair of day old bantam chicks to visit during "Pet Day" at the home recently. Willie couldn't help laughing when she told him that he was more of a mother to the birds than the incubator that had hatched them.

MISS AMERICA 1963, Jacquelyn Mayer Townsend, who suffered a stroke at age 28, will share the story of her faith and recovery at 7:30 p.m. Monday, June 11, at Grace Lutheran church in Hallock. Sponsored by the church women, the program is free and open to the public, with a reception to be held immediately following. Mrs. Townsend has devoted part of her life to being national layspokeswoman on stroke for the American Heart association, and is also a director of Religious Heritage of America and a member of the National Speakers Association and Meeting Planners International.

Sparby Critical Of Critics On MN Business

State Representative Wally Sparby, District 1B, has criticized factions in Minnesota who continue to downgrade the state's business climate and cited facts that show a thriving economy and growing business base.

"Minnesota is a state that is growing," Rep. Sparby said. "After a sluggish few years caused by the last recession, our economy is showing all the signs that it will thrive as it once did. To write Minnesota off as having a 'bad business climate" is to ignore several factors which contribute to make our state whole, while giving undue weight to other, less positive factors.

"To continually say that Minnesota has a 'bad business climate' is counter-productive and does more harm than good," Sparby said.

Sparby said that figures from the department of revenue indicate that Minnesota is gaining jobs at a faster rate than 41 other states. Minnesota is also the only state in a five-state region from 1970 to 1980 to have a net increase of incoming businesses compared to out-going ones.

"Those that are criticizing Minnesota rely too much on quantitative measurement of a state's business fertility, such as taxes and wages, instead of on qualitative data," Sparby said.

Minnesotans, for example, have an average life span of 74.9 years, second highest in the nation. Minnesota also has the greatest percentage of voter turnout for elections of any state, he said. Minnesota also does well in other "quality" categories, he said. The state:

+ Leads the country in environmental protection efforts;

+ Has more surface water — 15,000 lakes over 10 acres — than any other state in the continental United States;

+Has the most community theaters;

+ Has a population in which 72 per cent of our residents have completed a high school education, and another 17 per cent have had four or more years of college;

+ Is the first state to initiate equalization of pay for state employees doing jobs of comparable worth.

"Likewise, the quality of our business climate is not nearly as doomed as some would like us to believe," Sparby said. "Already the governor and legislature have demonstrated a commitment to enhance Minnesota's business climate — by reforming the workers' comp system to hold down rates, by creating the export finance authority to provide insurance and credit guarantees for small businesses, and by establishing a state venture capital fund to start and expand small companies," he said.

Sparby also said that the 1984 legislative session proved to be particularly favorable for business.

"Our primary goal was to repeal the 10 per cent income tax surcharge, which we did, retroactive to Jan. 1, 1984," he said.

Sparby cited other good legislation for business: setting aside more than $320 million in economic development and jobs program; reducing the sales tax from six per cent to four per cent on new machinery purchases; reducing property taxes on the first $60,000 of commercial and industrial property; and repealing the Buy Minnesota law to counteract possible retaliatory measures by other states.

Small Grains Are Nearly All Seeded In MN

Conditions in most of the state last week continued favorable for fieldwork and crop growth, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service. An average of five days were suitable for fieldwork. Moderate rainfall amounts have been just enough to keep soil moisture at a good level for workability and germination.

Much of the northwest quarter of the state received little rain this spring, so the top layers of the soil are becoming dry. Windy days have contributed to the dryness of the topsoil, and have also made post-emergence weed spraying difficult. In some areas, not enough rain has been received for pre-emergence herbicides to work properly. Topsoil moisture as of May 25 was rated 12 per cent short, 74 per cent adequate, and 14 per cent surplus.

An estimated 94 per cent of this year's field corn acreage is prepared or beyond, compared with 93 per cent for five-year average. Planting of field corn advanced to 89 per cent complete, ahead of last year and the five-year average progress of 80 per cent and 84 per cent respectively. Field corn is 40 per cent emerged compared with 24 per cent a year ago and 44 per cent for the five-year average.

Spring wheat is 98 per cent seeded compared with 95 per cent a year ago and 91 per cent for the five-year average. An estimated 84 per cent of spring wheat is emerged versus 74 per cent last year and 75 per cent for the five-year average. Spring wheat condition is rated 25 per cent poor to fair and 75 per cent good to excellent.

Oats are 98 per cent seeded compared with 94 per cent for the five-year average. Barley is 97 per cent seeded versus 87 per cent for the five-year average. Oats are 88 per cent emerged compared with 82 per cent for the five-year average. Barley emergence at 82 per cent is ahead of the five-year average of 71 per cent.

Sunflower planting was active with 64 per cent now planted, compared with 47 per cent last year and 55 per cent for the five-year average. Flax is 65 per cent planted versus the five-year average of 57 per cent.

Sugar beets are 98 per cent planted versus 97 per cent for the five-year average. Potatoes at 78 per cent, planted are well ahead of the five-year average of 64 per cent. Planting of dry edible beans is 57 per cent complete versus 49 per cent a year ago. Green peas and sweet corn for processing have nearly caught up to the average pace. An estimated 82 per cent of peas and 52 per cent of sweet corn are planted, compared with five-year averages of 84 per cent and 55 per cent, respectively.

Pastures and hay fields have been growing rapidly. Heavy dandelion and mustard infestations have been reported. Cutting and chopping of alfalfa hay has gotten underway in a few areas, but many more producers are expected to begin the first crop hay harvest this next week. Pasture condition is rated 24 per cent fair, 65 per cent good, and 11 per cent excellent.

BALLOON RELEASE by students at St. Bernard's parochial school took place Thursday morning as part of the observance of the Feast of the Ascension at the school. It was also the last day of classes for the students at St. Bernard's and an activity day for them. The 160 balloons that were released by the students contained Bible message and a return address for St. Bernard's school. Students are hopeful that the strong wind which carried the balloons north will result in return messages from finders some distance from Thief River Falls.

MN. On Stage Set At Roseau Museum Sat.

Scenes from seven recently produced plays about Minnesota history will be presented in the production "Minnesota on Stage" at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, June 9, in the Roseau Museum-Library assembly room.

Appearing in several roles will be actor playwright Lance Belville, and actress/singer Ruth Mackenzie. The program will include music and scenes from the original productions of "Four Hearts and The Lords of the North", "The Man Who Bought Minneapolis" and others. Also included will be excerpts from St. Paul History Theatre's plays about Minnesota Civil War volunteers, the great railroad strike of 1922 and Minnesota immigration.

Former film actor and journalist Belville, also a history buff, has directed his career to writing and producing historical plays. Currently resident playwright of the Great North American History Theatre in St. Paul, Belville created Minnesota On Stage for the 1983 Minnesota Chautauqua touring programs with the assistance of director Larry Whiting.

Sponsored by the Roseau county historical society and the Roseau public library in cooperation with the Minnesota association of library friends and the Minnesota humanities commission, Saturday evening's performance will be free and open to the public. Discussion with the actors will follow the performance. Coffee and cookies will be served.

Oakland Park Has Full Week Of Activities

Nursing Home Week was observed recently at Oakland Park nursing home, with many activities under the theme "Long term care means tender loving care."

Activities began with the observance of Mothers Day on Sunday, May 13, with many of the residents visiting with family members both in and out of the home.

Resident Appreciation Day was observed on Monday, along with Pet Day. Several staff members brought family pets such as dogs and cats, and Betty Rantanen brought chicks and goats from her farm. Drawings were held with the following prizes awarded: Louis Meyer, meal at McDonalds; Will Anderson, meal at Hardees; and Theresa Ristau and John Betts, meal at Taco John's. The day's activities were concluded by a number of the residents with kite flying.

Staff Appreciation Day was observed on Tuesday, with a potluck dinner. Prize drawings were conducted with the following winners: Valerie Dew, floral arrangement from the resident council; Joyce Beck, meal at McDonalds; Pearl Dalzell, meal at Hardees; and Elinor Baker, meal at Taco John's. Afternoon activities included a basket social, with the ladies decorating baskets and preparing lunches which were auctioned off by Lois Anderson. Residents from Valley Home also visited for the social and musical entertainment was provided by ragtime pianist Ace Hanson.

On Wednesday, 150 guests were served at the 11th annual mother-daughter tea. Entertainment was provided by Phyllis Dalager of Thief River Falls on the piano. Prizes were awarded to the following people: Helma Bjerkness, daughter traveling the greatest distance, (Sun City, AZ.); Olga Harstad, youngest generation and four generations present; Alice Jesme, most daughters present; and Anna Chelson, most generations. Serving for the tea were: Lennae Halvorson, hostess; Mabel Torkelson, guest book; Verna Schroeder, punch pourer; Elinor Baker, coffee pourer; Sharon Hoglo, cake server and Elinor Lake, salad server.

Weekly church services were held on Thursday, with Rev. Bernard Lewellin of the United Methodist church. Two musical selections were sung by the Oakland Park choir.

Friday events included a style show, with many local merchants providing current fashions which were modeled by staff members. Piano music was provided during the show by Pearl Dalzell. An open house was held also, with many family members and friends joining the residents for lunch.

Nursing home week events were concluded on Saturday, with showing of movies: "John Muir's High Sierra" and "Rise and Fall of the Great Lakes."

Small Business Leaders Lament State's Taxes

Governor Rudy Perpich's proposed $50 million tax relief for large corporations completely ignores the needs of Minnesota small business, according to the leaders of two business groups.

In a joint news conference, John Herman, president of the Independent Business Association of Minnesota (IBAM) and Marion "Mike" Menning, chairman of the board of Minnesota Proposition 180, declared, "the governor's 'Mecca for multi-nationals' will only shift the tax burden to those firms which are too small to have sales outside of Minnesota".

"We agree with Perpich that 'we are a high tax state. .' We agree that we are 'throwing sand in the gears of progress' with our high taxes. But, we disagree that our state can spend it's way back to prosperity", Menning said.

"Once again the governor puts increased spending above the need for tax relief for all Minnesota taxpayers. While small business, farmers and homeowners cry for relief from oppressive taxation, our governor acts as if he is doing us a favor by increasing spending by 14.5 per cent. That's $1.4 billion increase over the current two years", Herman said..

"This legislative session did nothing to improve Minnesota business climate," according to Menning. "Instead of tax relief we got a $197 million, 320 page garbage bill which among other things raised legislators' pay by 20 per cent, raised the governor's pay by $10,000 per year, extended an inefficient jobs program, funded a study to see if the state should buy the bankrupt monorail at the Minnesota Zoo, and allocated $10 million to begin building a light-rail transit system even though a corridor for the tracks has never been established. Most of this $197 million should have been used for tax relief".

"Tucked into the omnibus tax bill, without benefit of committee hearings or studies, were two grants to large Minnesota corporations. The Onan company in Fridley received $2.4 million to purchase new capital equipment to become more competitive and Cornbelt Meats received $1 million to help purchase the Wilson plant in Albert Lea. "Is it legal?", asked the IBAM president.

"IBM Corporation in Rochester received $1.8 million tax exemption on foreign dividends in other action. Is this equitable?" asked Herman.

"If you're nice to those in power, don't complain about the business climate or stop complaining and you're big enough to be noticed, you can win rewards from our benevolent state leaders," Herman declared. "But the rest of us will be left with the bill."

"Repeal of the surtax shouldn't be viewed as a panacea" Menning said. "It won't make a bad business climate good, but it has a first step. Taxes in general-personal, corporate and real estate need to be reduced to make Minnesota competitive".

"We also need reform in unemployment compensation and workers compensation. The cost of these programs has caused many employers and jobs to leave Minnesota,"Menning said.

The IBAM president and Proposition 180 chairman predicted that there will be $1 billion surplus at the end of the biennium and demanded tax relief for Minnesota taxpayers.

NOW, CHECKING THAT PAYS MONEY MARKET RATES AND CAB FARE ON BROADWAY AT 2 A.M.

A money market account gets you high returns. A money market checking account gets you high returns and easy access to your money.

Some banks have a different idea of "easy access" than we do. They think it should end at the city limits. At 5 P.M.

But you're not always within the city limits. And sometimes you need money after banking hours.

That's why we created a money market checking account that's accessible, really. You can use your Instant Cash Card from coast to coast throughout the CIRRUS network. At over 5,000 locations. At all hours of the day.

Even on Broadway at 2 A.M. And the convenience doesn't stop there.

You don't pay any fees while you maintain the minimum balance. You enjoy the security of FDIC insurance and your Norwest Bank. And as always, you can count on our friendly, professional service.

Great returns. Easy access. No fees. That's the spirit of Norwest in Money Market Checking.

That's the Norwest Spirit!

School Board Acts On Several Topics

Elimination of 13 positions in the current Thief River Falls public school employee pattern and the establishment of 14 positions as a result of changes was approved by the board of education at its meeting Monday evening.

The board also purchased two new station wagons, approved a multiple handicapped program for ages 0-3, gave preliminary consideration to the 1984-85 budget, adopted mathematics and language arts series and purchased a walk-in food freezer.

Positions eliminated included a kindergarten post at Mark Twain, second grade at Mark Twain, third grade at Washington, fourth grade at Northrop, fifth grade and SLD at Mark Twain, one-half FTE Title 1 at Mark Twain, one-half physical education at Lincoln, K-12 physical education, TMH at Northrop, one-half elementary librarian, kindergarten aide at Mark Twain and two-hour custodian at Knox.

Positions established were kindergarten at Mark Twain-Knox, first through fifth grades at Knox, SLD at Mark Twain-Knox, one FTE Title I for Mark Twain-Knox, one FTE physical education each for Lincoln and elementary, TMH at Knox, one FTE elementary librarian, kindergarten aide and one FTE custodian at Knox.

Resignation of Paul Vogt, science instructor on leave, was accepted. The board agreed to post for a 200-day AVTI electronics technician computer occupations instructor effective August 30 and an AVTI confidential employee position effective July 1.

Hired were Cheri Benter, vision instructor; Scott Hetherington, science instructor at Lincoln; Jody Dallmann and Frances Kuyath, WSI instructors; and Paul Kero, AVTI broadcasting instructor.

Two Pontiac station wagons were purchased on bids from Michael Motors for a total cost of $21,942. House project for Russ and Karen Walseth was approved for construction by the AVTI carpentry class in 1984-85 Prichard Brothers was awarded a $5,400 contract for remodeling of the Lincoln science department, including provision of water, a sink and second room exit.

Adopted was the Scott-Forsman mathematics series for grades six, seven and eight at a cost of $8,486 and the Houghton-Mifflin language arts series for grades K-5 and 9-12 at a cost of approximately $12,800.

Al Christofferson of the Sports Boosters club said the group had received a quote from Fisher Electric which would save the district $4,200 on lights to be erected at the athletic field. The quote for $15,560 includes six more lights than the previous quote as well as additional wiring.

Student accident insurance policy was renewed for 1984-85 while a health insurance proposal was referred to the district insurance committee. The tentative budget was discussed but approval delayed to the next meeting. Walk-in freezer for the district was purchased from Dakota Foods in the amount of $10,243.

Parents of kindergarten students in the Mark Twain and Knox areas are being polled to determine their preference for two sections of kindergarten at Knox or one at Knox and another at Mark Twain.

Question of space leasing in the hangar purchased from the city of Thief River Falls by Bemidji Airlines, United Satellite Systems and Eagle Ag Services was referred to the administration for a meeting with the parties involved and recommendation to the board. Next meeting will be June 13 at 7 a.m.

Flag Disposal Ceremony Set For Thursday

Ecklund-Holmstrom Post 117 of the American Legion will conduct a formal flag dispoal by burning ceremony at 6 p.m. Thursday, June 14, in Elks Park, following annual Elks Flag Day activities in Thief River Falls.

Organizations or individuals having American flags which are no longer serviceable (torn, discolored or faded) are asked to bring them to the ceremony. During the ceremony, members of American Legion Post 117 will dispose of the banners in a manner befitting the dignity of our nation's symbol.

Sampson Given Probation By District Court

Glenn Edgar Sampson, Thief River Falls, had imposition of sentence stayed for five years on conditions set by Judge Warren A. Saetre in special session of Pennington county district court on Monday, June 4, in Thief River Falls.

Sampson was charged on April 16 with possession of stolen property and transferring of stolen property. In a plea bargaining arrangement on May 7, Sampson entered a plea of guilty to the charge of transferring stolen property, and the first charge was dismissed by the court.

Imposition of sentence was stayed on conditions that Sampson remain on probation with the Minnesota department of corrections for five years, keep appointments with his agent and remain a law abiding citizen. He was also ordered to keep company with no known parolees, use no alcoholic beverages or non-prescription drugs or enter establishments serving alcohol, and was directed to pay $350 to the public defender's fund or spend 30 days in jail.

Senior Center Planning Is Now Underway

Building committee for the proposed new senior citizen center in Thief River Falls held its initial meeting with the engineering firm of Stewart and Walker, Inc., recently to discuss preliminary plans for the project.

Dick Rude of Bemidji, who serves as architect for the Stewart and Walker firm, was in attendance along with Dave Kildahl. Attending from the building committee were Morris Howick, Jon Metusalem, Merle Lindberg and Otto Stenberg. Jack Quinlivan, city planner, represented the city while Pat Rood and Linda Reitmeier represented the Northwest regional commission.

Particular attention was given to placement of the building on the lot which is located at the corner of Horace avenue and Fourth street just south of First Baptist church. Assurance was given that plans will be reviewed with the officers of the church before final approval is given.

Building committee members emphasized that location of the building on the lot must provide for convenient loading and unloading of both people and supplies. On-site parking, landscaping and beautification were also given consideration, as well as a canopy or other protection from the weather at the entrance to the center.

Much of the meeting involved discussion and planning on kitchen needs of the center if it is to serve the senior meals and activities program as projected for the next 20 years. An estimated 185 meals per day would be served through the facility and equipment and storage based on that number would be necessary. Consideration was also given, however, to preparation of food at the center for satellite centers located nearby.

Also planned is a room for the senior craft shop, as well as two offices. One of the latter would be leased to the Senior Federation, the other having multi-purpose use for the Council on Aging and other groups using the center. Balance of the center space is intended to be one large room with moveable dividers.

First C of C Business After Hours Slated

Thief River Falls chamber of commerce will conduct its first "Business After Hours" session for members Monday from 5 to 7 p.m. poolside at the Best Western inn.

A number of local businesses will have products on display or be on hand to discuss services. Cost is $5 per person attending.

DAIRY CATTLE played a substantial role in the life of the Marvin Olson family since the dairy operation is a major part of the family farm operation. Lori Olson, 1983 Northwest Dairy Princess, is familiar with working with cattle although most of her contribution to family farm life is in the kitchen, yard or tractor operation. Lori will reign over the 35th annual Northwest dairy day festivities next Tuesday in Thief River Falls and crown her successor as the concluding event of the day.

DAIRY PRODUCTS are always on hand and often in use at the home of Northwest Dairy Princess Lori Olson of Fertile. Lori will conclude her year as the Region One princess next Tuesday when she crowns her successor at the 35th annual Northwest dairy day in Thief River Falls. In a family with two older sisters and a younger brother and sister, Lori recognizes the role that dairy products have played in the family's living. The Marvin Olson family has about 90 head of Holstein cattle, milking more than 30 head in the dairy operation. As Region One's entry in the Minnesota Princess Kay contest at the Minnesota state fair last fall, Lori was one of two runners-up to the state winner, Lisa Marie Schaffer of Cannon Falls.

Lori Olson Nears Finish Of Dairy Princess Reign

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Participation at the Minnesota state fair, where she was selected as one of two runner-ups to Princess Kay of the Milky Way, was the highlight of Lori Olson's reign as Region One dairy princess. She represented northwest Minnesota's dairy industry during the past year and will relinquish her crown at the 35th annual Northwest dairy day in Thief River Falls next Tuesday.

Lori spent a week at the state fair, promoting dairy products at the dairy building there, riding in the state fair parade, taking part in interviews and judging, having her likeness sculpted in butter, attending a Willie Nelson concert in the grandstand and other activities.

Her activities as Northwest Dairy Princess were somewhat restricted due to her studies at Moorhead state university where she is majoring in English education, but she did work with a dairy promotion — including a cow milking contest — at Blackduck, distribute ribbons and appear at dairy booths at the county fairs in Fertile and Thief River Falls, ride in several area parades including Thief River Falls, and spent two days at the Red River Valley winter shows in Crookston where she was an active participant in the programs.

"I have enjoyed the year as dairy princess," she said, "but I wish that it would have been possible for me to do more in dairy promotion. Dairying has been a big part of our family life, I really do believe in the healthful value of natural foods like dairy products, and I would like to help make more people aware of the importance of the industry."

If Lori is to promote dairy products this summer, it will have to be a long way from home. She leaves Minnesota June 16 for San Diego, CA, where she will be involved in mission work through August 25 with Campus Crusade for Christ. At MSU she has been active in the organization for the past two years, attending weekly meetings, singing and playing piano and taking part in group activities.

Her educational objective includes getting a coaching certificate so that she can be involved in athletic instruction. She takes part in intra-mural volleyball, softball, basketball and football at MSU and also plays tennis for personal enjoyment.

While at Fertile-Beltrami high school she developed a strong athletic background in a highly successful sports program. During her six years in junior varsity and varsity basketball the team won six successive District 30 championships. In 1980 and 1981 the team finished third in Region 8A play and in 1982, when Lori was a senior, parlayed a 17-6 record into a regional championship and participation in the state tournament.

Lori was also a member of the volleyball team from eighth through 12th grade with the exception of her junior year when she served as a cheerleader for the football team. She was a senior class treasurer, member of the National Honor society, a senior honor student and active in instrumental music programs. Her mother, Eleanor, is a teacher at the Fertile-Beltrami school.

Lori began playing alto saxophone through 12th grade and won several state area star ratings in both saxophone and vocal solos. She sang in the high school

ATHLETIC INTEREST involves Northwest Dairy Princess in a number of sports, but her favorite has been basketball. A member of the Region 8A champion Fertile-Beltrami high school girls basketball team two years ago, she competed in the state tournament. During the years she played junior varsity and varsity basketball, Fertile-Beltrami won the District 30 championship six years in a row. A basket and backboard on the Olson garage gets frequent use when Lori is home from her studies at Moorhead state university.

Charge Driver Involved In Fatal Mishap

Carl Flaten Sr. of Oklee made a first appearance in Pennington county court Tuesday, charged with criminal vehicular operation and aggravated driving after revocation of his driver's license.

Flaten was the driver of the car which struck another vehicle driven by Mrs. Ray (Chris) Hedlund Sunday south of Thief River Falls, fatally injuring Mrs. Hedlund. Early reports of the accident indicated that the Hedlund car had gone out of control and slid broadside into the path of the Flaten vehicle.

David Olin, Pennington county attorney, said the charges arose from a report by a witness who claims to have followed the Flaten car for a distance and observed it "swerving all over the road". Olin said both charges involve evidence of the defendant driving while under the influence.

Bond was set at $3,000 and public defender Dennis Murphy was appointed to represent Flaten. Criminal vehicular operation is a felony charge and Flaten's next appearance will be in district court.

Day Camp For Girl Scouts Opens June 18

Girl Scout day camp for Thief River Falls girls will be conducted June 18 through 22 at Camp MOE, located southeast of Thief River Falls. Camp hours will be from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., according to Renee Vedbraaten, camp director.

Bus to transport scouts to the camp will leave Washington elementary school at 9:15 a.m. and Mark Twain elementary school at 9:20 a.m. each day of the camp.

Registration for the day camp session has been completed and girls who will be participating are asked to bring with them to camp the following items: Dunk bags for dishes, folding pocket knife, rain gear and sweatshirts. Girls are advised not to wear shorts or sandals.

Persons with questions about the camp may contact Mrs. Vedbraaten at 681-6949.

United Way Meets Monday

Thief River Falls United Way board will meet Monday at 7 p.m. at the Occupational Development center (ODC) in Thief River Falls.

Sparby Critical Of Critics On MN Business

State Representative Wally Sparby, District 1B, has criticized factions in Minnesota who continue to downgrade the state's business climate and cited facts that show a thriving economy and growing business base.

"Minnesota is a state that is growing," Rep. Sparby said. "After a sluggish few years caused by the last recession, our economy is showing all the signs that it will thrive as it once did. To write Minnesota off as having a 'bad business climate" is to ignore several factors which contribute to make our state whole, while giving undue weight to other, less positive factors.

"To continually say that Minnesota has a 'bad business climate' is counter-productive and does more harm than good," Sparby said.

Sparby said that figures from the department of revenue indicate that Minnesota is gaining jobs at a faster rate than 41 other states. Minnesota is also the only state in a five-state region from 1970 to 1980 to have a net increase of incoming businesses compared to out-going ones.

"Those that are criticizing Minnesota rely too much on quantitative measurement of a state's business fertility, such as taxes and wages, instead of on qualitative data," Sparby said.

Minnesotans, for example, have an average life span of 74.9 years, second highest in the nation. Minnesota also has the greatest percentage of voter turnout for elections of any state, he said. Minnesota also does well in other "quality" categories, he said. The state:

+ Leads the country in environmental protection efforts;

+ Has more surface water — 15,000 lakes over 10 acres — than any other state in the continental United States;

+Has the most community theaters;

+ Has a population in which 72 per cent of our residents have completed a high school education, and another 17 per cent have had four or more years of college;

+ Is the first state to initiate equalization of pay for state employees doing jobs of comparable worth.

"Likewise, the quality of our business climate is not nearly as doomed as some would like us to believe," Sparby said. "Already the governor and legislature have demonstrated a commitment to enhance Minnesota's business climate — by reforming the workers' comp system to hold down rates, by creating the export finance authority to provide insurance and credit guarantees for small businesses, and by establishing a state venture capital fund to start and expand small companies," he said.

Sparby also said that the 1984 legislative session proved to be particularly favorable for business.

"Our primary goal was to repeal the 10 per cent income tax surcharge, which we did, retroactive to Jan. 1, 1984," he said.

Sparby cited other good legislation for business: setting aside more than $320 million in economic development and jobs program; reducing the sales tax from six per cent to four per cent on new machinery purchases; reducing property taxes on the first $60,000 of commercial and industrial property; and repealing the Buy Minnesota law to counteract possible retaliatory measures by other states.

Small Grains Are Nearly All Seeded In MN

Conditions in most of the state last week continued favorable for fieldwork and crop growth, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service. An average of five days were suitable for fieldwork. Moderate rainfall amounts have been just enough to keep soil moisture at a good level for workability and germination.

Much of the northwest quarter of the state received little rain this spring, so the top layers of the soil are becoming dry. Windy days have contributed to the dryness of the topsoil, and have also made post-emergence weed spraying difficult. In some areas, not enough rain has been received for pre-emergence herbicides to work properly. Topsoil moisture as of May 25 was rated 12 per cent short, 74 per cent adequate, and 14 per cent surplus.

An estimated 94 per cent of this year's field corn acreage is prepared or beyond, compared with 93 per cent for five-year average. Planting of field corn advanced to 89 per cent complete, ahead of last year and the five-year average progress of 80 per cent and 84 per cent respectively. Field corn is 40 per cent emerged compared with 24 per cent a year ago and 44 per cent for the five-year average.

Spring wheat is 98 per cent seeded compared with 95 per cent a year ago and 91 per cent for the five-year average. An estimated 84 per cent of spring wheat is emerged versus 74 per cent last year and 75 per cent for the five-year average. Spring wheat condition is rated 25 per cent poor to fair and 75 per cent good to excellent.

Oats are 98 per cent seeded compared with 94 per cent for the five-year average. Barley is 97 per cent seeded versus 87 per cent for the five-year average. Oats are 88 per cent emerged compared with 82 per cent for the five-year average. Barley emergence at 82 per cent is ahead of the five-year average of 71 per cent.

Sunflower planting was active with 64 per cent now planted, compared with 47 per cent last year and 55 per cent for the five-year average. Flax is 65 per cent planted versus the five-year average of 57 per cent.

Sugar beets are 98 per cent planted versus 97 per cent for the five-year average. Potatoes at 78 per cent, planted are well ahead of the five-year average of 64 per cent. Planting of dry edible beans is 57 per cent complete versus 49 per cent a year ago. Green peas and sweet corn for processing have nearly caught up to the average pace. An estimated 82 per cent of peas and 52 per cent of sweet corn are planted, compared with five-year averages of 84 per cent and 55 per cent, respectively.

Pastures and hay fields have been growing rapidly. Heavy dandelion and mustard infestations have been reported. Cutting and chopping of alfalfa hay has gotten underway in a few areas, but many more producers are expected to begin the first crop hay harvest this next week. Pasture condition is rated 24 per cent fair, 65 per cent good, and 11 per cent excellent.

BALLOON RELEASE by students at St. Bernard's parochial school took place Thursday morning as part of the observance of the Feast of the Ascension at the school. It was also the last day of classes for the students at St. Bernard's and an activity day for them. The 160 balloons that were released by the students contained Bible message and a return address for St. Bernard's school. Students are hopeful that the strong wind which carried the balloons north will result in return messages from finders some distance from Thief River Falls.

MN. On Stage Set At Roseau Museum Sat.

Scenes from seven recently produced plays about Minnesota history will be presented in the production "Minnesota on Stage" at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, June 9, in the Roseau Museum-Library assembly room.

Appearing in several roles will be actor playwright Lance Belville, and actressfinger Ruth Mackenzie. The program will include music and scenes from the original productions of "Four Hearts and The Lords of the North", "The Man Who Bought Minneapolis" and others. Also included will be excerpts from St. Paul History Theatre's plays about Minnesota Civil War volunteers, the great railroad strike of 1922 and Minnesota immigration.

Former film actor and journalist Belville, also a history buff, has directed his career to writing and producing historical plays. Currently resident playwright of the Great North American History Theatre in St. Paul, Belville created Minnesota On Stage for the 1983 Minnesota Chautauqua touring programs with the assistance of director Larry Whiting.

Sponsored by the Roseau county historical socelty and the Roseau public library in cooperation with the Minnesota association of library friends and the Minnesota humanities commission, Saturday evening's performance will be free and open to the public. Discussion with the actors will follow the performance. Coffee and cookies will be served.

Oakland Park Has Full Week Of Activities

Nursing Home Week was observed recently at Oakland Park nursing home, with many activities under the theme "Long term care means tender loving care."

Activities began with the observance of Mothers Day on Sunday, May 13, with many of the residents visiting with family members both in and out of the home.

Resident Appreciation Day was observed on Monday, along with Pet Day. Several staff members brought family pets such as dogs and cats, and Betty Rantanen brought chicks and goats from her farm. Drawings were held with the following prizes awarded: Louis Meyer, meal at McDonalds; Will Anderson, meal at Hardees; and Theresa Ristau and John Betts, meal at Taco John's. The day's activities were concluded by a number of the residents with kite flying.

Staff Appreciation Day was observed on Tuesday, with a potluck dinner. Prize drawings were conducted with the following winners: Valerie Dew, floral arrangement from the resident council; Joyce Beck, meal at McDonalds; Pearl Dalzell, meal at Hardees; and Elinor Baker, meal at Taco John's. Afternoon activities included a basket social, with the ladies decorating baskets and preparing lunches which were auctioned off by Lois Anderson. Residents from Valley Home also visited for the social and musical entertainment was provided by ragtime pianist Ace Hanson.

On Wednesday, 150 guests were served at the 11th annual mother-daughter tea. Entertainment was provided by Phyllis Dalager of Thief River Falls on the piano. Prizes were awarded to the following people: Helma Bjerkness, daughter traveling the greatest distance, (Sun City, AZ.); Olga Harstad, youngest generation and four generations present; Alice Jesme, most daughters present; and Anna Chelson, most generations. Serving for the tea were: Lennae Halvorson, hostess; Mabel Torkelson, guest book; Verna Schroeder, punch pourer; Elinor Baker, coffee pourer; Sharon Hoglo, cake server and Elinor Lake, salad server.

Weekly church services were held on Thursday, with Rev. Bernard Lewellin of the United Methodist church. Two musical selections were sung by the Oakland Park choir.

Friday events included a style show, with many local merchants providing current fashions which were modeled by staff members. Piano music was provided during the show by Pearl Dalzell. An open house was held also, with many family members and friends joining the residents for lunch.

Nursing home week events were concluded on Saturday, with showing of movies: "John Muir's High Sierra" and "Rise and Fall of the Great Lakes."

Small Business Leaders Lament State's Taxes

Governor Rudy Perpich's proposed $50 million tax relief for large corporations completely ignores the needs of Minnesota small business, according to the leaders of two business groups.

In a joint news conference, John Herman, president of the Independent Business Association of Minnesota (IBAM) and Marion "Mike" Menning, chairman of the board of Minnesota Proposition 180, declared, "the governor's 'Mecca for multi-nationals' will only shift the tax burden to those firms which are too small to have sales outside of Minnesota".

"We agree with Perpich that 'we are a high tax state. . .' We agree that we are 'throwing sand in the gears of progress' with our high taxes. But, we disagree that our state can spend it's way back to propserity", Menning said.

"Once again the governor puts increased spending above the need for tax relief for all Minnesota taxpayers. While small business, farmers and homeowners cry for relief from oppressive taxation, our governor acts as if he is doing us a favor by increasing spending by 14.5 per cent. That's $1.4 billion increase over the current two years", Herman said.

"This legislative session did nothing to improve Minnesota business climate," according to Menning. "Instead of tax relief we got a $197 million, 320 page garbage bill which among other things raised legislators' pay by 20 per cent, raised the governor's pay by $10,000 per year, extended an ineffeicient jobs program, funded a study to see if the state should buy the bankrupt monorail at the Minnesota Zoo, and allocated $10 million to begin building a light-rail transit system even though a corridor for the tracks has never been established. Most of this $197 million should have been used for tax relief".

"Tucked into the omnibus tax bill, without benefit of committee hearings or studies, were two grants to large Minnesota corporations. The Onan company in Fridley received $2.4 million to purchase new capital equipment to become more competitive and Cornbelt Meats received $1 million to help purchase the Wilson plant in Albert Lea. "Is it legal?". asked the IBAM president.

"IBM Corporation in Rochester received $1.8 million tax exemption on foreign dividends in other action. Is this equitable?" asked Herman.

"If you're nice to those in power, don't complain about the business climate or stop complaining and you're big enough to be noticed, you can win rewards from our benevolent state leaders," Herman declared. "But the rest of us will be left with the bill."

"Repeal of the surtax shouldn't be viewed as a panacea" Menning said. "It won't make a bad business climate good, but it has a first step. Taxes in general-personal, corporate and real estate need to be reduced to make Minnesota competitive".

"We also need reform in unemployment compensation and workers compensation. The cost of these programs has caused many employers and jobs to leave Minnesota,"Menning said.

The IBAM president and Proposition 180 chairman predicted that there will be $1 billion surplus at the end of the biennium and demanded tax relief for Minnesota taxpayers.

NOW, CHECKING THAT PAYS MONEY MARKET RATES AND CAB FARE ON BROADWAY AT 2 A.M.

A money market account gets you high returns. A money market checking account gets you high returns and easy access to your money.

Some banks have a different idea of "easy access" than we do. They think it should end at the city limits. At 5 PM.

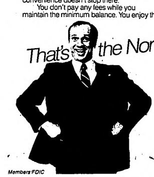
But you're not always within the city limits. And sometimes you need money after banking hours.

That's why we created a money market checking account that's accessible, really. You can use your Instant Cash Card from coast to coast throughout the CIRRUS network.™ At over 5,000 locations. At all hours of the day.

Even on Broadway at 2 A.M. And the convenience doesn't stop there.

You don't pay any fees while you maintain the minimum balance. You enjoy the security of FDIC insurance and your Norwest Bank. And as always, you can count on our friendly, professional service.

Great returns. Easy access. No fees. That's the spirit of Norwest in Money Market Checking.



That's the Norwest Spirit!
Banking. And a whole lot more.

LINCOLN SOPHOMORE Nicole Boughton was selected as the 1984 winner of the Hugh O'Brian youth leadership seminar trip sponsored through the Zehlian arts group of the Thief River Falls federated women's club. Assistance in sponsorship is provided by Northern state bank and the Thief River Falls Kiwanis club. Nicole, who will be a junior at Lincoln this fall, will attend the leadership seminar Friday through Sunday at Hamline university in St. Paul and report on her experiences when she returns. Left to right in the photo above are Rosie Fournier of Northern state bank, Maxine McEwen of the Zehlians, Nicole Boughton (daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Boughton) and Kent Johnson of the Kiwanis club.

Senior Center Planning Is Now Underway

Building committee for the proposed new senior citizen center in Thief River Falls held its initial meeting with the engineering firm of Stewart and Walker, Inc., recently to discuss preliminary plans for the project.

Dick Rude of Bemidji, who serves as architect for the Stewart and Walker firm, was in attendance along with Dave Kildahl. Attending from the building committee were Morris Howick, Jon Metusalem, Merle Lindberg and Otto Stenberg. Jack Quinlivan, city planner, represented the city while Pat Rood and Linda Reitmeier represented the Northwest regional commission.

Particular attention was given to placement of the building on the lot which is located at the corner of Horace avenue and Fourth street just south of First Baptist church. Assurance was given that plans will be reviewed with the officers of the church before final approval is given.

Building committee members emphasized that location of the building on the lot must provide for convenient loading and unloading of both people and supplies. On-site parking, landscaping and beautification were also given consideration, as well as a canopy or other protection from the weather at the entrance to the center.

Much of the meeting involved discussion and planning on kitchen needs of the center if it is to serve the senior meals and activities program as projected for the next 20 years. An estimated 185 meals per day would be served through the facility and equipment and storage based on that number would be necessary. Consideration was also given, however, to preparation of food at the center for satellite centers located nearby.

Also planned is a room for the senior craft shop, as well as two offices. One of the latter would be leased to the Senior Federation, the other having multi-purpose use for the Council on Aging and other groups using the center. Balance of the center space is intended to be one large room with moveable dividers.

School Board Acts On Several Topics

Elimination of 13 positions in the current Thief River Falls public school employee pattern and the establishment of 14 positions as a result of changes was approved by the board of education at its meeting Monday evening.

The board also purchased two new station wagons, approved a multiple handicapped program for ages 0-3, gave preliminary consideration to the 1984-85 budget, adopted mathematics and language arts series and purchased a walk-in food freezer.

Positions eliminated included a kindergarten post at Mark Twain, second grade at Mark Twain, third grade at Washington, fourth grade at Northrop, fifth grade and SLD at Mark Twain, one-half FTE Title 1 at Mark Twain, one-half physical education at Lincoln, K-12 physical education, TMH at Northrop, one-half elementary librarian, kindergarten aide at Mark Twain and two-hour custodian at Knox.

Positions established were kindergarten at Mark Twain-Knox, first through fifth grades at Knox, SLD at Mark Twain-Knox, one FTE Title I for Mark Twain-Knox, one FTE physical education each for Lincoln and elementary, TMH at Knox, one FTE elementary librarian, kindergarten aide and one FTE custodian at Knox.

Resignation of Paul Vogt, science instructor on leave, was accepted. The board agreed to post for a 200-day AVTI electronics technician computer occupations instructor effective August 30 and an AVTI confidential employee position effective July 1.

Hired were Cheri Benter, vision instructor; Scott Hetherington, science instructor at Lincoln; Jody Dallmann and Frances Kuyath, WSI instructors; and Paul Kero, AVTI broadcasting instructor.

Two Pontiac station wagons were purchased on bids from Michael Motors for a total cost of $21,942. House project for Russ and Karen Walseth was approved for construction by the AVTI carpentry class in 1984-85 Prichard Brothers was awarded a $5,400 contract for remodeling of the Lincoln science department, including provision of water, a sink and second room exit.

Adopted was the Scott-Forsman mathematics series for grades six, seven and eight at a cost of $8,486 and the Houghton-Mifflin language arts series for grades K-5 and 9-12 at a cost of approximately $12,800.

Al Christofferson of the Sports Boosters club said the group had received a quote from Fisher Electric which would save the district $4,200 on lights to be erected at the athletic field. The quote for $15,560 includes six more lights than the previous quote as well as additional wiring.

Student accident insurance policy was renewed for 1984-85 while a health insurance proposal was referred to the district insurance committee. The tentative budget was discussed but approval delayed to the next meeting. Walk-in freezer for the district was purchased from Dakota Foods in the amount of $10,243.

Parents of kindergarten students in the Mark Twain and Knox areas are being polled to determine their preference for two sections of kindergarten at Knox or one at Knox and another at Mark Twain.

Question of space leasing in the hangar purchased from the city of Thief River Falls by Bemidji Airlines, United Satellite Systems and Eagle Ag Services was referred to the administration for a meeting with the parties involved and recommendation to the board. Next meeting will be June 18 at [illegible] a.m.

Flag Disposal Ceremony Set For Thursday

Ecklund-Holmstron Post 117 of the American Legion will conduct a formal flag dispoal by burning ceremony at 6 p.m. Thursday, June 14, in Elks Park, following annual Elks Flag Day activities in Thief River Falls.

Organizations or individuals having American flags which are no longer serviceable (torn, discolored or faded) are asked to bring them to the ceremony. During the ceremony, members of American Legion Post 117 will dispose of the banners in a manner befitting the dignity of our nation's symbol.

Sampson Given Probation By District Court

Glenn Edgar Sampson, Thief River Falls, had imposition of sentence stayed for five years on conditions set by Judge Warren A. Saetre in special session of Pennington county district court on Monday, June 4, in Thief River Falls.

Sampson was charged on April 16 with possession of stolen property and transferring of stolen property. In a plea bargaining arrangement on May 7, Sampson entered a plea of guilty to the charge of transferring stolen property, and the first charge was dismissed by the court.

Imposition of sentence was stayed on conditions that Sampson remain on probation with the Minnesota department of corrections for five years, keep appointments with his agent and remain a law abiding citizen. He was also ordered to keep company with no known parolees, use no alcoholic beverages or non-prescription drugs or enter establishments serving alcohol, and was directed to pay $350 to the public defender's fund or spend 30 days in jail.

First C of C Business After Hours Slated

Thief River Falls chamber of commerce will conduct its first "Business After Hours" session for members Monday from 5 to 7 p.m. poolside at the Best Western Inn.

A number of local businesses will have products on display or be on hand to discuss services. Cost is $5 per person attending.

DAIRY CATTLE played a substantial role in the life of the Marvin Olson family since the dairy operation is a major part of the family farm operation. Lori Olson, 1983 Northwest Dairy Princess, is familiar with working with cattle although most of her contribution to family farm life is in the kitchen, yard or tractor operation. Lori will reign over the 35th annual Northwest dairy day festivities next Tuesday in Thief River Falls and crown her successor as the concluding event of the day.

DAIRY PRODUCTS are always on hand and often in use at the home of Northwest Dairy Princess Lori Olson of Fertile. Lori will conclude her year as the Region One princess next Tuesday when she crowns her successor at the 35th annual Northwest dairy day in Thief River Falls. In a family with two older sisters and a younger brother and sister, Lori recognizes the role that dairy products have played in the family's living. The Marvin Olson family has about 90 head of Holstein cattle, milking more than 30 head in the dairy operation. As Region One's entry in the Minnesota Princess Kay contest at the Minnesota state fair last fall, Lori was one of two runners-up to the state winner, Lisa Marie Schaffer of Cannon Falls.

Lori Olson Nears Finish Of Dairy Princess Reign

by Marvin Lundin

Participation at the Minnesota state fair, where she was selected as one of two runner-ups to Princess Kay of the Milky Way, was the highlight of Lori Olson's reign as Region One dairy princess. She represented northwest Minnesota's dairy industry during the past year and will relinquish her crown at the 35th annual Northwest dairy day in Thief River Falls next Tuesday.

Lori spent a week at the state fair, promoting dairy products at the dairy building there, riding in the state fair parade, taking part in interviews and judging, having her likeness sculpted in butter, attending a Willie Nelson concert in the grandstand and other activities.

Her activities as Northwest Dairy Princess were somewhat restricted due to her studies at Moorhead state university where she is majoring in English education, but she did work with a dairy promotion — including a cow milking contest — at Blackduck, distribute ribbons and appear at dairy booths at the county fairs in Fertile and Thief River Falls, ride in several area parades including Thief River Falls, and spent two days at the Red River Valley winter shows in Crookston where she was an active participant in the programs.

"I have enjoyed the year as dairy princess," she said, "but I wish that it would have been possible for me to do more in dairy promotion. Dairying has been a big part of our family life, I really do believe in the healthful value of natural foods like dairy products, and I would like to help make more people aware of the importance of the industry."

If Lori is to promote dairy products this summer, it will have to be a long way from home. She leaves Minnesota June 16 for San Diego, CA, where she will be involved in mission work through August 25 with Campus Crusade for Christ. At MSU she has been active in the organization for the past two years, attending weekly meetings, singing and playing piano and taking part in group activities.

Her educational objective includes getting a coaching certificate so that she can be involved in athletic instruction. She takes part in intra-mural volleyball, softball, basketball and football at MSU and also plays tennis for personal enjoyment.

While at Fertile-Beltrami high school she developed a strong athletic background in a highly successful sports program. During her six years in junior varsity and varsity basketball the team won six successive District 30 championships. In 1980 and 1981 the team finished third in Region 8A play and in 1982, when Lori was a senior, parlayed a 17-6 record into a regional championship and participation in the state tournament.

Lori was also a member of the volleyball team from eighth through 12th grade with the exception of her junior year when she served as a cheerleader for the football team. She was a senior class treasurer, member of the National Honor society, a senior honor student and active in vocal and instrumental music programs. Her mother, Eleanor, is music teacher at the Fertile-Beltrami school.

Lori began playing alto saxophone in the fourth grade and won several district and state area star ratings in both saxophone and vocal solos. She sang in the high school

ATHLETIC INTEREST involves Northwest Dairy Princess in a number of sports, but her favorite has been basketball. A member of the Region 8A champion Fertile-Beltrami high school girls basketball team two years ago, she competed in the state tournament. During the years she played junior varsity and varsity basketball, Fertile-Beltrami won the District 30 championship six years in a row. A basket and backboard on the Olson garage gets frequent use when Lori is home from her studies at Moorhead state university.

Charge Driver Involved In Fatal Mishap

Carl Flaten Sr. of Oklee made a first appearance in Pennington county court Tuesday, charged with criminal vehicular operation and aggravated driving after revocation of his driver's license.

Flaten was the driver of the car which struck another vehicle driven by Mrs. Ray (Chris) Hedlund Sunday south of Thief River Falls, fatally injuring Mrs. Hedlund. Early reports of the accident indicated that the Hedlund car had gone out of control and slid broadside into the path of the Flaten vehicle.

David Olin, Pennington county attorney, said the charges arose from a report by a witness who claims to have followed the Flaten car for a distance and observed it "swerving all over the road". Olin said both charges involve evidence of the defendant driving while under the influence.

Bond was set at $3,000 and public defender Dennis Murphy was appointed to represent Flaten. Criminal vehicular operation is a felony charge and Flaten's next appearance will be in district court.

Day Camp For Girl Scouts Opens June 18

Girl Scout day camp for Thief River Falls girls will be conducted June 18 through 22 at Camp MOE located southeast of Thief River Falls. Camp hours will be from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., according to Renae Vedbraaten, camp director.

Bus to transport scouts to the camp will leave Washington elementary school at 9:15 a.m. and Mark Twain elementary school at 9:20 a.m. each day of the camp.

Registration for the day camp session has been completed and girls who will be participating are asked to bring with them to camp the following items: Dunk bags for doing dishes, folding pocket knife, rain gear and sweatshirts. Girls are advised not to wear shorts or sandals.

Persons with questions about the camp may contact Mrs. Vedbraaten at 681-6949.

United Way Meets Monday

Thief River Falls United Way board will meet Monday at 7 p.m. at the Occupational Development center (ODC) in Thief River Falls.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Jerri Faye Larson Weds Milo Hemmesch

Jerri Larson and Milo Hemmesch, both of Thief River Falls, were married in a double ring ceremony at Black River Lutheran church of St. Hilaire with Rev. Luther Anderson officiating.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Larson and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Hemmesch of this city.

Organist was Ruth Mosbeck. Bud Fontes and Christie LaCoursiere, friends of the couple, provided the special music, "Just For You and I" and "Wedding Prayer."

The bride was given in marriage by her father and was attired in an ivory colored gown of crystal organza and chantilly lace with a cathedral length train. The gown featured a portrait neckline, bishop sleeves and full skirt. Alencon lace and seed pearls trimmed the bodice. Rows of chantilly lace edged with satin ribbon cascaded around the skirt bottom and flowed back into the train. Her fingertip veil was held in place with an ivory colored floral wreath. Her bouquet was made of ivory colored roses and accented with red ribbon and babies breath. Attendant was Kathy Chalmers.

The bridesmaids wore long gowns made of red organza. They featured an off the shoulder puffed sleeve effect, dropped waistline and full skirt with a draped hemline. A silk rose accented the top of each drape at the hemline. Their bouquets were of red and ivory carnations, lily of the valley, babies breath and ivory and red ribbons.

Mike Hemmesch, Woodbridge, VA, brother of the groom, was best man. Groomsmen were Mitch Hemmesch, brother of the groom and Rocky Lindquist, Bloomington, cousin of the bride. Ushers were Rick Wold, friend of the couple and Mark Hemmesch, Crystal, brother of the groom. They wore black tuxedoes with red bow ties and cummerbunds. Their boutonnieres were red carnations, accented with ivory.

Mother of the bride wore a floor length gown of teal brocade. taffeta, featuring a low cut neckline and puffed sleeves with a ruffle at the top. A matching tie belt slightly gathered the gown at the waist. Her corsage was of ivory roses.

The groom's mother wore a deep green suede street length dress featuring a high collar with an extended ruffle down the front and belted at the waist. She wore a corsage of ivory roses.

Honored guests were Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Wayne, Goodridge, godparents of the bride; Alice Habedank and Delphine Benoit, grandmothers of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence O. Swanson, great aunt and uncle of the bride; and Erving Schoth, Ponsford, uncle of the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Lindquist, aunt and uncle of the bride and Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Habedank, aunt and uncle of the groom hosted a reception for the couple in the church basement which was decorated in the Valentine theme.

The three-tiered chocolate and white wedding cake centered the serving table. Red roses and filigree hearts of red and white decorated the tiers. Grecian pillars separated the upper tiers of the cake. Topping the cake was an ivory satin bell ornament and fresh greenery surrounded the base.

Pam and Jay Brekke served the punch and Pearl Adamson, aunt of the groom and Barb Larson, aunt of the bride, poured.

Waitresses were Carla Bruggeman, Williston, ND, cousin of the bride and Beth Nelson, Larimore, ND, friend of the bride.

Arranging the gifts were Judy Walker, St. Hilaire, friend of the bride and Chad and Casey Larson, cousins of the bride carried the gifts.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. Mary Cornille, Woodbridge, VA, sister of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Larson, Shakopee, aunt and uncle of the bride; and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Bruggeman, Williston, ND.

The bride and groom are graduates of Lincoln high school and the groom is also a graduate of the Thief River Falls AVTI. The bride is employed by Kmart and the groom is with UPS in this city.
